Thin Folks Who Would Increase Weight

SIMPLE DIRECTIONS EASY TO FOLLOW

Thin men and women—that big, hearty, filling dinner you ate last night. What became of all the fat-producing nourishment it contained? You haven't gained in weight one ounce. That food passed from your body like unburned coal through an open grate. The material was there, but your food doesn't work and stick, and the plain truth is you hardly get enough nourishment from your meals to pay for the cost of cooking. This is true of thin folks the world over. Your nutritive organs, your functions of assimilation are sadly out of gear and need reconstruction. If every way you've tried to put on weight has failed try these simple directions. Cut out everything but the meals you are eating now and eat with every one of those single Sargol tablets. In two weeks note your weight. Sargol does not itself make fat but mixing with your food its purpose is to help the digestive organs turn the fats, sugars and starches of what you have eaten, into rich, ripe fat producing nourishment for the tissues and blood—prepare it in an easily assimilated form which the blood can readily accept. A great deal of this nourishment now passes from thin people's bodies as waste. Sargol is designed to stop the waste and make the fat producing contents of the very same meals you are eating now develop pounds and pounds of healthy flesh between your skin and bones. Sargol is non-injurious, pleasant, efficient and inexpensive. Geo. A. Gargas and other leading druggists are authorized to sell it in large boxes—forty tablets to a package—on a guarantee of weight increase or money back.—Adv.

HEAD OF MUMMY IS HER HOODOO

Explorer's Wife Feels Sure it Caused Death of Husband and Son

GIVES ROYAL RELIC AWAY

Refuses to Have Cranium of Queen, Which Caused Evil Spell Around

Special to The Telegraph.
Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 16. — The 3000-year-old mummified head of Queen Hatshepsut, or Hatasu, an Egyptian queen of the line of Thothmes, with gleaming agate eyes twinkling malevolently under wrappings, which is believed to have brought a curse on the violators of her tomb, was sent to the Carnegie Museum yesterday.

The donor, Mrs. Jere Bauman, of New Castle, whose husband brought the head from Egypt seven years ago, declared today that she has sent the gruesome relic of the Nile to museum to break the spell which she says she believes had some bearing on the death of her son, J. Howard Bauman, aged 4 and more recently that of her husband, Jere Bauman, on October 21.

Jewels For Eyes
The royal head, believed so potent of evil, is about five pounds in weight and is covered with the brown-black canvas wrappings of Egyptian mummies, glued tight to the flesh. An aperture in the covering discloses a section of the skull, and other openings give a glimpse of what seem to be ages in the deep eye sockets, as if the eyeballs had been replaced with jewels.

In September, 1908, the head of Queen Hatshepsut was unearthed by Mr. Bauman while with an exploring party among the tombs of the Egyptian kings and queens in the Libyan Hills. Mr. Bauman and his wife were traveling that summer in the Near East, Egypt and Northern Africa.

"Tradition tells us that removing a body from its native soil and tomb will bring ruin to the holder," said Mrs. Bauman today. "It certainly seems to have worked its evil spell here."

SECESSIONIST WAR ART
"Paris has answered in no uncertain terms," says Cartoons Magazine, "the question 'What kind of art will be born of the war?' Georges Scott, J. Simont, Sabattier, and others, have been painting history as it was never painted before. The Munich artists are now answering the question in their own way.

"Particularly effective are some of the sketches and paintings of the younger 'secessionists' who profess to paint things as they see them. Much of their work is daintily symbolical. As visionary as the daydream of a poet is 'Thor's Shadow,' one of Emil Pottner's drawings. The foamy clouds resolve themselves into a war chariot driven through the sky by mighty steeds, whose course is directed by the war god."

PREFER SENTIMENT TO HATRED
Picture post cards of the war, which probably reflect popular feeling fairly well, are not quite so merry as in the early days. A year ago caricatures of the kaiser were in great demand, but now the cards that sell best are of a sentimental or domestic type. The kaiser still appears in various characters—as a dachshund on crutches, a guy, a Zeppelin gasbag, a burglar, and, in company with the crown prince, as a bad pear—but such cards are no longer in conspicuous positions in shop windows. The kaiser, it seems, can no longer be relied on as the chief stock-in-trade of the picture post card artist. The British public—always eager for change—is apparently losing interest in him.—Cartoons Magazine.

Princess Margrethe of Denmark

Shall Present Conditions Continue?

Beginning tomorrow, this company will publish a series of daily articles on the subject of jitney-regulation.

That these articles were not published at an earlier date is due to the company's desire not to have the question become involved in any sense as a political issue in the campaign just closed.

The matter has nothing to do with politics—it is a business problem pure and simple.

From the outset, let it be understood that this company raises no question as to the right of jitney-existence—provided it is subjected to the same regulations as govern the business with which it directly competes.

At the present time that condition does not exist.

And the company submits that it is just as unfair to grant to this new industry immunity from the regulations under which other public carriers are required to operate, as it would be to impose regulations upon the gas company for the supply of light, heat and power, and grant immunity to the electric company, or vice versa.

But the company is not the only one whose interests are affected by this present discrimination.

YOUR interests—the public's—too, are vitally concerned.

It is the aim of the company, in the publication of these articles, to set forth only the facts—to enlighten you as to how seriously the present discrimination affects your interests as well as its own.

Read them all carefully—reserve your decision until the last article has been published—then answer the question—

Shall present conditions continue?

MOTOR ROAD TO THE SUMMIT OF PIKE'S PEAK

Motoring into and above the clouds is a novel and fascinating feat made possible for the tourist by the completion of the new motor road to the summit of Pike's Peak, says the November Popular Mechanics Magazine. In the operation of the road the trip to the summit will ordinarily be made from Colorado Springs, the route leading through the Garden of the Gods, through Manitou, and up Ute Pass to Cascade which is on the edge of the Pike National Forest and is the point where the new road begins. Cascade is located about 12 miles west from Colorado Springs. From this point the road passes through some of the finest scenery in the West, and after 17 miles of winding and doubling through the canons and along the mountain sides, it reaches the summit of the mountain 14,109 ft. above sea level. The road skirts many of the best-known scenic features of this section of the Rockies, such as Crystal Creek Valley, perched 10,000 ft. above sea level, and Lover's Leap, a precipice having a sheer drop of 2,900 ft. It is estimated that from the summit something like 30,000 square miles of the earth's surface is visible, the view extending over a hundred miles to the east, and including to the west scores of peaks that are covered with perpetual snow.

Numerous views of the road and scenery at various altitudes accompany the article.

THE SMALL TOWN FAT BOY

"Every small town," writes Helena Smith Dayton in Cartoons Magazine, "has a fat boy. Howard is the name of the fat boy in most small towns. Of course he is never called Howard outside of the home circle. Up to the age of 14 years he is called Fatty and after that he is called Butch. Howard is usually seen munching an apple. His favorite sport is riding around on the grocer's wagon with Bill Chidsey, who delivers. When Fatty's father falls heir to a little money he buys Howard a pony, and he is also the most successful raiser of rabbits and white mice of any boy in town.

As a piano player Howard has it all over any of Miss Haskell's other pupils and twice a week all winter you could see his big and broad rubbers reposing outside her door."

The temporary relief you have been finding in sprays, douches, creams, ointments, lotions, etc., which for a while open your clogged nostrils and let you breathe easier, fail to cure catarrh to stay cured because they do not and cannot kill the catarrh germs which cause it.

There is just one way to really reach and destroy the catarrh germ life in your system and thus end catarrh forever and that is by breathing through the little inhaling device shown in this illustration, a powerful but pleasant and healing germicidal air called Hyomei. Hyomei is a germ killing liquid but you do not swallow it. Simply pour a few drops of Hyomei into this inhaler, and then put the inhaler in your mouth and breathe its healing, germ destroying air—breathe deeply. That's all you have to do. Every time you inhale a breath of Hyomei through this little inhaling device you are drawing into your raw, swollen, inflamed and germ laden membranes an agreeable medicated air which will not only absolutely and positively destroy every trace of Catarrh germ life it reaches but will stop the discharge and heal and reduce all the inflammation and swelling and open up your clogged nose and stopped up air passages. It gives wonderful relief in just two or three minutes while if you use it two or three times a day for a few weeks it will completely banish Catarrh and every symptom of catarrh.
