

URGES NEW HIGH SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

City School Superintendent Suggests Way Out of Problem at Rotary Club Meeting; Has Changed Views During Last Two Years; For Separation of Sexes on Economic, but Not Moral Grounds

Says Tech Should Be Enlarged to Accommodate All the Boys, With Establishing of College Preparatory and Commercial Courses There; Declares Junior High Schools Are Coming Fast and Present System of Instruction Will Be Changed; Would Put Capitol Park Site Proposition Up to Voters

City School Superintendent's Plan of Solving High School Problem For Present and Future

- 1—Separation of sexes on economic grounds. 2—Enlargement of present Technical High School at an approximate cost, including site, of $300,000, to accommodate all high school boys. 3—Erection of new High School for Girls at approximate cost of $300,000 to $350,000, not including site and equipment. 4—Taking into consideration in this construction, present junior high school movement, thus reducing size and expense of buildings suggested for immediate needs. 5—Matter of a Capitol Park site for Girls' High School to be submitted to voters for their approval.

F. E. DOWNES

City School Superintendent, Who Suggests Way Out of High School Problem.

Probably the most important public utterance on the city's high school problem made by F. E. Downes, city school superintendent, in the last two years was given last night in a discussion of the question of new high school before the Rotary Club at a meeting in the Public Library.

In a comprehensive paper the school superintendent submitted to the Rotarians his own personal views of the problem, following a report from the Rotary Club's educational committee, of which Dr. Samuel Z. Shope is chairman.

One of the remarkable features of both the educational committee's report and the personal message of Dr. Downes was that the two were nearly similar, both urging the following measures:

Separation of the sexes on economic grounds. Erection of high school for girls on a site preferably facing Capitol Park extension. Talking into consideration the establishing of a junior high school system of instruction in Harrisburg. Dr. Downes, however, differed from

PRIVATE CONCERNS TO COMPETE WITH FEDERAL YARDS

Secretary Daniels Has Plan to Prevent Private Manufacturers From Reaping Harvests

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 20.—What the navy expects to do toward preventing private manufacturers from reaping excessive profits on the expenditure of hundreds of millions involved in the administration's national defense program, was outlined here to-day by Secretary Daniels in a speech at the North Carolina State Fair.

Mr. Daniels said his annual report to Congress would recommend legislation to enable the government to equip itself to build more naval craft, make its own armor plate and greatly extend its manufacturing plant.

"The government has invested many millions of dollars in navy yards," he said. "It is just as important to plan, and to plan wisely, for the future in school construction as it is with reference to parks and playgrounds, bridges, the laying out of streets, or any other field of municipal endeavor."

"Keeping in mind our general proposition, we cannot avoid discussing at some length at least three vital pertinent questions in relation to it, namely, co-education, the junior high school, and sites. We shall consider each of these in the order mentioned."

"I am one of the ninety-nine of every one hundred educators who have no objection to co-education, at least of all on moral grounds. I think I could offer convincing arguments in favor of it."
