

WHARTON SCHOOL OPENS ON MONDAY

Public Invited to Formal Exercises in Tech High School Building

Formal exercises at the Technical high school building next Monday evening will mark the opening of the 1915-16 session of the Harrisburg Extension of the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce of the University of Pennsylvania.

W. P. Raine, one of the University professors in charge of the registration of students, announced this morning that the exercises will be open to the public and that all interested in the cause of higher education and university extension work are especially invited to attend.

Prominent men will address the student body on live wire subjects. Among the speakers will be Thomas Lynch Montgomery, State librarian; and members of the Rotary Club Wharton booster committee including C. Harry Kain, chairman, D. D. Ham-melbaugh, secretary of the school board, and Dr. D. J. Reese.

Registration of students is progressing rapidly and dozens of ambitious young men are applying for admission to the school. Instances have been reported in this city recently where employers have given Wharton students preference over all others and the youthful element of the business world is awake to the signs of the times which indicate that specially trained men are wanted in the business world. Registration in the school can be made at the offices of the Chamber of Commerce in the Kunkel Building, Third and Market streets.

Suspect Arrested in Pottsville Murder Case

Pottsville, Pa., Oct. 7.—A man said to be an agent of a New York secret society was arrested yesterday by State police at Landingville for the murder of J. H. James, a merchant at Pottsville, a week ago, during a quarrel over 3 cents' worth of ice cream. He is known as Dominic Freddi, but his real name is said to be Antonio Torredido. According to the police, he admitted the shooting.

The State police also arrested two men who were here in an automobile bearing a New York license tag for attempting to take Freddi away in their machine. They claimed to be members of a New York garage concern, and admitted they came to take Freddi to New York, but said they had been told he was a sick man and they did not know he was a fugitive. Freddi had been living on the hills and in shanties since the day of the murder.

BIG CHESTNUT CROP

Annville, Pa., Oct. 7.—Reports indicate that the chestnut crop this Fall will eclipse all records. All of the trees in this section of Lebanon county have escaped the ravages of the chestnut blight and also the effects of the severe storm of a month ago. The trees are well filled with burrs.

MRS. CHARLES HAAR BURIED

Dillsburg, Pa., Oct. 7.—Funeral services of Mrs. Charles Haar who died at her home in Franklin township on Monday after a lingering illness were held this morning, conducted in the Franklin church by the Rev. G. H. Eveler, pastor of the Dillsburg Lutheran charge.

"This is why they go so good"

(A few "quick-reading" facts about one of the most remarkable cigarettes ever made)

In town after town—in state after state, as fast as they are introduced—Favorite Cigarettes leap into big favor almost instantly.

In several cities during the past few months, Favorites have jumped from being an unknown brand to the biggest selling cigarette in those cities.

No other cigarette has ever shot ahead without help so fast as Favorites.

For, mind you, Favorite Cigarettes gained their tremendous popularity absolutely unassisted—before they were advertised—without being pushed—without help of any kind.

What is it, then, that makes Favorites "go so good"?

There's no mystery about it. What reason could there be except that it's JUST BECAUSE THEY'RE SO GOOD!

It is just because there's something about that all-pure, natural leaf tobacco in Favorites and something about the way in which it is blended that gives Favorites an unusually good taste—a taste that the majority of men like.

If you have not yet tried Favorite Cigarettes, we say simply this:

"Favorites are mighty good. They are pure. Most men like them. Just try them and see what YOU think."

Why add more?

Urging alone won't make a man smoke a brand of cigarettes unless he likes them. A smoker is pretty careful what he chooses. Printed facts alone won't convince you that a cigarette is good.

You must try it.

And that try out of Favorites is the clincher that has won all the friends for Favorites wherever they have been introduced.

It isn't surprising that Favorite sales are leaping ahead every day. Men don't wait for the next fellow when they find a cigarette as good as Favorites. Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.
