By Associated Press
San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 3.—The preliminary examination of C. C. Crowley, a detective charged by the Federal authorities with being implicated in plots to destroy war munitions being shipped to the allies, originally set for today is to be postponed, according to United States District Attorney John W. Preston. He said that he did not wish any of the alleged facts of the conspiracy to become public at present.

Women Hold Executive Educational Positions

By Associated Press
Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.—Women hold many executive educational positions in the United States, according to the Bureau of Education's directory for 1915-16, issued to-day. It shows that of the 12,000 conspicuous positions, largely of an administrative character, 2,500 are held by women. These include college presidents, state and county superintendents of education, directors of industrial schools, heads of departments in colleges and universities, directors of schools for afflicted and librarians.

GERMAN LOAN GOING FAST
Berlin, Dec. 3, via London 11:43 A. M.—The amount paid in cash by subscribers to the third German loan in the last week of November was about 351,000,000 marks. This brought up the total paid in to 10,452,600,000 marks ($2,613,150,000) or about 86 per cent of the entire subscription.

CONTINUATION SCHOOL "EXAMS"

They Will Be Held in Six Cities of the State on Saturday, December 11

Details of the preliminaries for organization of continuation schools under the child labor law which will become effective on New Year's day were announced here to-day by Professor M. B. King, director of the State bureau of vocational education. The State conducted special schools for training of teachers for such schools last summer and the time and place of the examinations were announced to-day. They will be conducted in six cities and it is expected that enough teachers will be secured to meet the demands of the organization of the schools will be secured.

The announcement is that the examinations will be held on Saturday, December 11, at North Industrial school, Pittsburgh; high school, Altoona; high school for boys, Reading; Technical high school, Scranton; Philadelphia Trades School, Philadelphia; high school, Warren. Applicants will be examined in industrial English, industrial geography, civics, hygiene for the worker, industrial drawing, and industrial arithmetic. The examinations will be open to all teachers who attended the summer schools for the training of teachers for continuation schools and to all other persons who have taught one or more years and hold a certificate valid in Pennsylvania. Application blanks may be procured from the examiner on the date of examination. No one to whom the State has issued books of instruction will be admitted to the examination until the books have been returned to the examiner.

F. W. LENTZ DIES AT MARYSVILLE

Had Served as Chief Burgess of West Shore Town For Past Four Years

Special to The Telegraph
Marysville, Pa., Dec. 3.—Frank W. Lentz, Burgess of Marysville, died at his home in Valley street, this morning, aged 75 years. Mr. Lentz was elected Burgess four years ago and his term of office would have expired in January, 1916. He served as township and borough constable for twenty-five years before he was elected as magistrate.

Mr. Lentz was born August 29, 1840, at Logansville, York county, and came to Marysville in 1884. He enlisted in the Union army September 18, 1862, and was mustered into service as a member of Company D, 87th Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, serving under Captain Rule. In the Battle of Bull Run, when the Confederates overcame the Union army, he only escaped being captured by swimming a creek, a short distance from the battlefield. He was honorably discharged on October 13, 1864. He is a member of Post No. 116, G. A. R., of Harrisburg. He was a member of Pokoson Tribe, No. 331, I. O. R. M., of Harrisburg. He is survived by his wife and six children: Mrs. George Bretz, of Lebanon; Mrs. George Weaver, Mrs. Milton Ansbach and Mrs. Edward Zimmerman, of Marysville; Mrs. Preston Foose of Shermansdale, and a son, George Lentz, of Enola; also two sisters, Mrs. Priscilla Ketchner, of York, and Mrs. Milvina Melvina Free, of Cumberland, Md., and a brother, Fred Lentz, of Marysville. There are also 43 grand children and 26 great-grandchildren. Funeral services will be held on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by the Rev. C. A. Parsons, of the Church of God, assisted by the Rev. L. A. Burman, of the United Evangelical Church.

UPTOWN BUSINESS MEN ORGANIZE

Will Boost Community Interests and Shopping in This Big District

Businessmen in the uptown district are forming plans for the organization of an "Uptown Merchants' Association," which will be effected some time during January, 1916.

For several months, the mercantile men of the uptown district have been holding meetings each week, to discuss plans for the future organization. A temporary association of which E. L. Rinkensch, is president, has been formed. The sessions were held in the various business places in the evenings, and consisted of interest to residents of that section of the city, were talked over informally.

The businessmen of the uptown district are enthusiastic over the proposed association, and are making canvasses among all of the merchants, property owners and residents of the district, to have them join.

Interest is being shown on every side, and it is believed that as soon as the permanent association is formed, every effort will be made to make it a substantial one, and a benefit to the community.

The present members of the temporary body are planning big things for the new year, in the line of improvements for the people in the uptown district. The interests of residents in the section north of North street will be the first thing to be taken care of by the association, according to several members, but any event of interest municipally will be given consideration.

CHILD LABOR LAW AFFECTS 40,000

Report Made to National Manufacturers Commends the State's New Statute

The child labor law which will become effective on January 1 will affect about 40,000 youngsters in Pennsylvania, with a possible blessing to them and to future generations, declares H. E. Miles, chairman of the committee on industrial education of the National Association of Manufacturers, in a report of which an abstract was given out here to-day.

Mr. Miles has made a special study of conditions in the schools of the State and has been looking up the industries. In his statement in regard to Pennsylvania he says in part: "Pennsylvania is now entering upon one of the greatest accomplishments of this generation. The law that every child in the State must have the equivalent of the first six years of elementary schooling before going to work is a fine piece of legislation. If he is fourteen years of age or otherwise qualified, he may go to work under fair safeguards, but only upon further provision that he be released from employment eight hours a week for instruction in his vocation and citizenship in continuation schools that are now being established throughout the State and has been looking up the compulsory school attendance until sixteen except in Wisconsin and the city of Boston. It is also the finest form of compulsory education in this country, because it correlates school with work, and goes far toward making all the later life of the child better."

The need of the schooling was agreed upon by employers, social workers, educators, labor leaders and legislators. There were at first some differences of judgment as to the terms of the law, but such differences are fast disappearing, partly through better understanding of the situation and largely because it has become clear to all that the law must be interpreted and applied always solely with the view of accomplishing its main spirit and purpose.

It is unfortunate that a few employers, not knowing all the conditions, began discharging children some time ago. Let us hope with the present light no children will be discharged unnecessarily a single day before they need be, for such a discharge would necessarily hurt the child and the cause. The law affects about 40,000 children and will elevate in years of age the average of the whole State. The Cox child labor act in its essential spirit and purpose and its assured accomplishment is one of the greatest and most important pieces of legislation that has been enacted in this country."

DIED NATURAL DEATH
Cox's Examination of a post-mortem examination of Pauline Brown, the fifteen-year-old girl, who was found dead yesterday morning after giving birth to a child, decided that death was due to urticaria, and that the girl had not met with foul play. No inquest will be held, as Mr. Eckinger believes the marks on her forehead were received when she fell.

A FEW MINUTES WITH THE LATEST BOOKS & MAGAZINES

Police. by Robert W. Chambers. When Robert W. Chambers ceases to appeal in his books to the emotions and the human interest side of his millions of readers, then and then only will his books diminish in popularity. People seem to struggle madly to reach them and then to peruse them with frenzied haste and no less than the others does his new sensation-producer "Police" find a ready and eager public waiting to devour it. In this book (Appleton's) his reputation as "Chief" of the Anthropological Field Survey, Department of the Bronx Zoo. But even this high-sounding, complex title cannot prevent him from being extremely human, and he is just as sensitive to the appearance in his field of vision of one of Eve's pretty daughters as is the next man; which proves his undoing as a scientist, temporarily.

The professor makes scientific and "other ventures to the four corners of the globe, and in the process of this journeying the author takes occasion to satirize just about everything in modern society—from suffragists and secretaries of state to futurists and the artistic temperament. The illustrations are by Henry Hutt and are of a nature to lure the reader to a momentary perusal of the entire book. Both book and illustrations are out of the ordinary, and calculated to arouse the interest that they do arouse and the story is written in that smooth, easy, flowing style that makes for easy reading without unnecessary concentration; if that is what the reader is looking for, he will find it in "Police."

Marvels of Our Bodily Dwelling. by Mrs. Mary Wood-Allen, M. D., (The Vir Publishing Co., $1.20). Good sense will keep every one of this delicate mechanism which we call our body in perfect working order, if we are to enjoy good health; and if we do not realize it, this book by Mrs. Allen will be found to be a very efficient teacher.

Describing the body as a wonder-house, the author carries out her simile through the entire book, going thoroughly into every department and likening each in a very charming way to a certain portion of a house. Mrs. Allen knows that study and obedience of the laws of physiology will insure that sound body which is the beautiful dwelling place of a sound mind, and she is anxious to impart that knowledge to others.

There are rooms in this wonder-house of ours, she says, where work is carried on which even our great psychologists have not yet come to understand. There are some few rooms which are as mysterious as those to which Bluebeard gave Fatima the key. The brain cells are electric
