TAYLOR PLANTING ON RIVER SLOPES

Park Commissioner Planning Pretty Effects For Embankments

Over five thousand plants have already been placed along the River Front slope south of the Market street bridge and a force of the Department of Parks began this morning to work along the slope from the Walnut street bridge northward. There is much to be done in the way of protecting the slope from damage during the winter through the washing of gulleys and many open spaces resulting from the operation during the building of the river steps will be covered with planting. It is proposed to conceal the new steps leading to the walk south of the Market street bridge and north of the Walnut street bridge by shrubbery.

The plaza at the pumping station, foot of North street, is already very attractive, the new grass having grown luxuriantly during the summer. The new planting has also taken root and gives promise of a fine showing next Spring.

City Commissioner Taylor, who has given personal attention to the development of the park system during the summer, proposes to grade the old driveway leading from Walnut street to the bottom of the slope so as to make of the drive an attractive walk. It will be hedged with barberry plant and the slope will be covered with matrimony vine and other planting.
