PRACTICAL AID GIVEN DISTRICTS

Board of Education's Bulletin Will Save Many Dollars For States' School Board

Practical aid for school districts in preparing for erection of school buildings is given in the latest bulletin of the State Board of Education, which has just been issued. It is more of a guide than a bulletin because it contains suggestive plans and cause it contains suggestive plans and three and four first contains cause it contains three and four story standard buildings. The State gives ideas of design, ings. The State gives ideas of design, errangement, cost and other details which are important to many districts and then furnishes the plans, so that part of the preliminary cost is cut out. The bulletin, which was prepared by the board a year ago, appropriately cpens with a quotation from the famous speech of Thaddeus Stevens and urges that in future schools be given adequate setting and that there he as much ground as possible about the buildings and that in rural districts there be gardens, orchards and plots for agricultural and horticultural instruction. The school code requirements on air, light and other modern details are clearly set forth. The building some illustrations, and for consolidated schools, together with other practical hints. The publication was made with some suggestions from the Governor, who was a member of the board. Dr. J. George Becht, the executive officer, plans to put the bulletin in every district.
