MAY BURY HUERTA, DEPOSED RULER IN MEXICO

operation as a federal prisoner at Fort Bliss last July. Attending physicians attributed death to a complication of liver complaints, which caused a general breakdown.

The general's condition first became alarming last Fall and he was transferred from Fort Bliss to his home in El Paso. Apparently improved after a stay at home, he again was removed to the fort. Shortly after Christmas, physicians recommended immediate removal to his home again. From that time on his decline was rapid.

Only two days ago a federal grand jury, in San Antonio, Tex., returned indictments against Huerta charging conspiracy to violate the neutrality laws of the United States.

General Bravo, a close friend speaking of the treatment of Americans in Mexico during Huerta's reign recalled instructions contained in a dispatch sent to him by Huerta at the time the American marines were landed at Vera Cruz, in April, 1914, and giving instructions to Bravo to protect the lives and property of American citizens. The telegram read: "I give you extraordinary power to take all the measures that are necessary to the end that under your strict responsibility you protect the lives and property of American citizens."

Regarded as Tyrant

General Victoriano Huerta, for 17 months Dictator of Mexico, incurred the hatred of most Mexicans, although the loyalty of a large number cannot be denied. His supporters insisted his rule of force was as well justified as the reign of Porfirio Diaz and that if his position had been equally strong, he would have repeated the record of "benevolent despotism." To the world in general, however, he was an evil tyrant, a selfish and unpatriotic person who lived only to gratify his own desires.

Huerta lived as an army officer in many garrisons, when, as a colonel, he participated in the campaign against Canuto Neri, the bandit of the State of Guerrero.

He was so successful that in 1901 he was sent against Rafael del Castro, another Guerrero rebel. In the same year he suppressed a revolt of Maya Indians in Yucatan, and the next year he was breveted a general of brigade in recognition of his services.

Became Popular

General Huerta became so popular that President Diaz distrusted him and kept him inactive for four years. Huerta returned to the army, and the next year he was ordered to quell Emiliano Zapata, the elusive bandit of Morelos. He could not capture Zapata, in his campaign has officially praised.

Provisional President Licenciado Francisco de la Barra sent Huerta against Zapata again, but when Madero became president Huerta was recalled.

For a year Huerta was a general without a command. But Pascual Orozco, who was in revolt against Madero in the north, was ordered to attack him, and then Huerta received command of the disorganized army. He met Orozco at Comoles May 12, 1912, and scored a victory. Orozco was defeated again at Rellano and at Bachimba.

Reign of Terror

Then came the "decena tragica" tragic ten days when 5,000 persons were killed in the streets of Mexico City. Bernardo Reyes, Felix Diaz and Manuel Mondragon attempted a coup d'etat February 9, 1913, and Madero put Huerta at the head of his defense. After frightful bloodshed Huerta turned traitor to Madero, arrested him and his cabinet and forced the leaders of the revolt into exile. A few days later, the kindly Madero, with his wife pleading on her knees for his life from the Dictator, was shot "trying to escape."

Other heads of the previous Administration died mysteriously. It was the beginning of a reign of terror, in the course of which hundreds are believed to have been secretly executed. Huerta flaunted both Mexican constitution and international law.

Until midsummer of 1914, however, Huerta refused to yield. On April 21, 1914, United States forces seized Vera Cruz. The "A-B-C" powers brought about mediation between the Huerta government and the Constitutionalists, the meeting being held at Niagara Falls. It was hard to say whether the mediation efforts or the capture of Zacatecas and other cities near the capital compelled Huerta to abdicate.

U. S. SOLDIER IN UNIFORM IS TAKEN OFF SHIP

United States soldier has been removed under similar conditions from an American vessel since the war of 1812. The British officer boarded the vessel and asked passengers as to their nationality.

Clark said he was born near Vienna, had taken out his first American citizenship papers some time ago.

Taken to Jamaica

The neutrality officer left the ship without comment on Clark's case but shortly afterward, passengers said, three negro soldiers in uniform boarded the Santa Marta and told Clark to accompany them ashore.

Subsequently Clark said he was taken to what is known as the lower concentration camp on the outskirts of Jamaica and there closely questioned by the commanding officer. While the present American passengers on the Santa Marta decided to appeal to the American consul, but before this could be done Clark returned.

Clark said to-day that he would make a full report of the incident to the War Department.

GENERAL HUERTA

(General Victoriano Huerta, the Mexican leader, is pictured above. The picture was taken last summer by Miss Pearl V. Goodhart, stenographer in the office of the Bradstreet Mercantile Agency, 29 North Second street. Miss Goodhart with a girl friend was visiting in Mexico.)

The picture was taken while General Huerta was a prisoner at Fort Bliss, Texas. He is in company with his interpreter, the Mexican General being unable to speak English. It was with some persuasion that General Huerta consented to pose. He asked Miss Goodhart where she was from and when told, "Harrisburg, Pennsylvania," he answered, "I want to visit that city so much to see the beautiful Capitol."

MAN'S SKULL FRACTURED

While working at the Pennsylvania Steel company, Emil Vogt, aged 46, Enhart, was struck by a heavy piece of iron, suffering a fractured skull and a compound comminuted fracture of the lower jaw. His condition is serious. Vogt was brought to the Harrisburg hospital.

UPTOWN PEOPLE BECOME ACTIVE

Discuss Improvements in That Section; Interest Growing in Plans

Residents in the uptown districts, following the action of the businessmen, are interesting themselves in the affairs of the community and its improvement.

According to a number of the property owners who have closely followed the campaign of co-operative advertising, the plan of co-operation will bring the best results for the people in that section.

Interest in the project is increasing and the residents in many cases are looking into the affairs of the community in which they live. Improved street lighting and a change in the car system are the things spoken of most by the people in the uptown section. Whether the change in traffic rules spoken of in the downtown district will help in solving the car system is problematical, according to a number of property owners, who are now waiting until something more definite is done.

Other community interests are being discussed, including the plans proposed for the development of the Capitol Park extension.

Jury Disagrees After Wrangling For 5 Hours On an "11 to 1" Basis

After wrangling behind the doors of a jury room for more than five hours the jury that tried Joseph Albinitz for furnishing liquor to crippled 14-year-old Paul Erb late yesterday afternoon reported to Additional Law Judge McCarrell that it "couldn't agree on a verdict." The jury was dismissed. It is expected that the case will be re-tried at the special term February 7.

Of the twelve jurors eleven insisted upon a verdict of "guilty"; one lone juror stood out for acquittal. A note from the jury room first apprised the court that the dozen men were not of one mind on the question; the note stated that the jury stood "eleven to one." A little later the twelve filed into the courtroom.

Erb's case attracted more than ordinary attention. The boy had been seriously burned by an explosion of some fireworks which had been placed in his pocket while he was under the influence of liquor. For several weeks he hovered between life and death. He had to be wheeled into court in a chair. Albinitz was charged with having furnished the liquor to the lad.

Judge Scores Youth Who Urges Sweetheart to Testify Falsely

The method youthful Chester Myers, of Steelton, adopted yesterday afternoon in No. 2 court room to clear himself of charges preferred by his one-time 13-year-old affinity, was roundly scored by Additional Law Judge McCarrell when the youth appeared for sentence. The court imposed the usual penalty which includes the weekly maintenance of his year-old daughter.

Charged by his discarded little suumate with the crime, Myers brought his equally pretty affinity to-day into court to help him prove an alibi. The small mother had declared that she had entertained Chester at the exact hour which the youth swore he was meeting his "lady friend." And when Chester's new love was called, she promptly took the witness stand and corroborated her young sweetheart's testimony. But the jury was skeptical.

So, when Judge McCarrell imposed the usual sentence he reprimanded Chester severely, not only for "perjuring himself on the witness stand but for urging a respectable young girl to do likewise."

Parents Can Hardly Tell Well One From Other With Grip

York, Pa., Jan. 14.—One of the year-old twins of Mr. and Mrs. Francis M. Gallatin, of York, has the grip, and so much alike are the children that several times the medicine has almost been administered to the well one.

The parents themselves admit that they are unable to tell which is Ruth and which is Dorothy, except for a tiny mark on the ankle of one of the girls.

trial list but District Attorney Michael E. Stroup said he doubted whether they can be reached before to-morrow. The belief was expressed in courthouse circles that the trials would all have to go over until the special term of February 7.

The true bills in the charges of violating the primary laws were found against the following:

Raymond Bell, Harrison Keim, Charles R. Miller, Percy Moore, D. E. Newman, George Potter, Ross Swartz, C. R. Swartz, J. H. Reed and William H. Jones, W. H. Young and George E. Moore of the Sixth Ward election board.

In addition to answering to the primary election charges the Sixth ward board will also have to answer to a jury for alleged conspiracy.

The hearing of the election cases before the grand jury occupied the center of the stage in to-day's session of court. Some of the principal officers of the county were among the witnesses called. These included the old board of county commissioners and D. Frank Lebo, ex-chief clerk.

Triangle Story Again Related to a Jury

Most of this morning's session in No. 1 room was taken up with the trial of Henry T. Kipple and Ellen Brosey on charges of bigamy, perjury and furnishing liquor to minors.

The woman pleaded guilty to all the charges but furnishing liquor to minors. It was charged that she and Kipple had entertained frequently with beer and whiskey as the feature of the entertainment, and that very often the guests were youths of tender years.

Kipple, however, defended himself on the ground that he believed his first wife was dead when he got a license in the Fall of 1915 to wed Ellen Brosey. Letters were produced by

LITTLE BUILDING ON NOW

Realty Men Watching "Hard-scrabble" Proceedings—Meeting Tonight

Bids for grading and sewerage of the 3.5-acre plot of the Keystone State Fair and Industrial Exposition Company near Middletown, preparatory to erecting an automobile speedway and fair buildings thereon, were opened yesterday afternoon at the office of the company in the Kunkel building and sent to the architects, Graham, Burnham and Company, of Chicago, for tabulation. The contract will be signed upon the recommendation of that firm in the offices of the architects next Tuesday morning and the work will be started as soon thereafter as possible.

The advent of real wintry, "grip" producing weather has caused a complete shutdown naturally to all outdoor work in the building line, but real estate men and contractors are already figuring by their cosy fire-sides on possibilities for an early start in the Spring.

Most of the building operations which had started in the early Fall will only need the finishing touches in the Spring; other operations have been completed; but many new jobs are planned for the new year's work.

While real estate men and contractors are figuring on their own plans for the year they are keeping a pretty close watch on the "Hard-scrabble" situation and its possibilities in the realty world.

The report of the "Hard-scrabble" viewers' report has been filed with the Dauphin county court and will be presented for confirmation within the next thirty days. However, the affected property owners are up in arms and twenty or more of them have organized to fight the condemnation proceedings in the courts.

The new association will meet tonight to decide upon definite plans for the campaign and to appoint committees on membership, etc.

Falls in temperature from 2 to 42 degrees were reported all over this section of the United States east of the Mississippi river, and in some of the cities of the Middle West no relief is in sight after two days of zero weather.

No skating at Wildwood to-day was an announcement of officials of the Department of Parks, but with continued cold weather lovers of the outdoor sport will probably be given their opportunity to-morrow.

Slush ice floated down the Susquehanna to-day and should the cold wave of the last several days continue the river is expected to close at this point.

The Service You Can't See Until After You Buy

It is doubtful if any word has been batted around so relentlessly as "Service."

Now, we believe, is the fitting time to let our friends know exactly what we mean.

We know that the value of your machine is not simply its power, its speed, its load capacity, but its dependability. Its dependability depends largely on the professional ability of the men back of your local service.

This, then, is what our better service means to you:

- (1) Adequate stock of Repair Parts, Goodyear Tires and Accessories.
- (2) Skilled mechanics.
- (3) Immediate Help in Case of Trouble.
- (4) Reasonable charges for time and material.
- (5) Frequent Inspection of Machine.

All these things mean better results, less upkeep for you. You may not actually see our service when you buy, but will appreciate the merit of this unseen value later.
