

A PENNSYLVANIA WOMAN TESTIFIES

Back Hurt—Nervous—Sleepless. Cherry Tree, Pa.—"Eight years ago when my little girl was born I came near dying. When I got able to go about, my back hurt so when I would bend over that I would have to take hold of something with my hands to get up. My husband got me two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I could sit up, and my back did not hurt me. Was so nervous I could not sleep nights; my heart troubled me and my back had sharp, stinging pains when I would lean my head forward. I wrote to Dr. Pierce and was advised to take 'Favorite Prescription.' I used several bottles and now I do all my own work and tend to my garden and flowers. May God bless you is my prayer."—Mrs. ELLIS W. STIFFLER, Route 2, Box 55.

ONE-PIECE GOWN OF STYLISH CUT

Touches of Plaid Give an Air Found Only in the Higher Class of Models

By MAY MANTON

8872 (With Basting Line and Added Seam Allowance) One-Piece Dress for Misses and Small Women, 16 and 18 years.

This is one of the smartest as well as one of the simplest of the favorite one-piece gowns. Here, it is made of plain gabardine and is trimmed with plaid taffeta, but you could copy it in a great many different materials. If it were made of velvet, for example, with fur collar and cuffs, it would be an exceedingly handsome frock and for such material, the pockets would be omitted. If it were made of taffeta, it would be a very pretty afternoon dress, and for every-day use, it could be made of gabardine, serge plaid or striped material or of anything of the sort. The plaid skirt is joined to a loose blouse and the fulness is held at the waist line by means of the belt. It is the simplest thing in the world to make, for there is no fitting required. The neck may be made high with flaring collar or cut square.

For the 16 year size will be needed, 5 1/2 yds. of material 36 in. wide, 4 1/2 yds. 44-38 yds. 54 in. wide with 1/2 yd. 44 in. wide for the trimming. The pattern No. 8872 is cut in sizes for 16 and 18 years. It will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper, on receipt of ten cents.

AGENCY, BESSIE E. POORMAN, 222 Locust Street.

How To Make the Quickest, Simplest Cough Remedy

Much Better than the Ready-Made. Fully Guaranteed. This home-made cough syrup is now used in more homes than any other cough remedy. Its promptness, ease and certainty in conquering distressing coughs, chest and throat ills, is really remarkable. You can actually feel it take hold. A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough—relieves even whooping cough quickly. Splendid, too, for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, bronchial asthma, and winter coughs.

Get from any druggist 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (25 cents worth), pour it in a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. This gives you—at a cost of only 64 cents—a full pint of better cough syrup than you could buy for $2.00. Takes but a few minutes to prepare. Full directions with Pinex. Tastes good and never spoils. You will be pleasantly surprised how quickly it loosens dry, hoarse or tight coughs, and heals the inflamed membranes in a painful cough. It also stops the bronchial inflammation in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough. Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in guaiacol, which is so healing to the membranes. To avoid disappointment, be sure and ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces Pinex," and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

"No; what?" she said enthusiastically. "We are going shopping." He gave a bill to the waiter, who returned a few minutes later with the check. Helen followed him out of the hotel, and they walked down Fifth avenue. "Do tell me what you are going to buy, Warren," coaxed Helen. "You'll see." "We're going in here," said Warren, stopping, and she followed him into a well-known furrier's. "What for, dear?" she managed to whisper. "To buy you a coat," Warren announced. Helen was speechless, and she heard Warren's voice from a long distance asking to see something in fur coats for this lady. Even then Helen found time to whisper reonstratingly, we can do better, dear; they are sure to be so expensive here." "We don't have to consider expense," said Warren, loftily, and Helen relapsed into silence at that, and the saleswoman came back with three coats over her arm and spread them on a chair before her. "The first was of Hudson seal, and Helen slipped into it luxuriously. Once she had looked for a Hudson seal coat, but she had never expected to own one. It had a collar of lynx and was lined with brocade. Helen picked up a caracul coat and discarded it after a brief glance. "I don't like caracul," she explained, "it looks old." The third coat was of squirrel, and Warren did not like it on her, so they turned back to the first model. At that moment the saleswoman came back with another coat over her arm. It was of mink and Helen gave a little cry of rapture, and she slipped into it with gold colored satin and had a collar and huge cuffs of blue fox. A coat like that had been the dream of her life. Of course it wasn't practicable, but it was what she longed for more than anything. "Only six hundred dollars," the woman said, smiling, and this mink goes with it, and the mink and Helen a muff of the same fur with a border of blue fox. "I guess this is the coat," Warren said, smiling, and Helen said, "I can send it home right away." Warren paid for the thing with crisp new bank notes, and Helen still in a dream, followed him out. "I'm going to put the other four thousand in the bank, and take this four hundred and start an account for myself," Warren was saying. "Warren, dear," Helen began, "I don't know how to tell you how I feel." But Warren silenced her immediately. "None of that," he said roughly. "Let's ride up on the Fifth avenue 'bus,' shall we? I wanted you to have the coat and that's all there is to it, so don't say anything else." (Another instalment of this delightful series will appear here soon).

TRAVELETTE By NIKSAH NORTH CAPE

When you stand on the bold rocky promontory, that juts into the Arctic ocean from the Norwegian coast, you have come as close to the pole as is possible on European soil. North Cape is the northernmost point of the continent. It is a huge rugged rock, almost a thousand feet high, jutting grim and forbidding into the icy arctic waters. As you look northward from its towering crest, there is nothing to be seen save an endless desert of tossing sea, gray as the rock itself. Your gaze is drawn on and on, to lose itself in the north sky and ocean meet on the far horizon. You feel that you can almost touch the ice-locked secret of the north. Then, if you have come on the regular tourist steamer, you turn round and buy a dozen post cards of the Cape to send your friends. If there is enough light you may even have your own photograph on one of the cards. North Cape is too valuable an asset to be neglected in tourist-haunted Europe. A good path has been cut all the way to the top of the rock, which rises here and there for the struggling climber. During the summer, a number of guides camp at the foot, to help the feminine visitor with her camera, shawl and umbrella. Once on top, you find traces of visiting royalty, in the shape of a monument to King Oscar of Norway, and a cairn built by the German emperor fourteen years ago. The North Cape trip is a favorite with Wilhelm II, and for many years he made it annually. The last voyage or two have been unavoidably postponed, owing to pressing engagements in France and Russia, but it is confidently expected that he will resume his visits.

Street Car Passengers Not Pawns Court Decides

Washington, D. C., Dec. 28.—Railroads which take on more passengers than a car can seat have no right to move such passengers about "like pawns on a chess board," according to a decision by the District of Columbia Supreme Court. Judgment of the lower court was affirmed, twenty-second and Spruce streets, was verified yesterday when it became known that Mr. Stone resigned several weeks ago, and would relinquish his pastoral duties on January 1. For reasons of their own, the Rev. Dr. Floyd W. Tomkins, rector of Holy Trinity parish, and the Rev. Mr. Stone decided to suppress the news of the resignation until this time. The Rev. Mr. Stone will take a nonparochial office, in order to give his full time to the Stonemen's Fellowship, the interdenominational organization which has enjoyed a remarkable growth since last March. The fellowship is said to have about 100,000 members.

90 Years Old, He Spends All His Money For Ticket to His Old Home Town

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 28.—Because he wanted to spend Christmas in sunny Tennessee in his little log hewn cabin and to greet once more his few old comrades in Johnson City who still remember Bull Run and the battle above the clouds Henry Elkins, 90 years old and palsied with age spent $55.45—all 'cept 55 cents for a ticket to the East. With his few remaining cents he sent a porter out for some canned hash and a loaf of bread—all he would have to eat until he reached his destination. But the hearts of the porter and the other Southern Pacific employees were touched by his gentleness and the porter came back carrying a large basket filled with good things to eat. As the train pulled out a purse containing enough of money to give him comfort on his long journey was slipped into his hand. Although the old man wore poor and shabby clothes his quaint old fashioned charm immediately struck a responsive chord in the hearts of those who saw his happy departure.

Death Rate Among Babies of Overworked Mothers Is High, Bureau Finds

No one knows how many fathers or how many mothers there are in the United States. No one knows how many mothers are at work for gain outside their homes. The Children's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor brings out this fact in its third annual report made public to-day, and says that it is impossible to determine the relative importance of the high death rate among babies of working mothers until we know how many mothers there are at work in industry. The Children's Bureau is conducting a detailed inquiry into the social and economic causes of babies' deaths. The present report shows that the two items of the inquiry completed during the past year reveal an average infant death rate of 134 out of every 1000 babies in a steel-making and coal-mining town as against a rate of 84 out of every 1000 in a residential suburb. An even greater contrast is found between the most congested section and the choicest residential section in each of these two communities.

Big Fire Didn't Harm Dare's Coal

Only the frame structure of the J. E. Dare coal pockets was destroyed in the big fire last week. The coal was unharmed and business is going on as usual. To meet the unusual conditions of loading and hauling the force of men has been doubled. Arrangements have been made to take care of the regular trade and old customers are notified that they need not order from other dealers but can get clean, high grade coal of all kinds and sizes as usual.
