OAK EXTRACT CO., LOSES COMPLAINT

Public Service Commission Holds That Former Rate Will Not Hold Now

STATE WORK DISCUSSED

State Officials at the Atlantic City Meeting—Governor Goes to Philadelphia

The Public Service Commission today dismissed the complaint of the Oak Extract Company, operating a plant at Newport Perry county, against the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, a case which involved the setting aside of a rate agreement made fifteen or sixteen years ago by the railroad company. The commission, in an opinion written by Commissioner Rilling, finds that the complainant had been "enjoying the benefit of a special and discriminating rate on all shipments made by respondent to its plant at Newport and that the present increase was made to comply with the report made by the Interstate Commerce Commission directing carriers to revise their rates so as to put the company on the same basis as other shippers under similar conditions."

In an opinion by Commissioner Pennsylvania railroad is directed to construct which it removed from the plant of the Kiff Milling Company, at Sunbury. The case involved ownership and use of a siding when the milling company bought the plant.

An order of reparation was refused in the Pittsburgh Steel Company case against the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie and Pennsylvania railroads.

VITAL PROBLEMS ARE CONSIDERED

The Social Question." He dealt particularly with the problem presented by modern socialism and claimed that the social question of the twentieth century is the child of the Church. The Church affirms that religion is the fundamental necessity of human life, said Dr. McDowell during his talk on "The Challenge of the Church to Men." "Too many are treating it as though it were an incidental rather than an essential of life; a luxury rather than a necessity; a mere external form of life rather than a vital principle in life. Men are not asking in our day what kind of religion is needed, but 'is any religion needed?'" The real denial of God in our day is not the denial of His existence, but the denial of His reign. The verdict of Scripture is that religion is essential, and the verdict of experience is that religion is indispensable. Man may exist without religion, but he cannot live without it.

Christianity Is Solution. "Christianity is the solution, and the only solution, of all our modern problems. Jesus Christ is the 'way, the truth and the life.' These are the three greatest needs of humanity. When properly understood and appreciated, Christianity meets these three fundamental needs. Our need just now is not a new gospel, but a better understanding of the old. It is the fearless application of its principles and ideals to the social as well as the individual life of our times. We are living in a day of great and numerous problems.

Fashionable to Criticize. "The Church is an adequate agency for applying the gospel of Christ to all the needs of the world. It is the fashion nowadays to criticize the Church and to suggest that it is no longer an adequate agency for the interpreting and applying Christianity to

Worthy Clothes Point the Way

Before we came into the field, $15.00 Clothing for men was given rather indifferent treatment.

Now, however, there's hardly a clothing window in town which does not feature prominently a "$15.00" price ticket.

We showed men that it was possible to buy here, at least, clothing of honest merit at their price.

And it wasn't very long before this store became the mecca for men who sought honest value for their money.

Just as we have increased the purchasing power of $15.00 with our "Worthy Fifteens," we have set a new mark in value-giving in our garments priced at $20 and $25.

the world. It has served as the cradle for Christianity, but now that we have reached an age of culture and refinement it is no longer needed and should be reverently laid aside and supplanted by a more modern institution. Without hesitation we affirm that the churches have done more than all other institutions to keep our land sweet and clean and to make it a fit place to live in. If religion in our day is to hold its high place and exert the power it should have in the life of the individual and the life of the community, it must have rootedness and it is for this rootedness that we plead this evening."

Gets First-Hand Views

The second meeting arranged under the auspices of the association was a popular meeting for men, where the men from the brotherhood and Bible classes of the Presbyterian churches gathered and filled the large auditorium of the church. The Shamrock Bible class attended the meeting in full uniform and with their band, over fifty men being in line. They were accompanied by the Rev. John M. Warden, chaplain, and members of the Bethany Chapel. The singing was led by the male chorus of the Covenant Presbyterian Brotherhood. Here Dr. McDowell's theme was "The Church and the Social Question." For years he has been his habit in the early part of September to go to New York city for a week and to attend every queer meeting of which he could hear.

"To make the social question of the present opportunity the Church must know the times," he said, in part. "By knowing the times we mean the relation of religion to Scripture; to-day it lies in the relation of religion to society, and hence the age has been called by Professor Peabody, of Harvard, the age of the social question."

"Before the social question can be solved it must be understood. Let it be noted at once that while there are many social problems, there is only one social question, and this question is primarily one in social philosophy rather than a program of philanthropy. It is an attitude of mind rather than an activity of the hand, as so many seem to think today."

Center of Interest Changes

"The center of interest is undoubtedly a changeable matter; it varies from generation to generation, and only a sturdy religion can stand the test of time. Fifty years ago the center of interest lay in the relation of religion to science; twenty years ago it lay in the relation of religion to Scripture; to-day it lies in the relation of religion to society, and hence the age has been called by Professor Peabody, of Harvard, the age of the social question."

Must Teach Sociology

"If the Church is to respond to the appeals of the times it must not ignore or evade the issue. It must teach not only a sound theology but also a sound and effective sociology; it must assert again that according to the teachings of Jesus Christ in the summary of the law sociology is one-half of religion and theology the other half. Both have to do with the same individual—theology with man in his relation to God and sociology with man in his relation to his fellow-man. There should never be any conflict or divorce between the two."

Child of the Church

"The social question of the twentieth century is the child of the Church. The impulse which gave it birth and the spirit which has nourished it throughout the centuries came directly from the teachings of Jesus Christ by his followers who constituted His church."

"Christianity is not only the primary cause of the consciousness of the social question, but it is the solution for it. This solution is found in the three elemental laws of Christianity. These are the law of regeneration, by which Christianity purifies the individual; the nature of man and ultimately the character of society; the law of righteousness, by which it purposes to right the relations of man to his fellow-man, and the law of love, by which Christianity gives the dynamic to obey the law of righteousness."

"Let it not be forgotten that the social question is one primarily of social thought. It is a philosophy before it is an activity. The modern socialists have seen this and have spent their time in molding the thought life of men; they have been social teachers rather than social workers in all our great centers."

"That Christianity is the only solution of the social question should be the deepest conviction of the Church, but only in the intelligent and fearless application of Christianity to the modern problems growing out of the social question can the Church make a full and adequate response to the appeal of the times."

Many Churches Represented

The Presbyterian Association, which is composed of the pastors and all officers of the eight Presbyterian churches of Harrisburg, together with the churches of Paxtang, Steelton, Middletown, Dauphin and Mechanicsburg, met in Covenant Presbyterian Church at 8:30 o'clock last evening and a church was presided over by J. Henry Spicer. After the business session the association partook of a banquet, served by the ladies of the church. The Rev. Dr. John McDowell, at one time pastor of the church at Steelton and more recently pastor of churches in Detroit and Newark and now at the Brown Memorial Church, Baltimore, a church that in recent years has been noted for the brilliancy of its ministers, having had in succession Maltrite D. Babcock, Rev. Timothy Stone and J. Ross Stevenson, was the principal speaker.

The Easiest Way To End Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips. By morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have. You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and sound and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.—Advertisement.

situation, they said, was not a military one, but a civil one, under the jurisdiction of Texas. Unless the governor should formally ask federal intervention, there is no authority for the establishment of a military zone and declaration of martial law. Many of the raiders live on the American side, officials believe. Army detachments guarding various towns may repel attacks, but cannot go beyond that without additional authority. As it is, the troops are acting beyond a rigid interpretation of their power in aiding in pursuit of raiders. War Department officials, however, will give every possible aid to the civil authorities in protecting towns and ranches.

DO THIS FIRST—YOU!

You know, and every physician knows, that when any sickness has passed, whether it be throat trouble, organic disturbances, contagious diseases, or even a severe cold, a relapse is feared, because sickness robs the system of Nature's resistance and leaves it subject to lingering germs. Drugs never build up a worn-out body—only food can do that, and the first thing to take after any sickness is the concentrated, blood-making oil-food in Scott's Emulsion, which feeds the tissues, benefits the blood and strengthens both lungs and throat.

Physicians prescribe Scott's Emulsion after sickness. Nurses everywhere advocate it. Scott's is pure medicinal food, without alcohol or drugs.
