CHILD LABOR LAW BEING EXPLAINED

Vocational Education Bureau Is Taking the Plan to the Employers of the State

Two hundred thousand Pennsylvania employers are being sent copies of the regulations drafted by the vocational education bureau of the State's Department of Education in regard to the child labor law and the continuation schools. The publications will contain the policy of the State educational authorities in regard to the new act which is being explained to the manufacturers and other employers by special agents of the vocational bureau. Practically every community in the State will be visited before the end of the year and co-operation of school officials and employers arranged.

This will be the largest issue of publications to be made from the Capitol in years and the list of employers arranged by the State Bureau of Statistics which gets reports on the number of persons employed, on accidents and production, has been utilized.

The child's labor law becomes effective on January 1 and the preliminary work, which will consist largely of making employers familiar with what the educational authorities are trying to do, will be pushed. The special agents are now meeting employers in the cities and the larger boroughs.

Cadillac Is Prominent in Dixie Highway Run

Word has just been received in Detroit of the performance of the Cadillac Eight in the formal inspection tour of the Dixie Highway. The Cadillac is carrying Judge M. M. Allison of Chattanooga, Tenn., president of the Dixie Highway Association, and the report covers the run from Detroit to Chattanooga. This is the major portion of the run, as there remained only the States of Georgia and Florida to be traversed after leaving Tennessee.

The inspection tour started on Chicago October 9, but President Allison's car was previously driven from Detroit to Chicago. Up to the time they reached Chattanooga, the car had covered 1,192 miles, with a perfect score. It was one car of the motordaze that had made the entire distance under its own power.

Carl Fisher, of Indianapolis, is the father of the Dixie Highway idea. The highway connects with the Lincoln Highway at Chicago Heights, and traverses the States of Florida, Georgia, Tennessee, Kentucky, Indiana, Ohio, Illinois and Michigan. The distance of the tour from Chicago to Miami, Fla., is 1,800 miles. Participants in the inspection tour include officials of the Dixie Highway Association, in car of their own selection, and a number of other cars. Governor Edward F. Dunne, of Illinois, was the guest of honor on the first day's run, and before leaving Chicago, dedicated the new highway with appropriate ceremonies. Enthusiasm for the tourists and the highway ran high in every city and town on the route, and where roads were poor, plans were laid and promises made for their improvement within the course of the next year.

NEAL of the NAVY

By William Hamilton Osborne

(Copyright, 1915, by William Hamilton Osborne.)

The planter smiled and shrugged his shoulders. "The insurgents—what are they?" he exclaimed. "Nothing." He peered through his loophole. "Eye-yah," cried the planter, "who is the stranger there?"

Annette followed the direction of his finger. She shrank back.

"Scar-face!" she cried, in despair. "He knows how to load," said the planter, shaking his head soberly, "but at any rate we can hold out—until the Americans come."

"If our messenger got through," faltered Annette.

"Their messenger did get through. A quarter of an hour before a black had penetrated to the camp of the marines and had given the alarm—and the whole camp had started off on the double quick."

"Boys!" shouted Neal, pressing to the fore, "American women—don't forget—come on!"

In an upper room in the planter's house Mrs. Hardin shrank back in a corner with fear. Bullets were riddling the walls. Joe Welcher lay face down. Inez, with presence of mind, had placed a mattress against the wall and with Joe's aid had placed an upturned bed against the other. They were fairly safe. Besides that, just once, Inez had found a chance to wave to Hernandez, and Hernandez had kept the insurgents from firing on that corner of the house. Inez crept downstairs—looked about her—saw Annette and the planter in close conversation—then crept back again.

She plucked Joey Welcher by the sleeve. "Joe," she whispered, "go down—pass through the corridor by the kitchen—open the rear door."

"Not on your life," said Joe. "Do you think I want to die?"

"You'll die if you don't," she said. "Come, follow me!"

Once below, Inez cocked her revolver. "Do as I say," she commanded. Joe obeyed. With terror in his eyes he tore and wrenched at the fastenings of the rear-most passageway. Finally he stepped back. "She's unlocked," he exclaimed. Inez, unafraid, stepped forward, opened wide the door and beckoned. It was a signal. Hernandez saw it and bounded forward.

"Follow me, insurgents," he commanded.

A hundred men obeyed. With a shout they dashed into the huge living room on the ground floor—with another shout they fired a volley into the backs of the defenders. The planter, drawing a bead on an insurgent without, was seized suddenly from behind, gagged and bound. A strong pair of arms seized Annette and lifted her from the floor and bore her, screaming, from the room.

Three minutes later she was thrown into a far room in a secluded corner of the house. Into the same room were thrown Inez and Mrs. Hardin and Joe Welcher.

With a sudden wrench Annette tore loose a board that barricaded the window. Then her eyes brightened. "Look!" she cried. "The marines—they come. Neal! Neal!"

Her shout was not heard, of course, but it was accompanied with the wave of a white handkerchief. Neal, at the head of the squad, saw it—and the squad pressed forward at double speed.

Below, among the insurgents, Annette could hear the panic.

"The Americans—the Americans—flee!"

Neal reached the house—saw who waved the kerchief. With a sudden bound he leaped upon an arbor, scrambled and crawled somehow—with some naval trick—up the face of the house, rammed in the barricade and leaped into the room.

"Annette," he cried.

But at that instant the door of the room was burst open and Hernandez, with Ponto and the Brute and a dozen insurgents, darted in.

"Take everybody here—including him," commanded Hernandez. "Take them—you know where. But remember—the women are mine, not yours."

Neal fought like a tiger, but without success. In five minutes or less the captives, Neal and Annette included, were led through dark passageways to some underground corridor. They were driven on and on—they knew not where.

An hour later the squad of marines reported to their officer.

"We can't find a woman on the place, except the blacks," they said.

"Are we all here?" queried the officer, anxious for his men. "Just call the roll and see."

"All here," returned a marine, "but no, not all here. There's one missing—Gunner Hardin, sir."

The officer nodded. "We'll find Gunner Hardin if it takes a leg," he said (TO BE CONTINUED.)
