EARLY HEAVINESS CAUSES SELLING

Banker Predicts Curtailment of War Orders and Bears Dominant

By Associated Press
New York, Dec. 2. — There was further general selling of stocks in the first half hour of to-day's market, the movement gathering momentum from bearish interests which appeared to be dominant at the moment. United States Steel was again the target, declining three-quarters to 85 1/2 on fairly large orders. Speculators in the war class were lower by one to over two points, and copper advanced the same trend. Railways again unresponsive to additional favorable October statements of earnings, although New York Central and Reading were fractionally higher. New Haven and Erie were heavy.

Much of the early heaviness which was so soon covered, was attributed to the speech of a prominent banker, who predicted a curtailment of future war orders. Trading became dull on the rally, the list lacking definite features aside from regular movements in specialties, but prices fell back again at noon, some to lower levels. German exchange touched a new low quotation at 73 1/4, and only one Anglo-French note for future delivery at 97 1/4 established a new minimum for that section. Bond market showed an acute weakness in Missouri, Kansas and Texas issues.
