Case of Chronic Constipation Yields to Mild Laxative Compound

Writing from The House of the Good Shepherd, at Sunnyside Ave., and 50th St., Seattle, where she is the guest of her life-long friend the Reverend Mother, Mrs. Mary Austin, widow of a wealthy San Franciscan, who lost everything in the fire in 1906, says she experienced speedy relief from the use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and that she found this gentle, pleasant-tasting laxative more effective than several doses of castor oil.

offective than several doses of castor oil.

The active principles of certain laxative herbs are combined in Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin to act on the eliminative organs in an easy, natural way, without griping or other discomfort. Its freedom from opiate or narcotic drug of every description, combined with its gentle action and positive effect, make it the ideal laxative for family use. Druggists everywhere sell it for fifty cents a bottle.

A bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin should be in every home for Ill.

A door clanged to behind him was locked and bolted. A voice assailed his ears.

"Senor," said this voice, "if you would be relieved of bonds and blinds, approach me."

Neal-not without apprehension started up and staggered in the di-rection of the voice. A hand swung him about. Upon his head and wrists he felt the pressure of cold steel—the back of a sheath knife. His bonds fell at his feet. He swung about, stretched his arms and looked. Grinning sardonically at him through the bars was the face of Hernandez and behind Hernandez with blinking eyes

"We keep you merely for safety, senor." said Hernandez.

He swung on his heel, thrust the brute out of sight and disappeared. Neal noted now that he was confined in a stone cell—dingy, dirty, miserable. He jumped at once to the correct conclusion. This was a fort.

Almost at the same time there was a rattle at the door of Annette's dungeon cell. She ceased her tapping suddenly and turned. The brute was entering-also with refreshments, such as they were.

Instead of disposing of these at once, he strode forward, his huge body towering above her, and held them out to her with a strange gleam in his eyes. She took the food and drink and laid them down upon the bench, staring at the brute the while. The huge anomaly took this as an invitation. He shambled closer toward her, never once removing his glance from her up turned wondering face. Then with-out warning he thrust forth a hand and stroked her hair.

Annette was startled. Yet there was so much docility in the expression of this half man, half animal, that she instinctively submitted to his touch And there was something else-some thing struggling for expression in

A Washington dispatch says: "Although several cities are expected to offer inducements for the convention, it is said by leading Republicans who are in Washington that Chicago, in all probability, again will be selected by the committee."

The Democratic national committee will meet in Washington either the week before the Republican committee or a week later. Cities aspiring for the Democratic gathering already have representatives on the ground. Postmaster Kasting, of Buffalo, N. Y., who is in Washington, believes Buffalo will capture the gathering, despite the fact that Chicago, St. Louis, Omaha and Dallas are after it. Significance is attached to the campaign of Dallas, whose representative has deposited a certified check for $100,000 with the chairman of the committee.
