To Remove Unsightly Hairs, And Other Aids to Beauty

Except the electric needle, there is absolutely no more sure and painless way to get rid of unsightly hairs and that it to dissolve them. Pastes, powders and razors only shave them off and in time they are as thick and as stubbly as a man's beard. Fashions now demand that neck, arms and armpits be devoid of hairs. Any woman can get rid of these unsightly blemishes in a few minutes if she will but get from her druggist one ounce of simple Sulfo solution and apply to the hairy places. It will take just about three minutes to dissolve the hairs away entirely, leaving the skin soft and white without a scar or irritation of any kind.

Blackheads are another of the unsightly blemishes that many women are troubled with. Squeezing and pinching do no good and leave the skin full of holes. The only way to get rid of the pesky things is to dissolve them. Get a little powdered borax from your druggist, sprinkle a little on a hot, wet sponge and rub briskly over the blackheads; in about a minute they will be entirely dissolved, leaving the skin soft and smooth without a mark of any kind.

Roughness and redness of the hands can very easily be overcome and the skin left soft and velvety by using at night the following simple cream lotion: dissolve one ounce of zintone in a pint of hot water. This makes a beautiful white satiny cream and if used liberally, will soon change a rough, red, spotted skin into one of velvety, peach-like loveliness.

MADAME MELBA

RADIANT AS EVER

Every Available Seat Filled at Concert in Orpheum Theater Last Night

In spite of delay and vexing interruptions at the beginning, enthusiasm ran high last night at the Orpheum Theater, where a concert of considerable worth was given to an audience that filled every available seat. The ushers persisted in showing late comers to their seats after the performance had begun, with the result that the entire first number was marred for the listener, and the artists visibly annoyed and perplexed at the seeming lack of regard for artist and audience.

Miss Beatrice Harrison opened the program with Boccherini's Sonata in A Major. It is a delightful and quaint, charming, graceful and melodious; with the Handelian flavor. Miss Harrison is a first class artist. She has no limitations musically. She might possibly lack the physical strength for the bigger and more trying works. She cuddles her 'cello, and forgets her audience. She plays to herself—and rocks and sighs and shakes her pretty black curls, and her 'cello answers back with wonderful, rich velvety phrases, fine singing tone and clear technique. A touch of the far East was afforded in the original and colorful Oriental piece of Wagner number; was done with fine breadth and richness of tone, so well played indeed that the audience would not let her depart until she had responded with 'cello's "Songs My Mother Taught Me."

Robert Parker appeared three times on the program and displayed a voice of ample volume and compass. Mr. Parker, however, has a tendency to force things, with the result that his upper voice is not securely nor musically handled. The effects of this forcing was not only apparent in his larger offerings but also in the lovely Strauss number "Dream in the Twilight," a straying from the pitch detracted from an otherwise fine interpretation. His most successful effort on the whole was the Tschakowsky number which he delivered with abandon and verve. He added the rollicking "Off to Philadelphia," which found great favor with the audience.

Madame Melba's voice was radiant and charming as ever and received a tremendous and hearty greeting when she appeared for her opening number the mad scene from "Hannibal." The audience refused to be entertained by the singer's technique in this trying number is still impeccable—marvelous, and her voice still contains much of the former gold; here and there the luster was dimmed, and times we felt the effort with her. Then again, French is a language (especially when sung by those who have had to acquire it) that has a tendency to make the voice rather top heavy with nasal resonance. In the two Puccini numbers, sung in Italian, this was startlingly illustrated, as here the singer's voice took on the glorious golden hue so dear to the hearts of our audiences. Fine emotional warmth, pure legato, well defined and proportioned nuances, together with histrionic resources made these two numbers great successes and pleasures. Her numbers were excellently sung, and the Arditi waltz song—one of his best—was given with such perfect technique and unction that the audience was not only delighted but recalled so many times during the evening that we lost count. She was generous with encores and yet the audience would have liked to hear more, and this was the greatest compliment a singer could receive.

Frank St. Leger was at the piano. He was a busy man, assisting with every number. He added very much to the artistic success and pleasure of the evening, because he gave fine support and played delightfully.

The audience manifested musical appreciation at all times and went home happy.

JOHN W. PHILLIPS.

ENTERTAINED AT DINNER

Prior to the Melba concert last evening Mrs. Marlin E. Olmsted entertained at dinner at Cedar Cliff Farms. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Sadler, of Carlisle, Mr. and Mrs. J. V. W. Reynolds and Casper Dull.

Catarrh Germs Breed by Millions in Air Passages of Nose and Throat. Just One Way to Drive Them

To stop catarrh for good you must drive from your system the germs that cause catarrh and that are now feeling and growing fat upon the swollen, inflamed mucous membranes of your nose and throat.

A leading means of destroying catarrh germs and overcoming catarrh has long been recognized by physicians in the well known oil of Hyomei (pronounced High-o-mei) and is now a very simple matter for any catarrh sufferer to use it with splendid results at home by breathing its air through a little hard rubber inhaling device which has a fine opening through which you draw the oil. "MY BABY GIRL IS A PICTURE OF HEALTH"

"Brought Up" on Father John's Medicine, which Cured Her of a Terrible Cough and Built Her Up.

"My little daughter is certainly a picture of health. She had a serious attack of lung trouble, with a terrible cough. After trying a doctor's medicine, which did very little good, we gave her Father John's Medicine, with the pleasing result that she was soon well, and we know that Father John's Medicine will keep her well." (Signed) G. O. Krogstad, Lanesboro, Minn.

Father John's Medicine is a safe medicine for children as well as older folks, because it contains no alcohol or dangerous drugs, in any form, but strengthens and builds up the whole system because it is made of pure and wholesome nourishing ingredients.—Advertisement.
