OLD ENGLISH RECIPE FOR CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

If you know of some one who is troubled with Catarrhal Deafness, head noises or ordinary catarrh cut out this formula and hand it to them and you will have been the means of saving some poor sufferer from total deafness. In England scientists for a long time past have recognized that catarrh is a constitutional disease and necessarily requires a constitutional treatment.

Sprays, inhalers and nose douches are liable to irritate the delicate air passages and force the disease into the middle ear which frequently means total deafness, or else the disease is driven down the air passages towards the lungs which is equally as dangerous. The following formula which is used extensively in the damp English climate is a constitutional treatment and should prove especially efficacious to sufferers here who live under more favorable climate conditions.

Secure from your Druggist 1 ounce of Permin (double strength). Take this home and add to it 1 pint of hot water and 4 ounces of granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and hearing improve as the inflammation in the eustachian tubes is reduced. Permin is used in this way as it acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system and has a slight tonic action that facilitates the recovery of the patient. The preparation is easy to make, costs little and is pleasant to take. Every person who has catarrh should give this treatment a trial.—Advertisement.

NUXATED IRON

Women AND THEIR Interests

Life's Honor System

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Several years ago one of the best-known women writers in the country had a class in literary criticism at the college I attended. On the day of examination she appeared before her class of thirty women, read aloud ten examination questions, and then remarked: "It is now 2 o'clock. I shall be here to receive your examination papers at five. You are at liberty to go anywhere you like to answer the questions and I shall be glad to trust you neither to communicate with one another nor to consult any books of reference."

I think there was not a girl in that class who would have cheated, even if her college degree had depended entirely upon her passing that examination with honors. The important thing was to pass it with honor.

Human nature may be capable of all sorts of deception and double dealing. That is largely because it knows that things are expected of it and will be given it in turn. But as a general rule, any one whose honesty is taken for granted will live up to expectations.

Having the game as well as the name is a pet weakness of humanity. But when one is met with simple honesty that takes for granted that one can make returns of like simple honesty, failure to do so becomes a thing too contemptible to be contemplated.

Would you like to know how the college examination was conducted? Some of us stayed in the room where it had been given out, and quietly and silently set about putting down what we knew on the subject of literary criticism. Some of us chose to go to our own rooms to write in the quiet and cool of familiar surroundings. And some sought the "back campus" and gave our knowledge of the subject full vent under the shade of the college elms. No one cheated. No one asked help. No one wanted to because no one would have been willing to face the bar of her own judgment and acknowledge herself incapable of being as simply honorable as she was expected to be. And no one suspected any one else of dishonesty or double dealing.

A Perfectly Simple Thing

If you find it impossible to believe this simple little tale of absolute honesty, there is something wrong with you. If you can't believe that other people, when free and able to cheat will still refrain from doing so, then you, yourself, must be incapable of doing the same. Are you willing to so adjudge yourself?

If you cannot believe that the honor system works, it is because it would not work for you.

Normal human being with any instinct of decency likes to fall simple trust and confidence. Oh, I know that bank presidents abscond and Sunday school superintendents elope with funds and other people's wives, and that in competitive examinations there are all sorts of cheating. But these

MT. UNION MAKING PROGRESS

Special to The Telegraph

Mount Union, Pa., Oct. 4.—Mount Union is making great industrial progress, as can readily be seen in making a canvass of the banks that handle the payrolls for the various industries. During the year 1914, when the payroll totaled $50,000 per month, it was thought very good for a town of the size of Mount Union. But owing to the new explosive works and boom in the brick business, caused in an indirect way by the war, it is estimated that the payroll for October will probably exceed $140,000.

Large as a Quarter. Very Severe. Would Have to Walk Floor All Night.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"My brother's trouble began on his chest in white blisters about as large as a quarter. Water would run out, and then his chest would get scales on it. It was very severe, and he would cry and scratch it. We could not keep any clothes on his chest. He would scream and we would have to walk the floor with him all night.

After he had troubled three months before we tried Cuticura Soap and Ointment. We bathed him with warm water and Cuticura Soap, and then put the Ointment on. In three weeks he was well." (Signed) Miss Helen Hindman, Box 15, R. D. 1, Finleyville, Pa., Jan. 13, 1915.

THE TUNIC IN ITS LATEST FORM

A New and Graceful Skirt that can be Made of One or of Two Materials.

By MAY MANTON

8769 Tunic Skirt, 24 to 30 waist.

There is no feature of fashions more interesting than the determination with which the tunic holds its place. This one is very new and smart. It is finished with narrow tucks at the lower edge in which cords are inserted to produce the required flare and it is open at the front. The opening makes an especial feature, for that it gives just one more evidence of the period to which the designers are looking. The skirt beneath is of comfortable and moderate width. Here, the skirt and the tunic are made of one material, but an equally good effect could be obtained by making the tunic of one material and the skirt of another, as flowered taffeta over a plain, or, taffeta over gabardine or plain cloth over plaid. Besides showing one of the newest and smartest models, the skirt is a very simple one and very easy to make. The foundation is perfectly plain, finished with hemmed edges and the tunic is shirred and arranged over it.

For the medium size will be needed 3 1/2 yds. of material 27 in. wide, 2 1/2 yds. 36 or 44, for the skirt, 4 1/2 yds. 27 in. wide, 3 1/2 yds. 36 or 44, for the tunic.

The pattern No. 8769 is cut in sizes from 24 to 30 in. waist measure. It will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper, on receipt of ten cents.

TRAVELETTE

By NIKSAH FLAGSTAFF

The climate of Flagstaff, Arizona, is very much like that of Maine. He who watches weather-bureau reports will not infrequently see the name of Flagstaff set forth as the point of lowest temperature in the United States. This is not in accordance with the current impression of Arizona weather but Flagstaff is 8,000 feet above the sea and often fifty degrees cooler than other portions of the State.

They call it the skylight city. Just back of it rise San Francisco Peaks, the highest mountains in this part of the world, their bare tips hidden in snow. Flagstaff has run a pipe line to a spring far up the mountainside and its water system has the pressure of a 5,000-foot column and endangers the bottoms of the buckets of the townspeople.

Flagstaff is planted in the midst of Mogellon (pronounced Mo-ge-yon) forest, a stretch of timber that covers a greater area than any other in the United States. It is a lumber-built, rambling sort of village with a big sawmill on the outskirts, headquarters for cattle and sheepmen for a hundred miles in every direction.

It is a beautiful place, with its rolling mesas and the prettiest wagon roads in the world, seventy-five miles to the rim of the Grand Canyon. From the edge of the plain upon which Flagstaff stands one may look seven miles down at the Colorado river or twenty miles across its gorge to the State of Nevada.

If one should travel north from Flagstaff he would encounter the Canyon of the Little Colorado which vies with the mother gorge in magnificence but is much less known. This is the right way to the west over the rolling hills and the Hopi Indians every other year put on their wild snake dances.

It is the home of cliff dwellers hereabouts and of that mysterious influence that has turned forest monarchs into stone. It is likewise the home of huge grizzlies and of white-tailed antelope, and of the most spotted fawns in the world. In it Arizona offers a summer resort that will some time come into fame.
