URICH ACCUSED BY GIRL OF 13

Against Alleged Holdup Man at Hearing

Jacob M. Urich, 1909 North street, ho last week was held under $1,500 bail for court on a charge of having held up Miss Ruth Shaffer, 1860 Wal-ntu street, and Frank Shreiner in Reservoir Park, will be given a hearng at 7.30 o'clock this evening before Alderman Caveny on a charge of having at 7.30 o'clock this evening before Alderman Caveny on a charge of having attacked 13-year-old Rosie Gross, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Meyer Gross, 438 Waln't street, on the night of May 30, 1914.

Since Urich's arrest last week the State police who are stationed at Paxtang have been securing the names of other persons held up in the park and at to-night's hearing several of these people will be on hand to attempt to identify the alleged holdup man. Among the names secured by Corporal Curtis A. Davies and Trooper Percy Wilson was that of the Gross girl.

According to the girl's story, she was walking along the Whitehall street side of the park on the night of May 30, 1914, with Amos Plummer, 1407 Regina street, a lad of her own years, when a man stopped them and, taking hold of the girl, dragged her into the bushes. The holdup man chased young Plummer away. The lad ran for help and found B. Frank Rohrer, 23 North Seventeenth street, who at that time was night watchman at a steam shovel which was being used to grade Whitehall street. Mr. Rohrer and Plummer is arted back in the direction of where the Gross girl had been dragged and when they neared the spot the man fired a shot and ran. Both Plummer and the little girl gave good descriptions of the man at the time, but efforts to trace him failed.

A few days ago Corporal Davies took the little girl to the place where Urich, who is a plasterer, was working. She declared to the state officer that he was the man who attacked her and said that since the attack she had seen him once riding in the central part of the city.

Urich was rearrested to-day and held for the hearing to-night.

Mrs. William Henderson was appointed a delegate to represent the committee at the annual North Atlantic Anti-tuberculosis Conference at Albany, N. Y., November 4-5. John Vates, secretary of the Charities, who will fill a similar position with the Red Cross committee, will likely attend the conference, too.
