PENROSE TALKS ON WESTERN TRIP

Says Country Is Ripe For a Change in the National Administration Now

Senator Penrose must have received a great welcome yesterday at Pittsburgh judging from the dispatches received. Incidentally he made some comments on the dissatisfaction of the country with Wilson.

A dispatch from that city says: "That the sentiment of the country is Republican, and that the national ticket of that party will be elected next year was the prediction of Senator Boies Penrose, who arrived in Pittsburgh last night with the Liberty Bell party. Senator Penrose refused to discuss the Presidency, except to state the report that he would announce himself a candidate for the Republican nomination was incorrect."

"The Senator upon his return to his native State was met by a large delegation of active Republicans of Western Pennsylvania, who went to Youngstown, Ohio, this afternoon and accompanied the Liberty Bell party to Pittsburgh.

"Included in the delegation were United States Senator George T. Oliver, Mayor Joseph G. Armstrong, Coroner Samuel C. Jamison, E. V. Babcock, General A. J. Logan, State Senator Charles H. Kline, Congressman A. J. Barchfeld, Robert Garland, State Senator Joseph Thompson, of Beaver, Col. James E. Barnett, of Washington, and other Republicans of prominence, with whom Senator Penrose discussed political conditions in this section of the State.

"Senator Penrose predicted that the issues of the national campaign in 1916 would be the tariff, the Mexican question and the foreign policy of President Wilson.

"There will be a severe arraignment of the administration," he said. "Demonstrating its absolute incapacity in financial and diplomatic matters. The American people will be much surprised when they learn the extent of the demoralization in the various departments of the government. As to the National Republican Convention, there will be no crystallization on the question of the nominee until the convention meets. A number of ballots may have to be taken to determine the nominee. There will be a number of candidates, backed by their respective States, but the contest will be harmonious and the discussions entirely amicable."

S. P. C. A. NOTES

It is against the law in Pennsylvania to sell a worn-out horse for a few dollars. The purchaser is liable to prosecution as the seller. This law was a long step forward in humane practice as formerly the traffic in decrepit horses was a disgrace to civilization.

"No poor man using an unfit horse in an emergency is ever prosecuted by our society unless he wilfully persists in ignoring the law."

"Should a man be allowed to own a horse when the only use he can afford to buy is to inflict or cripple that it is an offense against the law to use it? If the society organized for the prevention of cruelty to animals does not protect the horse and end his days of suffering, is it not failing in its mission?"

Sanitation in watering troughs for horses is desirable not only for the horse but for all neighbors of the watering place. Grand Rapids, Michigan has adopted a new form of rock-fountains for animals which has proved so satisfactory that the city authorities plan to replace all wooden troughs with them. There are already twenty-two in use.

These drinking fountains are huge boulders, weighing from two to four tons each with a basin several feet in diameter, hollowed out and connected by an inlet pipe with the municipal mains. A deep groove terminating at the mouth of a large pipe leading to the sewer system, permits the escape of surplus water and all offensive substances which collect and make the average drinking trough a nuisance.

Much has been written on the dog but a clever comment was made on that saying of Alexander Dumas, pere, "Dogs are candidates for humanity."

BOLIVIA USING THE MOVIES. The Republic of Bolivia in South America is the first foreign country to make use of the movies in advertising its industries among the businessmen of the United States. Four reels of films have been prepared, based upon subjects that are intended to give some idea of the wealth, resources, and business activities and customs of that nation, and these have already been shown to several organizations of American businessmen, through the courtesy of the Bolivian minister at Washington.
