THE NEWEST REMEDY FOR Backache, Rheumatism and Dropsy

Kidney, Bladder and Uric Acid troubles bring misery to many. When the kidneys are weak or diseased, these natural filters do not cleanse the blood sufficiently, and the poisons are carried to all parts of the body. There follow depression, aches and pains, heaviness, drowsiness, irritability, headaches, chilliness and rheumatism. In some people there are sharp pains in the back and loins, distressing bladder disorders and sometimes obstinate dropsy. The uric acid sometimes forms into gravel or kidney stones. When the uric acid affects the muscles and joints, it causes lumbago, rheumatism, gout or sciatica. Write Dr. Pierce at once, send 10 cents for large trial package, or 50 cents for full treatment of "Anuric," or ask your druggist for it. During digestion uric acid is absorbed into the system from meat, fat, and even from some vegetables. The poor kidneys get tired and backache begins. This is a good time to take "Anuric," the new discovery of Dr. Pierce for Kidney trouble and Backache. Neglected kidney trouble is responsible for many deaths, and insurance companies examining doctors always test the water of an applicant before a policy will be issued. Have you ever set aside a bottle of water for twenty-four hours? A heavy sediment or settling sometimes indicates kidney trouble. The true nature and character of diseases, especially those of the kidneys, and urinary organs, can often be determined by a careful chemical analysis and microscopic examination—this is done by expert chemists of the Medical Staff of the Invalids' Hotel. If you wish to know your conditions send a sample of your water to Doctor Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., and describe your symptoms. It will be examined without any expense to you, and Doctor Pierce or his Staff of Assisting Physicians will inform you truthfully.—Advertisement.

Women AND THEIR Interests

"Their Married Life"

Copyright by International News Service

"Why, my dear," said Mrs. Stevens, bustling into the apartment, "this is the first I have heard anything about Warren's accident. Why didn't you let me know; perhaps we might have done something to help you."
"But there was really nothing to do," explained Helen. "Of course, I was terribly worried until I heard but Bob did everything possible, and then we have insurance, so there is really nothing to worry about."
"But, my dear, I heard he was out with his stenographer."
Helen swallowed hard and turned her face away for a moment. It was going to be harder than she had imagined to bluff it out. Then she turned to Mrs. Stevens calmly and said:
"Wherever did you hear such an absurd story. Of course, Warren is supposed to have done something behind my back, and I am supposed to be home in sackcloth and ashes meditating on a divorce. Is that the story?"
Mrs. Stevens was staring curiously at Helen.
"Do you mean to tell me that it isn't true?"
"Well, that depends upon how much you have heard, and what you believe."
"I am anxious to hear from the beginning, so hurry and tell me."
Helen was gaining poise as she went along, and now she continued promptly.
"Well, if you really did hear a weird story, that I can do you to correct it. Warren did have Miss Evans out in the car that night, but would you mind telling me where you heard the fact?"
Helen made a bold effort to be calm.
"Why, the men downtown were talking about it. Mr. Stevens told me about it, and, of course, Helen, I have not mentioned it to anyone. I understand that you would tell me all that I wanted to know. I remember the time that I came to you about Will. I shall never forget it, never."
Helen had no idea of confiding in Mrs. Stevens, much as she liked her for a friend.
"The story goes," went on Mrs. Stevens, "that Warren had an accident on the Boston Post road, and that you demanded that he discharge the girl immediately. Is it true so far?"
"In the main. As I said, Warren did take her out in his car, and I knew she was doing it."
"Isn't it strange," Helen went on, "how things like this are exaggerated? Warren met Miss Evans as he was going to the lodge meeting. She had been having dinner with a girl friend and was hurrying home. She stopped before taking the subway to telephone her mother out in Westchester and to her amazement, was told she was very ill."
"Then she missed the train and Warren offered to take her home. He phoned me before he went and I told him to go ahead."
"Then you knew where he was all the time."
"Of course, I did, but when he didn't come back till so late, of course I was worried. I knew something must have happened, and Warren didn't get a chance to telephone until late."
"Did he get her home in time?"
"Yes, the accident happened right near her house."
"Then it all falls flat if you knew about it and approved, and are not broken down because Warren deceived you."
"I actually believe that you wanted to find me miserable. I'm ashamed of you. No, I'm not broken down unless it is from worry. I think I grew about ten years older that night when I heard that Warren had had an accident."
"He wasn't hurt?"
Helen confessed she is rather worn out.
"Just a very little in comparison, his wrist was broken."
"You poor dear! Well I must say that you look terribly worn out and tired."
"I am worn out and tired. I caught cold that night waiting up in negligence, and the excitement and everything has made me quite a wreck. I hope that you will correct all these dreadful rumors that are floating around. You must see how embarrassing they are for me."
"Of course, I do, dear, and I shall do everything in my power for you and Warren. I told Will that you would tell me the truth about it. We have been friends for so long."
Helen smiled again to herself, and then rose as Mrs. Stevens herself rose to go.
Helen's head felt dizzy and her mouth was parched and dry. She felt almost as though she had a fever.
"I hope, Helen, that you will take care of yourself and stay in the house while this cold lasts," Mrs. Stevens was saying. I am quite worried about you."
"I do feel miserable," Helen confessed hoefully.
"Isn't there something I can do?"
"Not a thing, really; I am going to lie down now. I am so glad you came and told me the news. I should have worried if I had heard such a rumor from a stranger." And Mrs. Stevens, with a warm little kiss on Helen's flushed cheek, took her departure.
Helen staggered to a chair and sat down heavily. She did feel ill. How had she ever gone through with this terrible ordeal? It simply would not do, though, for her to be sick now, and tell the news. She must pull herself through; and, with an air of exhaustion, she let her head drop against the pillow of the chair, while tears rolled down her cheeks.

Bell Telephone Co. Makes Big Gains During 1915

That prosperity is still continuing in Harrisburg is proven by the figures given by S. B. Watts, local manager of the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania, in an interview this morning. He stated that on the first day of December, 1914, the Bell Telephone Company had in service on the Harrisburg exchange 8,965 telephones, and on the first of December, 1915, there were in service 9,754 stations, or a gain of 669 stations, and that the business of the first eleven months of 1915 shows an increase of 149 stations over the same period of 1914. He also stated that it is not only in Harrisburg, but that Hummelstown shows a gain of 89 stations for the first eleven months; Midway, 15; and Steelton, 20. This simply goes to prove that business is picking up and that there is more money for the people to spend for the necessities of life.

To Ward Off Winter Complexion Ills

To keep the face smooth, white and beautiful all winter, there's nothing quite so good as the new meriolized wax. Rough, chapped or discolored skin, inevitable in this weather, is gently absorbed, and replaced by the newer fresher skin beneath. The face exhibits no trace of the wax, the latter being applied at bedtime and washed off mornings. Creams, powders and rouges, on the other hand, are apt to appear conspicuous at this season, because of alternating expansion and contraction of the skin, due to changing temperatures. Get rid of your skin troubles. Get an ounce of meriolized wax at any drug store. Apply it to the face. This will help any skin at once, and in a week or so the complexion will look remarkably youthful and healthy. Winds and flying dust often cause squinting and other contortions which make wrinkles. You can quickly get rid of every wrinkle, however produced, by using a harmless face bath made by dissolving 1/2 oz. powder in 1/2 pt. witch hazel.—Advertisement.

8806 (With Basting Line and Added Seam Allowance) Blouse with Shoulder Piece, 36 to 46 bust.
8788 (With Basting Line and Added Seam Allowance) Five-Piece Skirt, 24 to 34 waist.

The simple plain shirt-waist worn with a separate skirt makes one of the most useful costumes in the wardrobe. Both the models illustrated are among the best to be found and give the very newest features. The blouse is a quite plain one, with novel pocket and collar that can be buttoned up closely or rolled open with the fronts to form small revers. Here, it is finished with straps over the shoulders, but it can be made with plain seams if preferred. The skirt is cut in five pieces with the front edges hemmed and lapped. In the illustration, they are stitched together to convenient depth and closed invisibly above, but many women like to use buttons and buttonholes for the closing. In the illustration, the skirt is made from one of the new crepe gabardines and the blouse is made of white cotton voile showing a mercerized stripe, but you can of course use any suitable materials.
For the medium size the blouse will require 3 1/2 yds. of material 27 in. wide, 2 1/2 yds. 36, 1 1/2 yds. 44; for the skirt 2 1/2 yds. 44 or 54, for material without up and down, but if there is figure or nap, 6 1/2 yds. 27 in. wide, 3 1/2 yds. either 44 or 54 in. wide will be needed. The width at the lower edge is 2 1/2 yds.
The blouse pattern No. 8806 is cut in sizes from 36 to 46 in. bust and of the skirt, No. 8788, in sizes from 24 to 34 in. waist measure. They will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper, on receipt of ten cents for each.

GROWTH OF THE GARY PLAN

By Frederic J. Haskin

credit for her work at home as part of the industrial course.
Shop and mechanical work are an important part of the Gary plan. The instructors in these lines are skilled laborers and get regular union wages. They instruct the boys in carpentry, plumbing, planting, metal work, printing and electricity, while keeping the school in repair and doing its necessary daily work. Since the building is in constant use, constant repair is necessary, and the young mechanics learn from the first to face practical problems.

The well-equipped Gary school includes a printing press, where the pupils may get a very fair knowledge of that trade, including photography and engraving. The Froebel School now manufactures some of its own text books, and many of the schools take orders for outside work. The printing plant of the Emerson school in Gary did nearly two thousand dollars' worth of printing work in one year and made a profit over all expenses of that department. In the cabinet-making department the value of the work was over three thousand dollars, and here also the work more than paid the expenses of the course.
The defective child and the brilliant child are the two great problems of the public schools. Curriculums fit the average child fairly well, but the backward one cannot keep up, and the bright one is idle half the time. The Gary plan is easily adjusted to both of these cases. A weak child may spend most of his time in carefully supervised play until he is strong enough to study, and one who learns slowly will be given plenty of time. In the Gary plan, there is a Vinol Drug Store. The brilliant youngster can thus go ahead as fast as his aptitudes will carry him.

Evening Schools

According to this new idea, the advantages of school are not merely for children, but for any citizen who wants education. The Gary plan consists of evening school for men, and last year there were more men enrolled in the evening classes, in some of the cities, than there were boys in the day school. These evening schools are divided into sections just as the day classes are.
The privilege of using the school shops is also extended to all citizens. Anyone may make anything he wishes in the school shops by merely paying the price of the materials.
This maintenance of night school for adults is a great deal more expensive than day school, but its value to a community is equal to the cost, in the opinion of the most educators. For one thing, it is the surest and quickest way to make citizens out of aliens.
Another unique feature of the Gary plan is the use of the children to instruct each other. The young pedagogues are graded upon their efficiency. The desire to excel before their fellows is, of course, a great stimulus to effort. This feature of the plan is the subject of a good deal of discussion, educators disagreeing as to its value, but it has undoubtedly been used with success.

The Gary plan is purely and typically American in its origin. It was worked out by William R. Wirt, a young educator who was placed in charge of the public schools of Gary, Indiana. Gary is an industrial town with a population of 50,000. There are nineteen different nationalities represented. To educate the children of this motley crowd of alien laborers, and to make good American citizens of them with rather scant appropriations, was the problem that confronted Mr. Wirt.
Out of this difficulty and this need grew the big idea that is now attracting the attention of all progressive American cities.

SAVAGE WOMEN HEALTHY

The savage lives in the open, eats simple food, knows nothing of household drudgery, social life, gets plenty of sleep and exercise and is perfectly healthy and strong, but the civilized woman is a slave to home duties and soon, often becomes run-down, nervous and physically unfit to be a companion or wife. Our local druggists, George A. Gorgas, Druggist, Kennedy's Medicine Store, 221 Market St., C. P. Kramer, Third and Broad Sts., Kitzmiller's Pharmacy, 1325 Derry St., Harrisburg, Pa., have a reliable, non-secret remedy that is a boon to such women, its components being potentiate of iron for the blood, the nourishing properties of beef peptone and the medicinal extractives of fresh, healthy cods' livers, all dissolved in a delicious native wine. It is really wonderful how rapidly weak, run-down women are built up by its use.
P. S.—In your own town, wherever you live, there is a Vinol Drug Store. Look for the sign.—Advertisement.
