HUNTING IS GOOD TRAINING FOR BOY

Will Teach Him Many Things, Dr. Kalbfus Tells Welfare Conference

Asserting that the Pennsylvania Game Commission holds that hunting is a national necessity, Dr. Joseph Kalbfus, Secretary of the Board of Game Commissioners, declared with emphasis before the session of the Welfare conference at the House of Representatives this morning:

"We can cry peace, peace all we please, but there is no peace and there will be no peace, until we are able to protect ourselves."

Dr. Kalbfus was the last speaker at the morning session of the conference but he stirred the large gathering in his talk on the preservation of game throughout the State and declared that hunting provides for the American boy the training to be our protectors.

George S. Webster, chief of the Bureau of Surveys, of Philadelphia, in speaking of municipalities with the public utilities commission declared that officers of municipalities and even corporations were slow to go ahead with projects since the obligated officers of both were responsible in a greater degree to the people since the institution of the Public Service Commission.

Charles G. McLain, farm adviser on soil drainage and water supply of the Department of Agriculture, addressed the conference on Agricultural Engineering.

Mr. McLain said: "Agricultural engineering covers farm management, farm buildings, their construction and most advantageous location for convenience to the economical farm operation, the proper arrangement of the buildings so as to require the least amount of manual labor for the proper care of the farmer's family and domestic animals on the farm, arrangement of the fields for advantageous working of the farm, the knowledge of soil conditions to produce the crop best adapted to the condition of the land and the soil for the greatest possible production of crops, the study of fertilizer requirements so as to buy only commercial fertilizers that contain the elements of which the soil is deficient, and also to learn which soils are best adapted to certain crops so as to avoid trying to grow crops not adapted to the soil."

Snow Presides F. Herbert Snow, chief of the Bureau of Engineering of the Public Service Commission, presided at the meeting this morning and gave a most interesting talk on engineering.

Dr. Kalbfus declared that the State Game Commission goes as far to protect the song birds as it does the wild turkey and the game birds and that in protecting the song birds, the destroyer of insects is being protected the food supply of the people of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Kalbfus in speaking of hunting said that it was the aiming, shooting and camping that hardened the American and made him an expert protector. He said that hunting tends to teach the man and boy the topography of his State and if the people generally only knew their splendid State they would not want to go anywhere else.

Mr. Webster outlined the work of the Public Service Commission in its relation with the engineering department and bureaus of Philadelphia or any other municipality, although his references to public works were confined to Philadelphia and its improvements which have been acted upon since the inception of the Public Service Commission.

Before the morning session many of those attending the conference heard the discussion of the Workmen's Compensation Act held in the Senate Chamber. Messrs. Leech and Allen told of the working of the various features of the law which will be made operative on January 1 and answered many questions that were asked. Numerous representatives of labor organizations were present along with manufacturers and business men from various parts of the State.

Conference Ends To-night Highway Commissioner Robert J. Cunningham presided at the afternoon session when the opening address was made by A. P. Irwin, of Chadd's Ford. Mr. Irwin personally secured $70,000 from citizens in Chester and Delaware counties to aid in the reconstruction of the Old Baltimore pike in those counties.

Mr. Irwin said: "Next to the public schools, there is nothing as important for the general welfare as good roads." Nicholas M. Edwards, of Williamsport, spoke on stream pollution and Dr. J. T. Rothrock, the first Pennsylvania Commissioner of Forestry, spoke on "What Shall Pennsylvania Do With Its Waste Lands?"

The conference will close this evening, when there will be an early display of moving pictures to be followed by addresses on workmen's compensation by Francis H. Bohlen, counsel to the Workmen's Compensation Board, and an address by Dr. Edwin E. Sparks, president of Pennsylvania State College, on "Education and Its Relation to Industrial Efficiency." E. J. Stackpole, president of the Pennsylvania Associated Dairies, will be chairman of the closing session.

Safety Devices With the Industrial Efficiency and Welfare Exhibit in full swing at the fair grounds of the Harrisburg Railway Company, in North Cameron street, the attention of many employers and employees in this city and vicinity is turned toward the safety devices and modern appliances displayed. Plumbing supplies, including nicked and brass fixtures, are featured in a large exhibit by the H. Mueller Manufacturing Company. Tips on safety devices and methods to be used in plants are placarded in the booth of the National Council for Safety.

A miniature playground, similar to the one installed in the park at the New Jersey Zinc Company, is part of the attractive foreground of that booth. Noiseless typewriters are demonstrated by the Noiseless Typewriter Company. The Norton Company exhibit includes several large protected kridstones fitted up with safety guards. Overland touring cars and delivery trucks of the latest type are shown by the Overland-Harrisburg Company.

Railroad Exhibits The exhibit of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company at the fairgrounds includes a big working model of the semaphore signal system being used on the electrical branch between Paoli and Philadelphia. "Safety first" devices and improvements are displayed together with large illuminated plate photographs showing the various improvements made over the entire system, particularly on the lines going through Harrisburg. The outdoor display at the eastern approach of the Market street subway consists of a class E locomotive.
