Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or disagreeable effects of any kind.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint with the attendant bad breath.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color.

Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

FRANCE SUFFERS HEAVILY IN WAR

Nearly 2,000 Graduates of Its West Point Have Already Been Killed

ARE BRAVEST OF TROOPS

Have Performed Some of Most Hair-Raising Deeds of Entire Conflict

(Correspondence of Associated Press.) Saint Cyr, France, Dec. 3.—Saint Cyr, the West Point of France, made heavy sacrifices to the country in the first year of the war. Nearly 2,000 of its graduates were killed, including 287 of the 2,000 cadets of the classes of 1914 and 1915.

On July 20, 1914, the officer commanding Saint Cyr notified the cadets of the class of 1915 that the customary fete called the "Triomphe" which takes place each year incidental to the ceremony of the promotion of the junior class and its christening would not be held.

Jean Allard, the poet of the class, recited a patriotic poem, his only contribution to literature but one that will make his name enduring.

"Swear, all of us, that when we go into action it will be in full uniform, with white gloves and plume flying in our shakos."

"We swear it."

Some war correspondents have discovered some d'Artagnans among the French soldiers at the front.

The soldier poet, Jean Allard Meeus, kept the oath that he had taken.

He went into action in full uniform the most completely equipped, leading his section to the assault, and was one of the first to fall. On August 22, at Charleroi, Second Lieutenant de Favolle, of the class of the "Croix du Drapeau" received his baptism of fire.

Under a furious shelling by the German artillery his men hesitated. Lieutenant de Favolle turned to encourage them but perceived that though he had kept his vow to go into the fight with his white gloves, he had forgotten his red and white plume.

Immediately drawing it out of his knapsack he stuck it into his shakos and the section electrified by his example, rushed forward.

"You are going to get yourself killed, Lieutenant," cried a corporal.

"Forward! Forward!" was the young soldier's reply as he bounded forward at the head of his men.

A few minutes later he lay maimed on the Charleroi battlefield with a bullet hole in his forehead directly underneath the red and white plume.

Lieutenant de Castelneau was a member of the "Montmirail" class. He, with his section, held the enemy in check half a day and at the very moment when he had succeeded in throwing them back received his death wound.

"He had a noble end," was the comment made by his father, General Curieres de Castelneau, on being informed of his death.

Second Lieutenant Lanquetot, aged 19, cited in the orders of the army for his presence of mind in taking command of his company under fire after the commandant had been wounded, and for the courage, coolness and energy he showed, was a "Croix du Drapeau" man.

Second Lieutenant Wacher, another "Croix du Drapeau" man with his section held a bridge head an entire day in order to facilitate a difficult retreat. He got every man away safely at night and in good order, a most creditable achievement.

The story is told of a second lieutenant of the class of 1914 who was leading his section on the line of the Yser in junction with the Belgian troops, without apparent consciousness of a great danger that he was running into.

"Where are you going like that, lieutenant?" asked an officer of King Albert's staff.

"As far as the Vistula, commandant; the Russians are calling for us," was the reply.

"How I wish the world could have heard his men laugh behind him as if they were deaf to the screeching of bullets all around," said the Belgian officer.

"No, it's not that; the others are quite as brave only the French soldiers are joyously brave."

Casualties Are Heavy The 475 young men accepted at Saint Cyr but who were still in their year's service with the regiment before entering were also promoted second lieutenant, and 21 of them have been killed, while the proportion of wounded and honors is about the same as in the other classes.

They had no opportunity to be christened at Saint Cyr but in view of the heroism they showed they had the honor of being christened on the field of battle the "Grande revanche." This name was particularly appropriate for although the average French civilian had ceased to think of recovering Alsace-Lorraine before the war, the Saint Cyr-

Commissioner Lynch Busy Resurfacing in Many City Streets

With the exception of about 500 yards of re-surfacing work which is now occupying the attention of the street department, the nearly 75 miles of Harrisburg's paved streets have been repaired and placed in tip-top shape.

City Commissioner W. H. Lynch, superintendent of streets and public improvements has given especial attention to the streets in the business section and the asphaltum in the district bounded by Fourth, Front, Walnut and Chestnut has been worked over twice.

Work was begun to-day on the patching up of some spots on Market street just east of the Square. Stretches totalling about 200 yards all told are keeping other forces busy on Cameron street from Market to Manada.

Several hundred yards of work remain to be done on Market from Cameron to Thirteenth, and on Thirteenth from Market to Derry.

INDOLENCE NOT ON NATURE'S LIST

Commissioner Dixon Calls Attention to Some of the Dan- gers of Modern Life

Nature never forgives indolence and it is better for people to be occupied with trifles, fads, for instance, than to do nothing at all, says Dr. Samuel G. Dixon, State commissioner of health, in discussing ways to keep well. The commissioner says that the difficulty is that busy people keep pushing away along one line without taking the proper amount of exercise, while those who have nothing to do fall to carry out what the wine plan anticipates that they should do.

Dr. Dixon follows out the line of reasoning in his weekly talks on hygiene in his discussion of idleness this week and says:

"It has been said that the crime which Nature never forgives is indolence. It is certain that our bodies were never planned for idleness. Good health is invariably the result of a continued and rational exercising of both our bodies and minds.

"Whenever we fail to exercise them for a period of time they are apt to degenerate. Not infrequently, owing to the close association of the various parts of the complex human machinery, this results in the impairment of one part and reflects upon the other.

"The complications of modern life are very apt to result in our being forced into a restricted sphere and it requires thought and intelligence to keep mind and body in good condition.

"The normal man and woman is endowed with a brain capable of development along various lines. To promote this development along a single line creates a one-sidedness which may readily become abnormal.

"There has never been a time when opportunities were so great for those who desire to broaden their horizon and cultivate interests aside from those forced upon them by their particular trade or occupation. Not to have interests and occupations in a world teeming with opportunities and possibilities is to admit of stupidity and sloth.

"Fads of one sort or another may not seem worthy of comparison with the more serious employments of life; nevertheless they may serve those who have been relieved of the necessity of labor and in lieu of better occupation prevent degeneration of mind and body. To be occupied with trifles is better than not to be occupied at all.

"To devote one's self to tasks which require concentration and a combined effort of mind and body stimulates a rational development and goes far toward keeping us sane and healthy."
