ROCKWOOD FIVE PLAY SATURDAY

To Meet Harrisburg Independents; McCord Hopes to Get Back in the Game

Philadelphia's strongest independent team will be the attraction at Chestnut street Hall Saturday night of this week, when the Rockwood team will oppose the local Independents. This will be the first time these stars have appeared against the locals.

The Rockwood team is made up of players of Eastern League caliber, but are prevented by the positions they hold in Philadelphia from playing in the league. One of their men, white, played most of last season with the De Neri Club, but was compelled to drop out this year.

McCord expects to get back in the game Saturday night, and with their regular line-up intact, the locals hope to break the record of the Philadelpians.

The Independents held a very satis factory practice Wednesday against the Central High team, and their short snappy passes were much in evidence. Captain McCord is working to develop team work

PERCY D. HAUGHTON

Percy D. Haughton, coach of the Harvard football team, has become the owner, at least the representative of the new owners, of the Boston National League baseball club. James E. Gaffney, who, three years ago, bought the club for $187,000, and made a pennant winner of it in 1914, received an offer of more than a half million and decided to sell. Haughton will be elected president of the club. The money behind him is Boston capital.
