Dedication of New Home of Good Will Fire Company Will Follow Pageant

Special to The Telegraph. West Fairview, Pa., Oct. 21.—Today marks the opening of West Fairview's big centennial and dedication celebration and to-night the events for the three day's program will be on full swing.

The old town, which has just reached its hundredth anniversary, is a mass of color. For the past several days expert decorators have been here and all of the big business houses and the new home of the Good Will Fire Company No. 1, which is the nucleus for the celebration, are covered with flags and bunting.

Inspect New Building. This afternoon the doors of the new firehouse were thrown open for inspection by citizens and visitors. This evening arrangements have been made to handle great crowds there.
