Asserts Defense Plan Is Result of Panic Happenings in Europe

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13.—Miss Jane Adams, speaking for the Women's Peace party declared to the House military committee to-day that the campaign for national defense in America was the result of panic over what is happening in Europe.

"We women feel that one outcome of the European war will be a renewed campaign for disarmament," said she. "The United States should await the conclusion."

The committee returned to its examination of Major General Bliss, assistant chief of the army, while Miss Adams went to the White House and conferred with President Wilson.
