STEELTON TO HELP WITH CELEBRATION

Schools Will Close and Big Crowds Plan to See Festivities

In right neighborly fashion Steelton has accepted the invitation of Harrisburg's Chamber of Commerce to participate in the big Municipal Improvement Celebration now on.

Interest in the celebration is widespread in the Capitol City's smaller neighbors to the south and large crowds will go up to take part in the festivities.

L. E. McGinnes, superintendent of the Steelton public schools, to-day issued an order permitting the closing of all the borough schools to-morrow. There will be no sessions all day so that the pupils may go to Harrisburg to witness the big water carnival and the other festivities.

Steelton is particularly interested in Harrisburg's celebration because of the many similar improvements made in Steelton in the same period over which Harrisburg is celebrating. A new filter plant, second to that of no other borough in the State; more miles of paved streets than any other borough; a comprehensive sewer system. Improved street lighting and the nucleus of a comprehensive park system, are some of the things Steelton has acquired since "the awakening" in Harrisburg.

Then, too, it has a man now prominent in Steelton's affairs that played a prominent part in the agitation which caused "the awakening." J. V. W. Reynolds, now president of Steelton's council, as a resident of Harrisburg was actively identified with the movement for a Greater Harrisburg. So Steelton watches Harrisburg celebrate with more than a neighborly interest.

Export Business Is Big Factor in Steel Trade

In its weekly review of the steel situation to-day, the Iron Age, a conservative trade journal, says: "Export business is more distinctly the dominant factor in the steel trade than in any previous month of the year."

"As a whole the market is moving upward, not uniformly nor yet with any spectacular developments, but in response to the special influences that have produced a scarcity of steel. This week sheets, iron bars, hard steel bars, shafting and bolts and nuts in addition to wire products, have advanced, without any expansion in domestic consumption."

"As a rule the railroads are moving deliberately. A few western lines are inquiring at Chicago, including the Santa Fe which is expected to order 30,000 tons of rails in Colorado for its lines west of Kansas City. The Erie has bought 20,000 tons for next year from the Illinois Steel Company and the New York Central is hearing with the mills. Even with car shortages in sight, the attitude of railroad buyers is decidedly conservative."
