ORPHEUM Tuesday and Wednesday and Wednesday matinee, January 11 and 12—Al. G. Field and His Greater Minstrels.

Thursday matinee and night, January 13—"The Auto Girls." (Burlesque.)

PATRIOTIC TABLEAU With much of the civilized world shaken by war, no subject is being more thought about and talked out than the "spirit of nationalism," and Al. G. Field Greater Minstrels are being given enthusiastic demonstrations everywhere for the series of patriotic tableaux they present during the performance this season.

The first tableaux shown is that picturing "Washington Crossing the Delaware." This is followed by a living reproduction of the famous painting, "The Spirit of '76." Another picture shows veterans of the Civil War, and some children of to-day, and is entitled "Peace." The concluding one is designated "Our Army and Navy," and emphasizes that "right we must, it is the army and navy that stands between our homes and the enemy."

The Al. G. Field Greater Minstrels are coming to the Orpheum next Tuesday and Wednesday.

MAJESTIC To-day witnesses the grand finale of one of the best vaudeville bills patrons of the Majestic have seen, says the management. This is true not only because William Weston and company are offering the most pretentious novelty of the season, but because this feature in turn is backed up by dainty Dorothy Meuther, as a singing comedienne, and because Jimmie Lucas and his pretty partner, Miss Lucille, are serving up a rattling comedy turn sprinkled with burlesque called "Nuggety." Other interesting acts include Fern, Bigelow and Meahan, the rapid-fire tumbling comedians, and Horn and Paris, offering a neat singing hit called "A Venetian Flirtation." Advance press notices that preceded "The Bell Ringers" which will be the headline in the Majestic show the first half of next week, say that this new act rings of all the excellence that Harrisburg associates with the Dunbar acts.

AT THE VICTORIA "Thou Art the Man," a story of Anglo-Indian life of the present day, is by George Cameron, author of "A Million Bid," and is an original manuscript, written especially for motion picture production, founded on the Biblical story of "Tishah." The scenes are all laid in India, and depict the life of the resident Englishman, with pimples of the fever-ridden districts where the white man finds it impossible to exist. The story tells of a rich man who covets a poor clerk's beautiful wife. She is ordered to the hills during the hot summer, and her husband, that he may be able to send her away, accepts a position in the interior of India, that carries a handsome salary offered by the rich man. The remainder will save as a surprise for you, "Tishah" is a romance, a five part comedy featuring Charley Chaplin and Marie Dressler will be shown Monday.

NAZIMOVA'S "WAR BRIDES" COMING Sara Biala and a supporting company of seven players will present Madame Nazimova's celebrated play, "War Brides" at the Majestic Theater during the latter part of January. With this vehicle Nazimova made her first appearance in vaudeville, commanding $3,500 weekly salary, and the act was a sensation in all the biggest theaters in the country. Miss Biala, who plays the role of Joan in the company booked for the Majestic, is an actress of great capabilities.

"Although ugly, improper and objectionable plays may create a stir when first produced and by some even be raised," says Forbes-Robertson, "they cannot have a lasting life. Their success is sensational and accidental and in due course of time they will die out of notice and disappear. True lovers of the drama need feel no anxiety," Forbes-Robertson will soon appear at the Orpheum.

ENGLISH WIT VS. IRISH HUMOR Seumas MacManus, the Irish writer and lecturer, who is to lecture here in Technical High Auditorium on January 11, gives his opinion that the wit of an Englishman will not be liable to blind you when it scintillates. He says that when he was one day riding on an inside tourist car, in County Kerry, he got into a dispute on Irish wit with a rather thick-headed Englishman who sat beside him. So absorbed were they in their argument that when they reached a rather steep hill on the road, and the jarvey, or car driver—who, by the way, is the greatest wit in Ireland—had jumped off to lighten the horses' load up the hill, he, MacManus, forgot his duty to the dumb animals, kept his seat and went on with his argument. The jarvey, walking behind the car, opened the door of it several times and slammed it again with a loud slam, which at length so annoyed the Englishman, that he irritably asked why he was doing that. "Because, sir," said the sly jarvey, "every time the horses hear that door slam they think that another man has got out, and it gives the creatures encouragement on the hill." The Englishman, at hearing this, slapped his knee, and let out of him a great guffaw. To Seumas MacManus, who had taken the hint and jumped out of the Englishman, settling himself back for a more comfortable seat, said triumphantly: "And this is some of your boasted Irish brightness—Eh? Ha, ha, ha! Did you ever know anything more stupid?" "Well, I must confess," replied Seumas MacManus, "that Ireland carries its share of stupidity—in the tourist season." At this remark again the Englishman slapped his knee and roared right heartily.

THE DRY NAVY IS MAKING GOOD I have had the privilege of traveling as a guest on several of our American men-of-war since the new orders forbidding the use of intoxicating liquors among men and officers. The change for the better permeates every department of conduct and service. Both officers and men are younger by many years and no one can question their ability to handle these valuable aggregations of delicate machinery. Steady hands, clear brains, clean bodies are the rule and not the exception in all departments. Neither the officers nor the men would go back to the old conditions, when rations of grog and ward-room drinking were the rule—Correspondence of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD.

January 6 witnessed the screen debut of Constance Collier, a well-known English actress whose family has been associated with the stage for a matter of many years.

"ALoha OE" To-day witnesses the passing of the Colonial's current Triangle program which is made up of a delightful romance of the South Sea Isles called "Aloha OE," meaning "Fare Thee Well," featuring Willard Mack, well-known actor of the legitimate stage. The comedy feature, which is almost equally important is called "The Village Scandal" with Roscoe Arbuckle and Raymond Hitchcock.

"THE MARRIAGE OF KITTY" AT THE REGENT Internationally famous as a comedienne, Fannie Ward will make her debut as a photodramatic star in the Jesse L. Lasky Company's production, "The Marriage of Kitty," by Francis de Croisset and Fred de Gresac at the Regent to-day, in a special Paramount show. Kitty in the play is a young woman who suddenly is thrown on her own resources for a livelihood. Through a lawyer friend, it she quite willing agrees to marry Lord Reginald Beisze, a young English peer, whom she has never met. The necessity of Lord Reginald's marriage was brought about through a provision in the will of his wealthy American uncle that unless he married within a year from the date of the uncle's death he would lose the fortune. Furthermore, he must not marry an actress. It happened that he was, in fact, infatuated with Mme. Helen, an actress, so the marriage to Kitty is a legal subterfuge, it being agreed within six months the couple would be divorced and Kitty would receive a handsome sum for her trouble. The play concludes with a surprising series of situations in which the resourceful Kitty finds her way to ultimate happiness.

White House Reception Guests Hurt in Runaway Washington, Jan. 8. — Miss Flora Wilson, daughter of former Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, and Miss Asvelle Gillette, of this city, who attended the White House Pan-American reception last night were injured, though not seriously, in a runaway accident. The accident occurred as they were about to return to their homes. The driver, it is said, got off the carriage to get his hat which he had dropped. The horses became frightened and ran down Executive avenue towards the Ellipse. In turning a corner, the carriage struck an iron fence, throwing the occupants out.

Nineveh proper, Khorsabad, Calah and Keramis, which agrees with the dimensions given by Diodorus, the Greek historian, and fully justifies Jonah's path into the exceeding great city of three days' journey. — The Christian Herald.

THE FOUR BOROUGH OF GREATER NINEVEH The ruins of ancient Nineveh on the Tigris River are now fairly well determined. The north wall extending due east from the river was 7,000 feet long; the eastern wall was three miles long; the southern wall only 1,000 feet, while the western or river front extended for two and one-half miles along the Tigris. The actual extent of the city contained about 1,800 acres. But Greater Nineveh—compare Greater New York—was made up of a tetropolis of four cities.
