

REMARKABLE CASE of Mrs. HAM

Declares Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her Life and Sanity.

Shamrock, Mo.—"I feel it my duty to tell the public the condition of my health before using your medicine. I had falling, inflammation and congestion, female weakness, pains in both sides, backaches and bearing down pains, was short of memory, nervous, impatient, passed sleepless nights, and had neither strength nor energy. There was always a fear and dread in my mind, I had cold, nervous, weak spells, hot flashes over my body. I had a place in my right side that was so sore that I could hardly bear the weight of my clothes. I tried medicines and doctors, but they did me little good, and I never expected to get out again. I got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier, and I certainly would have been in grave or in an asylum if your medicines had not saved me. But now I can work all day, sleep well at night, eat anything I want, have no hot flashes or weak, nervous spells. All pains, aches, fevers and dreads are gone, my house, children and husband are no longer neglected, as I am almost entirely free of the bad symptoms I had before taking your remedies, and all is pleasure and happiness in my home."

If you want special advice write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential) Lynn, Mass.

Sorry That He Wrote "I Didn't Raise My Boy to Be a Soldier"

New York, Sept. 15.—Alfred Bryan is sorry that he wrote "I Didn't Raise My Boy to Be a Soldier." He says he has been accused of being unpatriotic and that a local film production has even gone so far as to use his composition to emphasize indifference to war and the unpreparedness of the country. "I would rather cut off my right hand than be the author of a song or composition that holds my country up to ridicule," Mr. Bryan said to-day. "The song was written in good faith at the beginning, Dr. Dierker, and I meant to be a plea for motherhood against the sudden reversion to barbarism among the nations of Europe. I have never relatives fighting with the Canadian regiments in the French trenches. This ought to be sufficient explanation to critics who say my composition is a plea for peace at any price. "I have nothing but contempt for the make-believe citizen who, while extolling the efficiency of his native land, endeavors to tell his neighbor into a sense of false security by advocating a fawning attitude toward an enemy which is even now threatening to undermine the foundations of our Government."

It was pointed out that the larger railroads had ordered their rail requirements for next year earlier in the season than usual. It was estimated that the Pennsylvania and New York Central lines would buy at least 300,000 tons of rail for 1916 delivery. SAYS BRITAIN MUST NOT RELY ON THREATENED BREAK

Berlin via London, Sept. 15, 12.40 p. m.—In the German government's explanation of the Hesperian case, the "Germania" sees the way clear for President Wilson's ultimate position regarding the German note concerning justification for the sinking of the Arabic. The newspaper declares that the British press must give up the hope of serious differences between Berlin and Washington. Latest Addition to Ornamental Lighting System Is Tested Out

Harrisburg's newest addition to its ornamental street lighting system—the row of double standards in Second street from Locust to State—were lighted in a test service for an hour and a half this afternoon. The lights have been in place for several days and the final connections were made to-day and tested out. Even with the sun as a rival the new lights made a splendid showing. The arrangement of the new standards is especially attractive in that the two long lines flanking each side of the street end in a series of four posts around the State street intersection. The second street lighting was a part of the system that had been promised the city by the Harrisburg Light and Power company in time for the municipal celebration. The other part includes the long row of lights on the River Front wall. Fourteen of these standards are now in place and the remaining forty posts are on their way to this city. The cables for each standard are in ready for connection with the standards.

Hundreds Anxious to Join Biddle Class Army

Philadelphia, Sept. 15.—Letters from men of nearly every walk in life, requesting information regarding the military training movement now under way, swarmed the office at the winter headquarters of the Drexel Biddle Bible classes, 1917 Mt. Vernon street, yesterday. More than 250 men have enrolled thus far, and it is expected that hundreds of others will expect the invitation offered by Anthony J. Drexel Biddle to prepare themselves for war in time of peace. On Saturday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, a United States army officer will begin the work of instructing recruits. The drill ground will be at the classes' farm, at Lansdowne. The drills will continue on Monday and Tuesday afternoons, starting at 5.30 o'clock and continuing until dark.

The businessmen of Philadelphia responded in large numbers to an appeal issued by J. Dewitt Jobborn, who is in charge of the movement, that time off be allowed to those employees who wish to join the training camp. One prominent lawyer said he would be only too glad to assist in any way he could, and would see to it that not only his employees were privileged to attend camp, but that he, himself, would shoulder a musket for a few days also. Mr. Jobborn said he would enlist called at the recruiting station yesterday and offered their assistance. Mr. Jobborn said any male, more than 18 years old, is eligible to enlist. There will be no charge for the camp being for one's personal equipment. The camp will start about the first of October.

In the mad rush several more of the animals were injured so badly they had to be killed. After considerable trouble all the cattle were rounded up by railroadmen and driven in other cars. The wreck occurred when the cars were being loaded with scrap iron. A young heifer was still missing to-day. The police are hunting it.

THE HAZARDS OF FARMING

Farming has always been a hazardous business. Fire, and frost, and flood; wind and hail, and drought; blight and the hordes of insect enemies have destroyed the crops since man began tilling the soil. Yet with all its hazards, farming is perhaps the most stable and substantial of all businesses. And yet 90 per cent. of the merchants fail. We have always suspected those statistics, but certainly a much smaller proportion of farmers are sold out under the hammer. There is no starvation in the country, and few cases of charity outside of the infirm and helpless. The problem of employment is not pressing, and we do not lie awake nights wondering if we can get the money to pay next month's rent.—Farm Life.
