AT THE MAJESTIC
An all new vaudeville bill was uncovered at the Majestic yesterday with one exception and this is the exciting spectacle, "A Mile a Minute," which seemed a very welcome addition to the bill, for its title clever playing and unusual excitement is well known to all. But to Minerva Courtney and company, who offer something crisply new and clever. In particular, is well deserving of holding the coveted position. Brent Hayes, the popular banjoist, is here with a splendid program that pleased yesterday's audience greatly. Mr. Hayes was accompanied by Orpheum patrons in sea-songs past and the was given a fine reception as soon as he made his appearance. The Dancing Mars, classic dancer and vaudeville star of unusual brilliancy and they lend their talents to this same offering. Their dances are beautifully executed. Dickinson and Deacon, clever couple in comedy, song and patter, complete the roster.—Advertisement.

"THE RAVEN" AT THE COLONIAL
A moving picture of much artistic value will be the attraction at the Colonial Theater to-day and to-morrow. The fact that "The Raven" is the subject, coupled with the fact that Mr. Walthall will interpret the role, is a combination that should appeal to every lover of the artistic. The picturization of "The Raven" is while not entirely devoted to the poem, even goes a step better and shows the story and the life of the poet. The American writer meanwhile weaving the poem into the narrative. As lovers of the better theater will be well aware—"The Raven" is a weird, melancholy collection of verses, which truly indicate a gloomy and gloomy temperament of the great poet. It is an epitome of Poe's life, a tragedy from beginning to end. The poet is clearly the devotion he had for his lost wife. "The Raven" is said to be the most otherworldly of the poet's fascinating and soul-stirring photo tragedy of the year.—Advertisement.

PAULINE FREDERICK IN "ZAZA" TO-DAY AND TO-MORROW AT THE REGENT

To-day and to-morrow Charles Frohman presents the screen's foremost emotional artist, Pauline Frederick, in a superb photo production of the dramatic sensation of the century, "Zaza," on the Paramount program at the Regent.
In "Zaza" we see revealed the soul of the unconventional female, whether of France or anywhere else. To Zaza love is supreme—marriage an incident. The ideal of a legal union comes to her only when her thoughts are turned in that direction by the approaching marriage of a friend. Her affairs of the heart are limited to one man; there was no predecessor and there can be no successor. That the one man, as is discovered in due course, is married constitutes the tragedy of the story. It is this discovery that furnishes the groundwork for the pathos that marks the latter half of the play. Monday and Tuesday—The Oliver Morosco Company presents Cyril Mauciel in "Peer Gynt," a dramatic series of famous love episodes by Henrik Ibsen. The thrilling life story of the Norwegian's most human hero.—Adv.

FINE EXHIBIT AT BIG CONFERENCE

State Highway Department Will Show Just What It Has Been Doing on Roads

Plans for the Third Pennsylvania Industrial and Public Welfare Conference to be held in this city next week have been completed and particular interest attaches to the Exhibit to be held in connection with the conference. This exhibit is under the supervision of the Engineers' Society of Pennsylvania and it is definitely known that it will surpass all previous exhibits of the kind.
One of the most interesting displays to be made will be that of the State Highway Department which has a large booth in the car barn where the exhibit is to be held. Models of the different kinds of highways will be shown and the results of laboratory tests of road materials such as stone, brick, cement and the various bituminous materials will be exhibited. Particularly instructive will be the photographic section which will contain pictures of the various types of roadway before, during and after construction as well as the methods of treating hard-surfaced roads to prevent their disintegration. A large map of Pennsylvania, showing the State Highway System and the operation of the Maintenance Division, will form another feature of the display. Perhaps the most instructive exhibit will be that of a highway patrolman showing his equipment for the repair of highways.
Bulletins of the Bureau of Township Highways and "Pennsylvania Highway News," the official publication of the Department will be distributed and an official of the State Highway Department will be on duty at the booth at all times to answer questions and to explain the methods of road work.

To Investigate Conditions in Olivet Presbyterian

Another special meeting of the Carlisle Presbytery will be called probably early next January, to receive the report of a committee appointed yesterday to investigate spiritual conditions in the Olivet Presbyterian Church, Derry and Kittanning streets.
Recently the present pastor, the Rev. William O. Yates, handed in his resignation, which was accepted by the congregation. Yesterday members of the Carlisle Presbytery, at a special session in Pine Street Presbyterian Church, accepted the resignation to become effective April 1, 1916. It was decided to appoint a committee to investigate conditions in the church. The committee includes: The Rev. George Fulton, of Mechanicsburg; the Rev. Dr. Thomas C. McCarroll, of Middletown; the Rev. Robert F. Stirling, of Dauphin; Professor L. E. McGinnis, of Steelton, and William H. Shepler, of Carlisle.
The report must be submitted not later than January 1, according to instructions given yesterday, and the meeting of the Presbytery will be called by the Rev. E. E. Curtis, pastor of Westminster Presbyterian Church, the moderator.

More Chance For Girls in Mercantile Fields Than in Offices Says Expert

Claiming that there are more opportunities for working girls in mercantile fields than in offices, Mrs. Lucinda W. Prince, of Boston, spoke on "Teaching Salesmanship in the Schools," before a large audience in the Technical High School last evening.
"The fallacy that it is more 'genteel' for girls to work in an office than in a store is giving way," said the speaker. She thoroughly discussed the advantages of a course of salesmanship in the continuation schools soon to be opened in this State with the enforcement of the Child Labor Law. "The teaching of merchandising methods is also of benefit to girls, who have no intention of working in stores, and in Boston girls from well-to-do families have become expert shoppers by taking the course," she said.

CAPITOL GETS A BATH
Washington Firemen in Annual Task of Cleaning Building
By Associated Press
Washington, D. C., Nov. 12.—Local firemen to-day began the annual task of giving the Capitol a bath. A fire engine was taken to the Capitol grounds and all day played a stream of water against the marble and sandstone walls to remove the dust of summer. Sparrow nests by the score were knocked out of the cornices by the force of the water.

BUSY TIMES AT COLUMBIA
