

PERFECTION SMOKELESS OIL HEATERS

Easily Carried From Room to Room

Upstairs or downstairs, from room to room, the Perfection Oil Heater can be easily, safely carried without the necessity of putting the flame out. This is one of the advantages the Perfection Oil Heater has over the gas heater.

Every home should have a Perfection as a protection from the chill of fall and spring and the more severe winter weather. In the morning you can heat any room—bedroom, bathroom or dining room—in a few minutes and save yourself the discomfort of chills, the possible misery of colds and grippe.

PERFECTION Smokeless Oil Heaters

are economical and efficient. They burn kerosene. There is no smoke, no ashes, no soot, no odor. The Perfection is easy to operate and to care for. There is nothing complicated about it—it's easy for a woman to understand.

Perfection Oil Heaters are for sale everywhere. Ask the dealer to show it to you and explain its advantages. See for yourself how attractive it is in appearance and how easy it is to operate.

THE ATLANTIC REFINING COMPANY
Pittsburgh and Philadelphia

Give your rubber plants a bath of Atlantic Rayolight Oil and tepid water: it makes them glossy and beautiful and kills the bugs that would otherwise eventually wither them up. That's only one use out of many. What do you do with kerosene? If you've got a good use, perhaps you may be able to exchange it for a beautiful stove. Follow these advertisements.

Lard and Kerosene

Just as a certain lard enables you to make flakier, better pie crust, so also a certain kerosene will burn brighter and give a greater heat than any you have previously used; that kerosene is Atlantic Rayolight Oil. It will neither smoke nor smell. Your grocer has it.

WOMEN AND THEIR INTERESTS

What Happened to Jane

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER XII.

(Copyright, 1915, Star Company.)

If Jane's suspicions with regard to Augustus Reeves were correct, the former's behavior for a while did not prove this. To be sure, he came to the Hardy home occasionally, but he made no effort to see the girl alone. Perhaps he felt sure that with the approval and backing of the parents he need not press his suit.

Meanwhile, July came and slipped away. Jane received and answered several letters from Edward Sanderson, and he spent one Sunday in Milton. On that day Jane asked and received her mother's permission to invite the young man to take dinner at her home. Mrs. Hardy was very cordial with the visitor, but Ezra Hardy was more taciturn than usual.

"I wonder if your father dislikes me?" Ned said that afternoon as he and Jane were returning from a walk through the woods covering Collins Mountain. "I'd be sorry if he did—for I like him, and—hesitating a little—"he is your father, and I'd like him for that reason, anyhow."

"The girl smiled. "Thank you!" she said, smiling as if she discerned nothing but a polite pleasantry in the words. "I am sure father likes you too. But he is often absent-minded and self-absorbed. To tell the truth, I don't know what he has not told me of it. I am sure he has had money troubles lately and they have depressed him."

"I am sorry," the young man said so sincerely that the girl was ashamed of the subterfuge with which she had explained her father's coolness toward his guest. She felt slightly resentful that a parent should put his child in such a position as this. Of late, Ezra had been so cheerful and good-natured—why could he not behave pleasantly on the one day that this man was here?

Ned Takes the Train

Ned Sanderson took the late afternoon train back to town, and it was not until the close of the evening service in the old church that an explanation of her father's conduct occurred to the girl.

As he walked down the church aisle with her and her mother, Ezra spoke hurriedly.

"Jane," he said, "I see that Gus Reeves is waiting in the vestibule for you, and I want you to walk along home with him."

"But I am going with you and mother," Jane objected, "and I'd rather—"

"You'll do as I say!" the father interrupted her sternly. "Mother and I want to walk along together. There's something I want to talk about with her. I guess, as he saw an expression of rebellion on his daughter's face, that if you can walk the whole afternoon in the woods with a young city upstart, you can walk a little piece between here and home with your father's friend, Augustus Reeves."

"Oh, pa!" Mrs. Hardy's protest was low, but the girl heard it.

"Never mind, mother!" she said swiftly. "Don't worry. I will do as father says."

She was very silent as she walked home by the side of the farmer to whom she owed her promised position in the Milton school. He talked steadily, as was his wont. But at last he noticed her silence.

"Aren't you feelin' well to-night, Jane?" he queried. "You don't act like yourself."

"I'm tired," she replied briefly. "I had a long walk this afternoon and it was very warm."

"Where did you go?" Reeves asked. "Up Collins Mountain."

"Alone," she said suspiciously.

"No—with a friend," she returned.

The Farmer at Once Guesses the Truth.

She wished she could think of some other subject to introduce, but her father's unaccustomed harshness had numbed her mind and tongue.

"Perhaps," the farmer suggested, eyeing her keenly, "you were with Sanderson?"

"I had a long walk this afternoon, a glimpse of him in the hotel this morning."

"Yes," Jane said, "I was with Mr. Sanderson."

"What do you know about that young fellow?" Reeves asked.

"What do you mean?" the girl demanded, her voice quivering with indignation. "I know he is my friend, and a gentleman—that's all."

"I was wondering," her companion went on, unmoved by her temper, "if you know what his character is. I always distrust these city chaps that come out here without any credentials and make up to any girl that will let them."

"What do you know against him?" Jane retorted. "I insist that you tell me."

"I am surprised at your excitement, Jane," Reeves reproved her. "I did not say that I know of anything against this young man—except that I have seen him go into the bar of the village hotel."

"He does not drink!" exclaimed Jane. "A man can go to a bar for ginger ale or any other soft drink—can't he?"

"He can—but don't usually," the farmer replied. "But of course all you have to go on is what this fellow tells you. Still, as he does not live here, it really makes little difference. I know you are too sensible a girl to be taken in by any man you know as little as that. So let's forget what's been said."

She almost hated him for his ponderous magnanimity. She also almost hated herself for having let him see her indignation. It was well, she reflected, that she had not angered him. He had it in his power to injure her prospects just now.

"Excuse me," she said as they reached the gate of her home, "for speaking so sharply; but I must stand up for my friends."

"That's all right," the man rejoined. "I will excuse it. Young people often make mistakes. I see your father and mother coming, so I won't stop to-night to have any talk with you—especially as you are so tired and so unlike yourself. Good-night!"

With a curt nod, and without lifting his hat, he was gone.

The next installment of this gripping serial will appear on this page soon.

Catarrh a Blood Disease S. S. S. Drives It From Your System

Because Catarrh affects the nose and throat, causing sores in the nostrils, stoppage of air-passages and gathering in the throat, it has been common practice to treat Catarrh by lotions, washes and sprays applied to these parts. This mode of treatment is entirely wrong. It cannot give permanent relief, and it is liable to irritate and aggravate the trouble. Catarrh cannot be trifled with. If allowed to run on it will disease the bronchial tubes, settle on the lungs, the stomach—indeed it is a very serious disease. Don't treat it locally. The fact that it causes headaches is proof that it is caused by impure and diseased blood. The one treatment that has proved effective in the treatment of Catarrh is S. S. S., it is the greatest blood purifier and blood tonic known. It relieves the cause of Catarrh by the process of renewing the blood, renewing its strength and vigor, giving new life to the red blood corpuscles, and stimulating the flow so that it has the vitality to throw off the poison and germs from the system. It is literally a blood bath. You quickly feel results. Headaches disappear, the gathering in the throat stops, the nostrils heal—before you hardly realize it you are well. S. S. S. is a natural blood tonic and has proven effective in the treatment of all blood affections. Eczema, tetter, rash, scrofula, Get S. S. S. at your druggist's. If you need special advice write the S. A FASHIONABLE FIVE-PIECE SKIRT

The Pattern for this Design Besides Allowing for All Seams, Gives the True Basting Line and shows Diagrams for Cutting and Making.

Each Piece of the Pattern Also is Lettered for Identification.

By MAY MANTON

8788 (With Basting Line and Added Seam Allowance) Five-Piece Skirt, 24 to 34 waist.

The plain gored skirt that flares abundantly is one of the most important of the autumn. This one is cut in five pieces with the front edges hemmed and lapped one over the other. It is a smart skirt and at the same time, a simple and easy skirt to make. Since the pattern gives both the seams and the basting line, it is a very simple matter to cut it and to sew it, for one has only to cut on the outside edges of the pattern, and the basting line being marked, it is impossible to lose the lines. The skirt is a favorite one both for the coat suit and for the indoor gown and it makes up handsomely in silk as well as in wool. The finish can be made at either the slightly raised or natural waist line.

For the medium size, the skirt will require, 6 3/4 yds. of material 27 or 36 in. wide, 3 3/4 yds. 44 or 54, if the material has up and down; 4 3/4 yds. 27 in. wide, 3 3/4 yds. 36, 2 5/8 yds. 54, if the material has neither figure nor nap. The skirt is 2 yds. and 28 in. wide at the lower edge.

The pattern No. 8788 is cut in sizes from 24 to 34 waist. It will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper, on receipt of ten cents.

BOROUGH GETS SCHOOL BUILDING
Special to The Telegraph

Hallfax, Pa., Nov. 24.—Use of the large school building at Second and Armstrong streets, has been given to the borough for a town hall and social center by the Halifax school board. The building will house the fire company and the Halifax band.

THOUGHT SHE COULD NOT LIVE

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Unionville, Mo.—"I suffered from a female trouble and I got so weak that I could hardly walk across the floor without holding on to something. I had nervous spells and my fingers would cramp and my face would draw, and I could not speak, nor sleep to do any good, had no appetite, and everyone thought I would not live.

Some one advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had taken so much medicine and my doctor said he could do me no good so I told my husband he might get me a bottle and I would try it. By the time I had taken it I felt better. I continued its use, and now I am well and strong.

"I have always recommended your medicine ever since I was so wonderfully benefited by it and I hope this letter will be the means of saving some other poor woman from suffering."—Mrs. MARTHA SEAVEY, Box 1144, Unionville, Missouri.

The makers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have thousands of such letters as that above—they tell the truth, else they could not have been obtained for love or money. This medicine is no stranger—it has stood the test for years.

If there are any complications you do not understand write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened and answered by a woman acquainted in strict confidence.

YOU Suffer from Constipation which is another word for congestion, the beginning of every serious disorder, and nearly every discomfort. Rid yourself of constipation, and you will be free from all disease—nearly as possible proof against infection.

SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS

act freely, but gently and comfortably, on the liver, stomach and bowels, cleansing, sweetening, toning, strengthening, so that a constipated condition will become impossible. Ordinary constipation "cures" are only laxatives that must be taken regularly, and that finally form a habit that is as dangerous as constipation itself. Schenck's Mandrake Pills are wholly vegetable; absolutely harmless, they form no habit.
