Puts Crimp in Phillies' Championship Stride; Harrisburg Did Not Want Him

Jim Thorpe is again with the New York Giants. He is likely to stay with McGraw until the close of the season. Yesterday Thorpe was sent in as a pinch hitter against the Phillies and won the game for "Mugsy."

When Thorpe was canned by Har-

When Thorpe was canned by Harrisburg last Saturday a general opinion prevailed that McGraw had found an excuse to get rid of his contract with the former Olympic champion.

Thorpe was let loose from Harrisburg on orders from the big boss, Edward G. Barrow, president of the International League. The real reason for sending him back to McGraw was not given. Baseball gossip said Thorpe was not hitting, that his throwing arm was going bad, and that he was an expensive luxury for the local team. Here are a few dispatch stories about his work yesterday, printed in to-day's Philadelphia papers:

Thorpe Is Big Factor

Record: "The remarkable hitting of Jim Thorpe was the big feature of the day, and was the real cause of the downfall of the Phils. The Olpmpic hero came into the game as a pinch hitter in the third inning and whaled out a double. This prompted McGraw to put him into the game, and he added two more singles to his record, scored two runs and stole a base."

record, scored two runs and stole a base."

Press: "Because of the activities of this pesky redskin, Jim Thorpe, an athlete of some renown, all Gotham is willing to-night to wager its City Hall that when it comes to baseball John McGraw, allas "Mugsy," is some weisenheimer. They kick Jim Thorpe out of the minors because he can't hit, and he comes right back into the big show and his bat is the chief factor in the downfall of our pennant pursuers."

North American: "They showed the door to Jim Thorpe in the International League at Harrisburg last Saturday, but see what he does. He comes back to the Giants, makes three hits and two runs against the Phillies and has a lot to do with beating them."

Local Dealers Storing Coal Against Day of Trouble at the Mines

With two exceptions, the prices of the various grades of anthracite coal were advanced to the usual winter prices yesterday by local dealers. The advances were twenty cents a ton on all grades but hard and medium pea coal, which went up only ten cents. This increase brings the prices up to the same as last winter. The rates were reduced fifty cents as ton, April 1, and raised thirty cents on July 1. Pea coal is now being sold at the lowest rate since 1904.

Local dealers, following the example of the Pennsylvania Raliroad and other large concerns, are storing heavy quantities of coal. By many it is believed that labor trouble at the mines will ensue April 1, when the four years' agreement between the producers and the United Miners and the Bituminous Mine Association expires.
