Autumn Has Sent Her Choicest For Your Selection To-morrow

Only once in a great while could we offer such remarkable Waist-Value as in these

Sample Waists at $2.00

We're sure you'll agree no such offering was made anywhere in Harrisburg this season.

Now most women know that "the sample" must measure up to standard, and waists are no exception. They are particularly well made.

Styles Are Latest

The nobby collars—the full length sleeves; the flesh, black and white and all the last minute touches.

Out of the 250 Waists, scarcely two are alike, and materials include

Crepe de Chine, Taffeta, Messaline.

Georgette Crepe, Pussy Willow, Other Silks.

Being sample waists, they are mostly in 36, although a number of 38 and 40 sizes are to be had.

We have included some awning stripe silk waists in all sizes. A visit will be a big paying investment for you.

New La Vida Corsets Reflect Latest Style-Tendencies

In our well-fitted Corset Department, now on third floor, we are showing the most favored models.

These embrace the newest mode—requirements—graceful, but not too pronounced roundness of hips; perfectly flat abdominal lines; bust height slightly increased; front lines being straight; definitely marked waist-curve at sides, and skirt lengths normal.

The "Colonial Model" reveals the modish lines of the 1830 period gown which seems to be the latest whim of Fashion. Decidedly short giving the figure a very marked, yet graceful incurve at the sides while maintaining a perfectly straight front line as illustration shows. Made in coutil prettily trimmed and priced at $5.00

La Vida Corsets, for the average figure; firm boning; wide abdominal clasp; coutil, with wide lace edge, at $3.00

La Vida Corsets for the well-developed figure, with waist incurve; 5-inch bust; self striped fabric, at $3.00

W. B. Corsets — models for all figures, at $1.00 to $3.00

WANT MEN TO WORK ON RIVER WALL GAP

Lack of Laborers May Hold Up Definite Completion of Steps at Market Street

WANTED — At once, men to work on the construction of steps across the River Wall gap at Market street. Apply on scene or to Department of Streets and Public Improvements.

CASTORIA For Infants and Children. The Kind You Have Always Bought

wall at Market street this is the plight in which City Commissioner William H. Lynch and E. W. Cowden, engineer in charge, find themselves; the final completion of the work in time for the big municipal celebration may be possible because of a lack of workmen.

Men have come and men have gone, says Messrs. Lynch and Cowden, but there is plenty of chance for more to find a steady job until the improvement is completed. Men of some ability, of course, are preferred for the work; men, the engineer explained yesterday, who can command 25 or 30 cents an hour. The fact that some of the work has to be done in the water doesn't appeal as a rule to most of the laborers who apply.

To date about two dozen stringers are in place, the foot wall is completed for a like distance and five lights or sections of steps have been placed in forms. A considerable portion of the old dock wall yet remains to be blasted out, but this will be done this week, it is expected. Another cofferdam has been constructed to a point beyond this wall.

While the job is not proceeding as rapidly as could be expected, perhaps, both Commissioner Lynch and Mr. Cowden are still confident of finishing the work by Thursday. If the final touches are not added by that time a temporary walk will be constructed across the gap for the accommodation of the thousands who will promenade past that point. Market street, incidentally, will be one of the most important points on the river front during the water sports; just seventy-five feet above the bridge the finish tapes for all the races will be stretched. Lifting of the concrete slabs to the top tier of the dam from the river bed was begun yesterday by David Weiser, a river contractor. He was given the contract to place the hundred or more slabs on the dam. While he has agreed to finish the job in ten days, he will get an extra ten-day bonus of $14 a day if he completes the work in that time.

BIG WATER CARNIVAL BLAZE OF SPLENDOR

popular and a very effective display is to merely cover a number of Japanese lanterns with the same color of crepe tissue paper, which is the best possible material to use by reason of its diaphanous quality. The important thing is to have the float well illuminated, for no matter how perfect the design, it must be well lighted to show up. The fertile brains of the young people can manufacture the best ideas; Tennyson's story of the fair Elaine whose body was floated down the river, or King Arthur's Knights of the Round Table would make stunning effects.

It is something along the above lines that will delight all Harrisburg and its visitors next Friday evening, if all the owners of boats co-operate and spend a little time in decorating. One is surprised at the simplicity of the work required to accomplish the most wonderful designs and spectacles. Fortunately, indeed, are those who possess canoes and rowboats, for even though they may not be able to erect a big framework of light and beauty, they can still hang a few Japanese lanterns, say three or four, on a wire or light rope stretched from two slim poles nailed to either end of the boat; in this way each additional canoe and rowboat will add very materially to the splendor of the carnival.

Much ingenuity and originality is being shown in building the floats and it is expected that next Friday evening will be one that will not soon be forgotten. The success of the carnival depends upon individual initiative, but there need be no fear on that score if the people of Harrisburg co-operate in this as they have in every other important undertaking. The committee in charge of the river carnival will in all probability define certain boundaries on the river that evening within which will be allowed only those craft which show a certain number of lights.

Get busy and carry out the old canoe you thought you would never use again. You will need it next week.

Ask your friends to spend the evening on the river with you. The carnival will be more interesting if you are a part of it and you have an opportunity of increasing the beauty of the sight which will delight and give enjoyment to those landlubbers who are less fortunate than you.
