

The Globe Our Congratulations

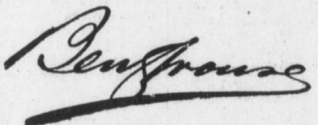

The grandest spectacle ever presented upon the clean streets of our great City, was the Parade of the boys and girls of the Public Schools on Friday last.

A pageant of upwards of 10,000 happy, smiling school children marching with the precision of military companies to the inspiring music of numberless bands.

A spectacular parade inspired by sentiment and which brought forth emotions as well as applause from the many thousands who crowded the sidewalks to witness it. The kaleidoscope of coloring as each school, decorated in its own colors, went marching by, was grand to behold.

We extend our congratulations to one and all who participated in this great event,—to the members of the committee who conceived it,—to the school authorities who co-operated,—to the principals and the teachers for their original ideas and their untiring efforts in directing their own divisions,—and to the children, those happy children who individually lent their enthusiastic support in making the demonstration such a grand success.

May the near future bring a repetition of this wonderful procession. Truly this was an incentive for higher education and a bigger and better Harrisburg.

NEWEST PORTRAIT READY TO PLACE

Fine Likeness of the Former Lieutenant-Governor Delivered to the Capitol

The portrait of John M. Reynolds of Bedford, lieutenant-governor from 1911 to 1915, painted for the lieutenant-governor's suite in the Capitol, will be placed in position this week. It has been delivered to Samuel E. Rambo, superintendent of Public Grounds and Buildings, by Albert Rosenthal, the artist. Like the other portraits painted for this suite it is life sized and will be framed in accordance with the decorations in the suite.

The portrait is a splendid likeness of the former lieutenant-governor. Those who have seen it have commented upon the work, which is complete in every detail. It is considered by some to be one of the best of those painted for the Capitol by Rosenthal.

John K. Tener, former governor, has not yet sat for his portrait. He has not had time since the expiration of his term, but will probably do so this fall.

Deserters Taken. — An unusual number of requisitions involving wife desertion have been passing through the State department in the last few months. Under recent acts the offenses of desertion of wife or family were made extraditable and almost daily applications from counties in Pennsylvania for warrants for men who have gone to other States have been received at the Capitol for action.

Many Bridge Bids. — Bids for the most extensive letting of contracts for bridges will be opened on Thursday by Highway Commissioner R. J. Cunningham. There are over twenty to be built, all on main highways.

Jitneys to Fight. — All three of the jitney owners against whom the Scranton Railways company filed complaints to raise the question whether jitneys were required to have certificates of public convenience from the Public Service Commission have arranged to make contests of the case and the issue will be heard at the second week in October. The case will have a wide effect throughout the State as it is likely that it will be contested in the courts. The commission is scheduled to meet this week for a few cases, the most important being that to determine certain questions raised against crossing of wires owned by rival companies. The case comes from the slate region, but has a principle affecting many companies.

Pushing Arsenal. — The new State arsenal now being built in this city will be under roof before the snow and the erection will start very shortly. The building is to be fireproof and large enough to serve for organized militia stores for years to come. The steel work is now being assembled and the erection will start very shortly. The basement and first floor were built under a contract let a year ago. Meanwhile the military stores are being handled in one of the warehouses bought by the State for Capitol park extension.

Employment Plans. — Stops have been practically completed for the establishment of the State Bureau of Employment and its offices will be opened in this city during the coming week. The first branch office will be located in October in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

Powers of Sealers. — James Sweeney, state chief of standards, was today advised by the Attorney General's Department that inspectors or sealers of weights and measures have no authority to recommend what type of scales shall be used. The opinion, written by Deputy Attorney General J. L. Kun, says: "The inspectors, under the act, have no authority to concern themselves with reference to the type of any scale, weight or measure used, and their sole duty is to ascertain whether such scales, weights or measures conform to the standard tests prescribed by the act, subject to the tolerances and allowances specified by the chief of the Bureau of Standards thereunder."

Spoke at Fair. — State Zoologist H. A. Surface spoke at the Greene County Fair on Saturday on the work which has been done by his division for the orchards of the state.

Tour Outlined. — The arrangements for the Governor's "Seeing Pennsylvania" tour next week have been completed and the highways marked.

Big Payment. — The United Natural Gas Company, of Oil City, today paid the State $85,000 of state tax.

Superior Court. — The Superior Court meets in Philadelphia this week and the appeals from the act of 1915 relative to appeals from the Public Service Commission decisions will be argued.

Mr. Lucas Returns. — John Lucas, of the Executive Department, has returned from a vacation.

STORES ARE LIKE PEOPLE

Some are born great, some achieve greatness, and some have greatness thrust upon them. And then there are plenty of stores, just as there are plenty of people which never enjoy any greatness at all.

We have achieved greatness through our better way of selling Merchandise, our greater value-giving and inflexible guarantee of complete lasting satisfaction.

And now still further greatness---greatness in size and volume of business has been thrust upon us by thousands of satisfied customers who appreciate our better service and better values and who are glad to bring and send other thousands to this "LIVE STORE."

GOVERNOR MAKES PLEA FOR OPTION

All Church Attendance Records at Oberlin Are Smashed

Church attendance records at Oberlin were smashed yesterday, when harvest home services were held in Neldig Memorial United Brethren Church and rally day exercises were held in the Sunday school and Christian Endeavor societies.

Governor Martin G. Brumbaugh was present at the afternoon service and delivered a stirring plea for the co-operation of all church people in the campaign for local option. More than 400 people packed into the church for this service and the Governor was given an ovation at the close of his speech.

At the morning service the Rev. C. E. Bougter, who recently handed in his resignation as pastor, delivered his farewell sermon. He will probably be assigned to some other charge at the next conference session.

At the senior Christian Endeavor session E. J. Huggins, of Harrisburg, superintendent of the intermediate department of the Pennsylvania Christian Endeavor Union, made an address. There was special music at each meeting. One of the features was a duet by Miss Ethel Strickler and Earl Eichelberger.
