

Eat a Square Meal and Not Fear Indigestion

There are hundreds of people in Harrisburg who were not the least bit surprised when they read a while ago that druggists are now selling Mi-o-na on a guarantee to refund the money in case it did not relieve. This remarkable dyspepsia remedy has proved it will relieve the worst case of indigestion, headache, dizziness, or the general played-out condition that afflicts every one suffering with stomach trouble. Mi-o-na does not simply relieve, it aims to cure.

There is hardly a druggist but can tell you of many well-known people in the city who this remedy has restored to health, often after they have tried many other methods of treatment with little or no benefit. No one really believes no other dyspepsia remedy has made so large a percentage of cures as Mi-o-na. It is so laudable that dealers who have sold it for years stand ready to refund the price to any customer whom it does not help.

The best kind of advertising is the praise of a pleased customer, and there are hundreds to-day praising Mi-o-na because it has done for them what it is advertised to do. A few months ago they could eat nothing without wondering what the result would be. Since using Mi-o-na, they eat what they want and when they want with no fear of suffering. This medicine comes in the form of a tablet and is very pleasant to take. It speeds up and permanently relieves almost all forms of stomach trouble and is the only one sold under a positive guarantee without any restriction. It refunds the money if it does not relieve. You can get Mi-o-na on this basis from H. C. Kennedy, or any leading druggist in Harrisburg.—Advertisement.

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

If Mixed With Sulphur It Darkens So Evenly That It Cannot Be Discovered

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray, streaked and looks dry, wispy and scraggy, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold. Don't bother to procure the tonic; you can get from any drug store a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," ready to use. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color, thickness and luster of your hair and remove dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes lustrous and abundant.—Advertisement.

JEHOSHEBA SAVES KING FROM DEATH

Joash Came From Stock Which Was Mighty Poor; Inaugurated Better Era

WOMAN CROWNED HIM

International Sunday School Lesson For Oct. 31 Is "The Boy Joash Crowned King"

(By William T. Ellis)

The new is ever wrapped up in the old; and the old repeats itself in the new. To-day is yesterday come again to life. Because they mirror the essential realities of our own day, these stories of Bible times are closely studied by the Sunday School millions week by week. The intrinsic facts of the case—the who's who among the kings and counselors and warriors—are not of great importance. It is poor pedagogy and bare piety that would require the memorizing of all the names of the Jewish rulers. Even the tangle of kings and queens who pass before us in the present lesson cannot claim very much attention.

Clear and distinct two figures stand forth as types, and of eternally contemporaneous interest. The first is a woman, Jehosheba, wife of the high priest, who saved the boy Joash, who became king, from massacre; and the other is the baby prince himself. All others are but background, for our present purpose.

A Bad Family Line

Like many another youth of our own day, whom the scientists would foredoom to failure, because his heredity is bad, Joash came from stock which, in the immediate past, was mighty poor. His grandmother was the wicked queen Athaliah, daughter of the infamous Jezebel, wife of Ahab, the king who gave Elijah so much trouble.

Athaliah had slain all the members of the royal family whom she could find, that she herself might sit supreme upon the throne of Judah. We shrink from telling the story of the Athaliahs and Jezebels to youth, but they need to know, in preparation for life, that there are such women in the world. More than one boy has come to harm because he supposed that all women were as good as his mother. Thank God, most of them are. But to "see life whole and see it true" we have to reckon with the bad as well as with the good. It does not do to leave the Ahab and Jezebels and Athaliahs out of our reckoning.

A few weeks ago some teachers of this lesson might have said, in contemplation of the bloodthirstiness and massacres of this period, that the world has outgrown such cruelties; they belonged to the dark ages. Now, while we write, the soil of the Bible lands is being reddened with the blood of hundreds of thousands of Christian Armenians, slain by the Moslems. This is the worst persecution in the history of the Christian church. The "enlightened" Young Turk leaders, educated in Berlin and Paris, are sponsors for atrocities worse than any of the bloody deeds of Abdul Hamid's reign. We hear of Turkish women shooting down Christians from sheer blood-lust, and of shepherds on the plains shooting any Armenians who escaped. Evidently it takes something more than the mere passage of years to deliver the human race from cruelty and savagery.

Good Branches of a Bad Tree

There is another woman in the story besides Athaliah. Her own daughter, Jehosheba, was as good as her mother was bad. Like her little nephew, Joash, she seemed to revert to her noble forebears—Tuth and David and Solomon—for her qualities. She became the wife of Jehoiada, the high priest, and had no part in the bloody politics of the palace.

If we wonder at the badness of some women, what shall we say about the goodness of others, who, with every temptation, by blood and environment to go wrong, still develop only the qualities of purity, strength and sweetness? Only the angels know the struggle that many girls and women, especially out in the workaday world, have to retain their noblest womanhood. They are the saviours of society. In such fashion, Jehosheba stood, in a terrible time, for the divine ideals of justice and mercy.

Her way of serving God and her country was by taking care of a baby boy. We rejoice in all the new opportunities for noble self-expression open to women but, after all, her greatest work is the training of a child. If ever she turns aside from that, it will be a black day for her and for the race. When the carnival of cruelty was at its height, and Athaliah was slaying all who had royal blood in their veins, Jehosheba surreptitiously got possession of the baby prince Joash, only one year old. The eternal mother instinct in her heart warmed to the helpless infant, and at the risk of her life, she hid the babe and his nurse for six years in one of the remote rooms of the temple. I wonder how many Armenian babies will be saved from the nation-wide slaughter because some Turkish women are better mothers than they are Moslems? Some, surely.

The Boy For a Crown

All the hopes of a nation were staked on the child Joash. Even after he was crowned there were wisecracks who wagged their heads ominously and cried, "Blood will tell, and his blood is bad." These croakers took short views and reckoned only with physical strains. But their solicitude was natural. We look about us at the spoiled children of parents who themselves flout all higher laws, and we wonder. Many a man is piling up millions for sons who have not been fitted, by heredity into training, to inherit such responsibilities. I have in mind a boy whose blood was of the best, but who, inheriting a million in boyhood, and over-indulged, became a wastrel and a grief to his family. Society as a whole has no greater problem than this one of what our boys and girls are to become. The increased attention paid to the Sunday School, and to the public schools, shows how sensible we are of that truth. It is more important to produce a generation of noble men and women than it is to produce vast material wealth. So let us reserve our highest awards for those who have our Joashes in their keeping.

"Say, boys, did you ever stop to think that we are the coming men? That we've only a few short years to prepare ourselves for the work, and then the fate of the world will rest in their hands. Of those who are boys to-day? I tell you it makes a fellow feel that he wants to be armed for the fray! We cannot afford to hamper ourselves

With habits that work us harm; We need to be true of head and heart. With a steady, strong right arm; We need to be men—real, honest men. With a love of life and its joys, and ever ready to stand for the right; And in order to do that, boys, we've got to begin right now, or else—No, I am not 'Preacher Ben.' And don't let's forget in our work or our play That we are the coming men!"

A good mother and a godly training can smash into smithereens all the bad blood ever transmitted. God sends nobody into the world with a ball and chain to his ankle. As Henry Van Dyke says, "There are many potential men in every man, and which of them is to emerge, he chooses for himself by a thousand silent, moral preferences." One living Jehosheba, guiding a boy in the house and law of God, can outweigh fifty Jezebels and Athaliahs. The average public school teacher has more real influence in the world than the bejeweled "society leader," whose picture adorns the newspapers. The godly woman whose gentle hands are now shaping the plastic souls of youth are the best allies that God and posterity have on earth to-day.
