Some second-hand bargains Rev. Russell H. Conwell, president of Temple University of Philadelphia, speaking before the Young People's Union in connection with the Pennsylvania Baptist General Convention in session here. He declared that an aristrocracy of education now exists. "The whole system has come about through endowing our universities and colleges by the rich and they naturally dictate the policies and standards set by the State board." Rev. Conwell asserted. "Nowadays it doesn't depend upon what you know; it is how rich you are."
