"CAL" C. MILLER RETIRES MONDAY

Popular Passenger Engineer on Middle Division Reaches Age Limit

CALVIN C. MILLER Passenger Engineer Who Ends Active Service Sunday

Calvin C. Miller, 2340 North Sixth street, passenger engineer on the Mid-

Combing Won't Rid Hair of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad will end his active duties Sunday. He retires Monday, November 1, by his own request. Engineer Miller passed his sixty-fifth milestone and believes he has earned a rest. For forty-two years the Pennsylvania Railroad Company has found this employee's record faultless.

Engineers Figure on Next Year's Requirements

Engineers of the Pennsylvania Railroad are already figuring on rail requirements for 1916, and because of the big business being handled by the steel companies and the fact that they are now booked well ahead, it is expected that the Pennsylvania will make known its requirements at an early date and make reservations for its rollings.

RAILROAD NOTES

Another shipment of cars for Russia, built at Berwick, passed through Harrisburg yesterday. There were 150 car loads of material. Pennsylvania railroad machinists are wearing large goggles as a protection to the eyes. The Philadelphia and Reading Railway Company has ordered thirty large locomotives of the 1700 class. They will be built at the Baldwin plant and will be run between Harrisburg and Reading, and Pottsville and Reading.

Branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad Mutual Beneficial Association will be held Monday night at Chestnut street hall. A large class of new members will be admitted.
