Mrs. Sara Harner of 1450 Market street announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Florence M. Harner, to Harry M. Stees, of this city. The ceremony was quietly solemnized at noon yesterday, at the parsonage of the Messiah Lutheran Church, the Rev. W. A. Hanson, pastor of the Church, officiating. The bride wore a going-away suit of dark blue with a hat to harmonize and a corsage bouquet of violets. The bride, who is most popular in her set has been with the Bell Telephone Company, for several years. Mr. Stees holds a responsible position with the Pennsylvania Railroad company. After a brief wedding trip to New York and Philadelphia, the young couple will be "At Home" to their friends in their new home at Progress, January 1.

Miss Catherine Vandevort Fahnestock, a student at Swarthmore College, is spending the Christmas vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Fahnestock of Riverside Drive. Miss Mary Elizabeth McCormick, a student at Smith college, Northampton, Mass., will spend the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harris B. McCormick, 3109 North Front street. XMAS CONCERT OF WEDNESDAY CLUB

Hans Kindler, Cellist of Philadelphia Orchestra, Assisted by Members of Club

"Let all the earth rejoice, rejoice and sing, And Heav'n with loudest hal-lelujahs ring."

Such was the spirit of the Christmas concert of the Wednesday Club last evening at Fahnestock Hall. The program opened with a series of ancient carols by the club chorus under the direction of Miss Conkling, Miss Heicher taking the lead in the solo work. Best of these was the rendering of the ever favorite "Holy Night" (Franz Gruber) the song whose appealing melody carries back of it the story of a lonely man's grief.

The only outside talent was the famous cellist, Hans Kindler accompanied by Ellis Clark Hammann at the piano. Mr. Kindler might almost be termed a boy wonder for he is only in his twenty-fourth year. He is violoncellist of the Philadelphia Orchestra and his wonderful sympathy, technique and skilful playing among the few masters of his art, drew much of interest to his audience in watching the constant play of expression over his face, so completely was he one with his music. He had a trick of dropping his head until his ear came close to the strings as if to catch hidden meanings. His "Gavotte" (Mehul) was played with a light delicacy and charm which drew such applause that he was obliged to repeat the number. It was only by remembering the conventions that his audience, as the darkies say, kept from "stufing". From the difficult, technical "Variations Symphoniques" (Boellmann) to the "Scherzo" (Goens) Mr. Kindler was perfect in all that he did. The best blending of the voices of Mrs. Bumbaugh and Miss Mid-daugh and the dignity and majesty of their rendering of "Benedictus" from Christmas Oratorios (Saint-Saens) formed one of the finest numbers of the evening.

The carol "As Joseph Was A-walk-ing," so old that its origin is lost in the haze of antiquity was sung by Mrs. Harris with that sweetness and clearness of enunciation which always characterizes her work. In "The Cradle Song of the Blessed Virgin" (Barnby) she was accompanied by a violin obligato by Miss Sara Lemer which brought out more fully the pathos of the song.

Mrs. Hull and Mrs. Decevee each in selections of the Christmas carols carried out the idea of the general program delightfully. The trio, Mrs. Decevee, Mrs. Cox and Miss Seaman in "Holy Christmas Night" (Lassen) accompanied by Miss Lemer on the violin were splendid in the quaint beauty of the music and its appropriate wording, fading softly into silence as the celestial visitors faded from the sight of the shepherds of Galilee.

The closing number, "The Sailors' Christmas" (Chaminade) by the club chorus, Mrs. Cox, soloist, was of the decidedly "different" type of Christmas music. It was very finely done with a low humming refrain of the sea breaking in upon the words. The platform was backed with tall fir trees and ferns and crimson poinsettias made an appropriate setting for one of the best concerts of the year. ANNA HAMILTON WOOD.

Miss Helen Wilson, of 934 North Second street, a student at Swarthmore College, Swarthmore, Pa., will be the holiday guest of her parents.
