ERSTWHILE SUSAN WINS OVER HUGE AUDIENCE

[Continued From First Page.] vealing to the reading world the ways of people little known even to those in the next county. Marion DeForest, who dramatized the novel, followed the story very closely and succeeded in making a play of marked interest, abounding in opportunities for display of Mrs. Fiske's skill and containing some comedy features which were excellently given.

The audience for the ways of life of the characters in such manner that a man from Oklahoma could soon realize what things were like in the valleys of Pennsylvania. The second act abounds in dramatic situations in which Mrs. Fiske shone, but the third could certainly be made better. Mrs. Martin's novel offers possibilities for situations more in keeping with the stirring scenes of the second act than those which were given just before the curtain fell.

debate and never was there a more attentive audience. Mrs. Martin, with her husband and two children, Frederick, Jr., and Helene, Miss Effie Reimensnyder, Mrs. John Price Jackson and Newell Albright, occupied the lower tier box on the left side rear of the theater and during the rests between acts she was visited by many friends and acquaintances, all with a complimentary word and congratulations. To a great many it was a disappointment that Mrs. Martin was not called before the audience that they might express their appreciation in a fitting manner, but the modesty of the writer would doubtless have been opposed to any such demonstration.

isfaction with the vehicle of her expression. The authoress had this to say in criticism of the play: "John Colt was very good indeed, and Mrs. Fiske was delightful. But the manner of presentation was unjust to the character of the Pennsylvania Dutch which is portrayed. These people are painted in too heavy colors and the characters are somewhat overdrawn. It gives particularly to the character of Jacob Dreary a cruelty and unscrupulousness which is not, declares Mrs. Martin, a faithful delineation of the Pennsylvania Dutch character.

Ham Elder Bailey entertained at supper in honor of Mrs. Martin. Frederic C. Martin and Newell Albright delighted with their music the other guests, who included Mrs. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. J. V. W. Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lynch Montgomery, Mrs. Marlin E. Olmsted, Miss Effie Reimensnyder, Miss Anne McCormick and Vance C. McCormick. Mrs. Fiske, in accordance with her custom, declined the invitation of Mr. and Mrs. Bailey.

To help you choose the electric cleaner that's best So many claims have been made for various electric cleaners that you are puzzled, no doubt, to know which really is the best. To help people decide this really important matter, we are now demonstrating on our main floor.

It is by far a more thorough cleaner than any other, because it is an electric carpet sweeper—as well as an electric suction cleaner. The patented electric driven brush of the Hoover sweeps up all lint, hair, thread, etc., and shakes to the surface the grit and dust imbedded in the carpet, so that the suction gets all the dirt. Made in four sizes. Come see the difference that the electric brush of the Hoover makes—demonstration now in progress on our main floor.

THE HOOVER SUCTION SWEEPER

A Complete Success The enthusiastic applause and repeated curtain calls after the conclusion of each act proved that Mrs. Minnie Madern Fiske and her unusually capable cast had scored a veritable triumph. Those who have seen Mrs. Fiske before attest that she has lost none of her charm of expression, and all were delighted with her interpretation of the role of "Mrs. Barnaby Dreary," mother-in-law of the girl "Barnabette," and with the deft, brilliant comedy that shone throughout the entire performance.

Will Appear in New York Marian DeForest, who wrote the play, was in the audience last evening and watched every move on the stage carefully with an eye to making such corrections and variations as are needed before the play is produced in New York city at the Gayety Theater, on Broadway, on January 17. It is a matter of conjecture as to how people unfamiliar with the characteristics and unique customs of the Pennsylvania Dutch will receive the play, but there is said to be a demand for Mrs. Fiske in the metropolis and the consensus of opinion is that her artistry and ability will carry it through.

No. 1 Buckwheat Price $3.75 For the Furnace

Buckwheat coal is small size and must be the best quality to give good results. The Buckwheat Coal we sell was selected after many careful tests. We were determined to furnish our customers a grade of coal that burns up to a fine white ash under a strong heat.

The trouble with the large majority of Buckwheat Coal sold, is that by reason of the very hot fire it melts and runs together forming "clinkers."

This is bad for your furnace fire as the molten mass interferes with the passing of air through the bed of coal and retards combustion. However, Buckwheat coal will not give ideal results in every furnace but it is worth while to try it in yours.

Buy GOOD Coal & LESS Coal The better the coal you buy—the less you have to buy—and the less you have to buy, the lower becomes your aggregate coal expenditure. Since all coal—good, better and best—costs the same per ton, don't you think it the part of wisdom to get the best for your money, and keep the total expenditure down?
