

Attend This Big Monday Sale of New Fall Millinery

Prices Are For the One Day---Monday Only

While every day is bargain day in our Millinery Department, Mondays are set aside as clean-up days in various lots of hats and trimmings which the close of Saturday's business leaves unsold.

Every week new shipments are received here, and rather than fill in or carry over odds and ends left at the end of each week, they are put into a Monday sale at prices for the one day only.

It is impossible, of course, to determine beforehand just what these remaining lots will be, but every hat offered will be the top notch in style and quality.

It will pay you to attend these Monday Millinery Sales, which may include just the sort of hat you want. Quantities are as a rule limited, and, therefore, early shopping is advisable.

If You Are Interested in Crocheting You Should Make It a Point to Attend Our Two Weeks' Demonstration of Golden Fleece Yarns Beginning Monday, September 13

During the demonstration, the new crochet stitches will be taught free of charge by an expert demonstrator. You are cordially invited to attend—come.

Crucible Steel Heavy at Outset, but Soon Recovered; C. & O. Makes Change

By Associated Press
New York, Sept. 11.—To-day's stock market developed no features of interest in the early dealings. Investment issues were neglected, while war specialties manifested further reactionary tendencies. General Motors declining 4 points to 259 and Studebaker 2 1/2 to 113 1/2. Crucible Steel also was heavy at the outset, but soon recovered. United States Steel changed hands in large blocks at a small fractional loss. Chesapeake and Ohio was the only railroad stock to make a material change, losing a point at 47 1/2.

The Ugly Duckling

HERE is the child who has not marveled at the change from the ugly, awkward, gray duckling, to the beautiful white swan?

Our completed store will not be a spotless swan as the story goes, but the comparison is good.

Work has progressed rapidly from the beginning, but has remained in its crude state.

Now the time is ripe for "finishing touches" and the next couple weeks will show a decided step toward completion.

We are aware of the inconvenience which department changes bring about and ask for your kindly patience a short while longer.

Floormen and elevator men can best direct you.

APoplexy IS FATAL TO MRS. SIMONETTI

Stricken in West End Store While on Way to Market; Dies Two Hours Later

Stricken with apoplexy, Mrs. Catherine S. Simonetti, of 215 Forster street, wife of Lewis R. Simonetti, the wholesale fruit dealer, fell over on Third street while on her way to market this afternoon and died less than two hours later at the Hartman Hospital.

She was picked up and rushed to the hospital in a passing automobile soon after being stricken but efforts to revive her were unavailing. Surviving Mrs. Simonetti are her husband and the following children: Frances, Ross and Catherine.

Mrs. Simonetti, who was 48 years old, had been apparently in the best of health during the summer. While on her way to market she stopped at the store of Cleckner and Burke, 1226 North Third street, to make a purchase. She fell over on the counter. The funeral will be held from St. Patrick's Cathedral. Further arrangements have not been made.

HOW SEWAGE IS PURIFIED BY BACTERIA

"One of the best examples of modern methods and equipment for sewage purification is the plant recently built for treating the sewage at Atlanta, Ga. where the first septic tanks ever installed in this country are in service," says the August Popular Mechanics Magazine in an illustrated article. "Septic tanks of this type, though a comparatively recent invention, are already in common use in the Ems River valley, and other sections of Germany, and are said to have proved the best means yet discovered for the first stage in the bacterial treatment of sewage. The Imhoff tank is simply a modification of the ordinary septic tank, which is itself an enlarged and improved cesspool. As in the case of the cesspool, the process of treating sewage by this method depends on the action of bacteria, but in the septic tank this action is carried out rapidly and on a large scale.

"The raw sewage enters the Imhoff tank through a series of inlets spaced across the end. It then flows slowly through the tank, and the liquid is finally discharged through outlets at the opposite end which lead to the filtering beds. The first bacterial action on the sewage takes place during its passage through this tank. There is nothing done to bring this about or to assist it, the action being a natural one exactly like the decomposition that takes place in a cesspool. Much of the solid matter contained in the sewage is decomposed before it sinks and is transformed into a liquid, but the heavier parts settle through a slot into a compartment below known as the sludge chamber. The sludge in this deposit of sludge is being constantly decomposed and transformed into a liquid by the bacteria, so that the accumulation of sludge is so slow that the chamber can ordinarily go for months without being cleaned out."

MAKING THE PORCH PAY

People are beginning to find new comfort values in the porch. A few years ago the porch was just part of outdoors like the front walk; we sat there in the summer time on heavy storm-proof chairs and enjoyed it, but the porch was just a porch—a place to sit.

Then electricity became household and the porch light was installed on the ceiling and the screened-in veranda began to look like a room and to be used as a room. Comfortable chairs and rugs and tables that were afraid to be out in the dark have become regular porch furniture, and an extra receptacle or two have been added so that there may be a soft, comfortable reading light on the table and a fan on sunny nights and a chafing dish for an impromptu party.

OVERHEARD BY THACKERAY

The discomforts endured by Thackeray in the United States, which he dwells on in the letters to Mrs. Brookfield, were alleviated by some amusing incidents. After his return to London he told Carlyle that during one of his American journeys "the train stopped at Concord. Then one of the two silent Yankees opposite me turned to the other and remarked, 'Mr. Emerson, I hear, lives in this town.' 'Ye-as,' was the drawing rejoinder, and I understand that, in spite of his odd notions, he is a man of considerable property."
