NEW YORK SYMPHONY CONCERT

In only sixteen cities of the whole country this year will Mischa Elman appear in concert with the New York Symphony Orchestra, Walter Damrosch conductor, and this city is fortunate to be one of those selected. The concert will give people of the city an opportunity of hearing a world-renowned violinist together with what many regard as the best orchestra in the country on the same evening at the cost of one admission. Better still, when these two attractions appear together here, on the night of November 11, in Chestnut Street Auditorium, the size of the auditorium will permit of the sale of many seats at popular prices.

Damrosch is one of the most eminent conductors in the world and the New York Symphony orchestra has the distinction of playing more concerts a year than any other organization of the kind in America.

Elman is unquestionably the genius of the present age among instrumentalists. His European performances amazed the critics of Berlin, Petrograd, London and other European musical centers. A mere youth of sixteen, Elman played with a maturity and independence of conception almost unbelievable. He has steadily improved with the years until to-day his tone is limpid, full-blooded and alluring and he is known wherever the violin is played as a master of the instrument. He will bring with him to this city two famous Strads, which alone might draw to hear him any lover of the violin.—Adv.

MAKING CIVILIAN SAILORS

By Frederic J. Haskin

Flores states had grown to a strength of about 4,000. When volunteers were called for from among these organizations there were more than 4,000 men who responded, this being possible on account of the return of many men who had left the service.

There were 856 volunteer naval officers in the Spanish American War who had been trained in the naval militia. These officers and men performed very important service. Many of them went direct to the fighting ships of the fleet. Many others served in the coast guard and signal corps. Numbers of yachts and other vessels were converted into war craft and cruised up and down the coasts. These vessels were usually manned by naval militiamen with a single officer from the regular service. There were ten monitors in this auxiliary force, besides ten yachts, five tugs and 41 other vessels. Their patrol of the coasts and mine fields was an effective protection.

This showing in the Spanish American War placed the naval militia on its feet. The following year there were about 7,000 officers and men in this service. The federal government was loaning naval officers for their drilling, and asking appropriations from which to provide them with uniforms, guns and ammunition.

This year the Navy Department has a total of $459,000 that it is authorized to spend on the naval militia. This is considerably augmented by State funds which still appear unappropriated for the aid of these establishments.

Full Equipment Federal money is used, in the first place, for the purchase of uniforms. Each man is provided with the regular army rifle and 100 rounds of ammunition. Officers are given revolvers and "practice" guns. Then every naval reserve armory must have its loading machines. These contrivances are dummies which represent the big guns aboard ship. These big guns require crews of different sizes ranging from three to twenty. Their loading is a matter of team work and requires a great deal of drilling before the crews become proficient.

But the final event of the year, for which the federal government now pays, is the annual cruise. Every organization in every State has a few weeks aboard ship each year. While officers and privates are on this cruise they receive the same compensation that is paid to men of similar rank in the regular army. If their service requires any travel, they likewise receive transportation such as naval officers and men are given. A still more interesting phase of the naval militia work is the development of the aero corps. The Aero Club of America has arranged to co-operate directly with different States and furnish volunteer aviators, mechanics and machines. New York already has its corps established. The District of Columbia has commissioned an aviation officer, who is an active aviator, and he is starting the development of a corps. Cleveland and Chicago likewise will soon have men able to take to the air and furnish the eyes that have now become so necessary in war. As the United States is particularly lacking in aviators, it is held that this branch of the naval militia will be of specially valuable service in time of need.

Many Children Suffer From Kidney Trouble

Three years ago my little girl, Angela, was taken sick with scarlet fever and later dropsy set in; her face and limbs swelled and her eyes puffed. A leading physician here at the time, treated her without the slightest success. A sample of your Swamp-Root having been left at the house at the time, I resolved to try it, and as it agreed with her stomach I continued using it with gratifying results. The inflammation began to subside after she had taken the first fifty-cent bottle, and after she took two large bottles she was pronounced cured by the doctor and has been in good health ever since. The doctor came to see her every day and examined her every second day until he pronounced her kidneys in perfect condition. Now that the doctor was under the impression that I was giving my girl his medicine, but as his medicine had failed to do a bit of good, and desiring not to offend him, I did not tell him I was giving her Swamp-Root and he did not know the difference. I did not use one drop of his medicine after I started my girl on Swamp-Root and have always felt that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root saved my girl's life, for which I am grateful. I cannot praise it too highly.

Very truly,
MRS. MARY BYRNE,

State of New Jersey,
County of Middlesex.

Mrs. Mary Byrne, being duly sworn by me according to law, on her oath saith that the above statement made by me is just and true.

Everyone Should Drink Hot Water in the Morning

Wash away all the stomach, liver, and bowel poisons before breakfast.

To feel your best day in and day out, to feel clean inside; no sour bile to coat your tongue and sicken your breath or dull your head; no constipation, bilious attacks, sick headache, colds, rheumatism or gas; no acid stomach; you must bathe on the inside like you bathe outside. This is vastly more important, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do, says a well-known physician.

To keep these poisons and toxins well flushed from your stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, drink before breakfast each day a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will cleanse, purify and freshen the entire alimentary tract before putting more food into the stomach.

Get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from your pharmacist. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless, except a sourish twinge which is not unpleasant. Drink phosphated hot water every morning to rid your system of these vile poisons and toxins; also to prevent their formation.

To feel like young folks feel; like you felt before your blood, nerves and muscles became saturated with an accumulation of body poisons, begin this treatment, and above all, keep it up! As soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and purifying, so limestone phosphate and hot water before breakfast act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.—Adv.
