Horse Runs Away When Driver Shoots Wild Turkey

New Germantown, Pa., Nov. 4.—Horse Valley, in Toboyn township, is very narrow, lying between the Tuscarora mountain on the north-west and the Conococheague on the south-east, and the fields slope both ways from the creek, the only nearly level place in the valley. Wild turkeys are often seen near the buildings coming down from the mountains on both sides of the valley. Several days ago Mr. and Mrs. William Wilson, whose daughter, Mrs. Joseph Darling, lives in the valley, paid her a visit. Mr. Wilson taking his gun with him, in driving along the road a flock of turkeys was seen near the road and Mr. Wilson jumped out of the buggy and fired at a large gobbler. The crack of the gun frightened the horse and he ran away, throwing Mrs. Wilson out, severely bruising her.
