To the New Yorker who loves his city streets during the week following Christmas are a happy sight. Holiday crowds throng the sidewalks.

HARD COLDS

Cause Weak Lungs, Harrisburg Druggist Suggests a Reliable Remedy.

We have a constitutional remedy for hard colds and weak lungs which we guarantee. Such letters as these prove its efficiency:—
Wickatunk, N. J. "I suffered from weak lungs, pains in my chest and very short of breath. I am an agent for the C. R. R. of New Jersey. I had a very bad cough and lost fifteen pounds in weight and my trouble interfered with my occupation so that I had to stop work last July. I had doctored for sometime without benefit, but when I learned of Vinol through a friend I decided to try it, and soon commenced to improve. My cough has gone, the soreness from my chest disappeared, I am working again, and have regained the fifteen pounds in flesh which I lost." Victor Walden, Wickatunk, N. J.
The reason Vinol is superior to any other remedy is because it contains no deleterious palatable form of the healing, body-building and strengthening elements of fresh cod livers, tonic iron and beef peptone—the oldest and most famous tonics known to medicine. Try it on our guarantee.
George A. Gorgas, Druggist: Kennedy's Medicine Store, 321 Market street; C. F. Kramer, Third and Broad streets; Kitzmiller's Pharmacy, 1325 Derry street, Harrisburg, Pa.
P. S.—In your own town, wherever you live, there is a Vinol Drug Store. Look for the sign.—Advertisement.

Thin Men and Women

DO YOU WANT TO GET FAT AND BE STRONG?

The trouble with most thin folks who wish to gain weight is that they insist on drugging their stomach or stuffing it with greasy foods; rubbing on useless "flesh creams," or following some foolish physical culture stunt, while the real cause of thinness goes untouched. You cannot get fat until your digestive tract properly assimilates the food you eat.
There is a preparation known to reliable druggists almost everywhere, which seemingly embodies the missing elements needed by the digestive organs to help them convert food into rich, fat-laden blood. This preparation is called Sargol and much remarkable testimony is given as to its successful use in flesh building. Sargol, which comes in the form of a small non-injurious tablet, taken at meals and mixing with the digesting food, tends to prepare its fat, flesh and muscle building elements so that the blood can readily accept and carry them to the starved portions of the body. You can readily picture the transformation that additional and previously lacking flesh-making material should bring with your cheeks filling out, hollows about your neck, shoulders and bust disappearing and your taking on from 10 to 20 pounds of solid, healthy flesh. Sargol is harmless, inexpensive, efficient. George A. Gorgas and other leading druggists of this vicinity have it and are authorized to refund your money if weight increase is not obtained, as per the guarantee found in each large package.

NOTE: Sargol is recommended only as a flesh builder and while excellent results in cases of nervous indigestion, etc., have been reported care should be taken about using it unless a gain of weight is desired.—Advertisement.

to-morrow we'll get something nicer." Thus it came about that the following day Augustus Reeves took his bride to a department store and selected a new suit and hat for her. Jane's heart beat more lightly as she saw the array of costumes brought forward by the obliging saleswoman, for, after all, youth is youth, and every normal daughter of Eve likes pretty clothes. For the moment, she almost forgot that it was Reeves' money that was paying for her new suit. The sum he named as his "limit" seemed small to the clerk, but the country girl made no demur at her husband's frugality.

The next afternoon when she donned the dark blue costume and the becoming hat that went with it, she felt that she looked better than she had ever looked before. Augustus stood watching her and she turned to him with an unaccustomed impulse of gratitude. "You are very kind, Augustus," she said, "to get me these nice things." "Ah, that's all right," he rejoined patronizingly. "There's a lot of dresses at home that I'll give you to fix over—but just now I wanted you to have something real new. A man likes to see the woman that belongs to him looking as good as ought to look. And you've never had many really good clothes." Her emotion of gratitude changed to dumb indignation. So that was why her husband had given her this suit—that she might reflect credit on him! He was not magnanimous enough to allow her to forget that, as a girl, she had been poorer than she was as his wife.

But Reeves did not notice the shadow that came to her face. "Let's go to a walk up Fifth avenue," he suggested. "It's a fine day." His possession was to be paraded, Jane thought bitterly. Just as she might drive a good-looking horse in a stylish rig along the street to show it off! She sees her old admirer in the street. If it was Reeves' ambition, it must have been gratified, for many men glanced admiringly at the slender figure at his side. Jane carried her head high, a bright red spot burned in each cheek. She forgot everything except that she no longer belonged to herself. The dull misery that had made her listless for weeks had given way to a sensation of angry resentment. "For pity's sake"—her husband spoke sharply—"do say something; and do not look less cross and ill-tempered!" She came to herself with a start. "Oh, beg your pardon!" she exclaimed. "I was not aware that I was here." She broke off suddenly, for coming down the street toward her was Edward Sanderson. He was walking rapidly, swinging his cane, absorbed in his thoughts. Within a few feet of her he saw her. He started, violently, paused, then, as he noted who was with her, lifted his hand and passed on, but not before the girl's eyes had met his.

She had thought she would never see this man again, had resolved to forget him, and now at sight of him her long-suppressed emotion surged up within her. She longed to run after him, to stop him, to tell him that she loved him. "Well," questioned Reeves. "What were you saying?" Then, as he observed the change in her face—"What's the matter? You look kinder sick." He had not seen Sanderson, the girl realized with relief. "I'm tired," she said tremulously. "Let's go back to the hotel."

She had regained her color when she and her husband seated themselves at the dinner table two hours later. "I guess the city life's too much for you," Reeves remarked. "You look worn out." "Augustus," she pleaded suddenly. "Let's go home. You're right. I am tired." "I'm willing," he agreed with a

Guard Railroad Bridge Leading to Munition Plant
Special to the Telegraph
Lewistown, Pa., Jan. 7.—The Placing of special guards at the Pennsylvania Railroad bridges here and at the junction is further evidence that reports circulated some time ago regarding spies had some foundation. Michael Mater and J. G. Heckert yesterday were placed on duty at the bridge crossing the Juniata river leading to the Burnham steel plant. All local industries are working on war munition orders.

Trespassers Must Keep Off Reading Property
"Trespassing on Railway Property" was the topic of discussion at a meeting of the Reading Railway officials held at the Reading Terminal, Philadelphia. A notice was formulated and it is expected that it will be posted at the shops, offices and stations in a few days. It is understood that not only civilians, but railroad men who have no business on the tracks, will be included. It is the purpose to use every effort in breaking up the practice, and the order will be equally as strict as that issued by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company more than a year ago.

INTEREST BETING SHOWN IN REVIVAL MEETING AT LEMOYNE
Special to the Telegraph
Lemoyne, Pa., Jan. 7.—The Davis Evangelical services at the Grace United Evangelical Church continue to draw large crowds every night. The interest in the meetings is steadily increasing and the outlook for a successful revival looks very good. Last evening the Rev. Mr. Davis preached to a crowded house on "Get Up and Dust." The Rev. Mr. Menges, pastor of the Christian Church, attended the service and made the opening prayer.

HENRY SHEFFER BURIED
Special to the Telegraph
Dillsburg, Pa., Jan. 7.—The funeral services for Henry Sheffer, the aged Civil War veteran, who died on Monday while on a visit to his daughter in Harrisburg, were held on Thursday at the home of his son, M. Grant Sheffer, in Harrisburg street. The services were conducted in the Barrens Church by the Rev. G. H. Evelyn, pastor of the Dillsburg Lutheran church. Burial was made in the cemetery adjoining the church.

MRS. JULIA P. FORTENBAUGH
Special to the Telegraph
New Cumberland, Pa., Jan. 7.—The body of Mrs. Julia Prowell Fortenbaugh, whose death occurred at the home of her son-in-law, Dr. Robert Swiler, at Harrisburg on Thursday morning, was brought to the home of her daughter, Mrs. William Kohler, in Reno street, near Third. Mrs. Fortenbaugh was seventy-five years of age and was born in Fishing Creek Valley, York county, at the old Prowell Mill. She is survived by the following children: Mrs. William Kohler, Mrs. Benjamin Fisher, New Cumberland; Mrs. R. L. Swiler, Harrisburg; James Fortenbaugh, Enola; and Abram Fortenbaugh, of New Cumberland, also the following sisters and brothers, Mrs. R. M. Kline, New Cumberland; Mrs. John Fetrow, York county; Mr. W. Quigley, Red Lion; and John W. Powell, York county. Funeral services will be held Saturday at 10 a. m. in the Church of God, conducted by the Rev. J. W. Deshong. Burial will take place at Salem Cemetery, York county.

MYERS FUNERAL SUNDAY
Special to the Telegraph
Mechanicsburg, Pa., Jan. 7.—The funeral service for Samuel Myers, who died yesterday morning, will be held on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the Rev. T. J. Ferguson, of Silver Spring Presbyterian Church, officiating. Burial will be made in the Trindle Spring Cemetery. Mr. Myers served as councilman of the borough for several years and was a member of Canonicus Tribe, Independent Order of Red Men.

BANK CASHIER RESIGNS
Special to the Telegraph
Mechanicsburg, Pa., Jan. 7.—After having been cashier of the Mechanicsburg National Bank five years, Frank E. Herr will go to Lancaster, where he has accepted a position with the Agricultural Trust Company. C. I. Swartz, teller of the bank for the past five years, was elected cashier by the directors to succeed Mr. Herr. N. M. Wertz, who was bookkeeper, was advanced to the position of teller and George Deitz was elected bookkeeper. Mr. Herr will leave for his new field of work in several weeks.

You will read in the papers about how fine is this year's crop of oranges in Florida. Doubtless you know that oranges in Florida reach greater perfection than anywhere else, but you may have bought in the past Florida oranges that were not as good as you expected them to be. If so, it will be good news to you that there is now a way by which you make sure of getting the sweet, juicy, delicious, full flavored Florida oranges that are so pleasing to the taste and so helpful to the system.

Sealdsweet Fruit Is Fully Ripe Before It Is Picked
Sealdsweet oranges are grown in the groves of Florida's most progressive fruit men. They are carefully tended and looked after, from blossom to ripened fruit, always they remain on the trees until fully ripe before they are picked.
Sealdsweet is the trademark of the Florida Citrus Exchange, a co-operative body of growers. They take pride in their fruit and want it to reach consumers in prime condition. It is handled exclusively by white-gloved workers.

Sealdsweet Grapefruit Are Unexcelled
Sealdsweet grapefruit, too, are tree-ripened, contain a maximum amount of juice, have both food and drink value, and in taste and flavor are unexcelled. Try them—look for the Sealdsweet trademark. Most fruit dealers and grocery stores sell Sealdsweet oranges and grapefruit in season. Your dealer can supply you and will do so if you urge him.
Oranges and grapefruit are useful in cookery and for confections, and may be served on almost every occasion. Booklet telling how and when to use them mailed to any address free on application.
