SAFETY WORK IS TO BE SIMPLIFIED

Duplication of Inspections Will Be Avoided by the State's Officials

Two steps to prevent duplication in State inspections and to save the State money in administration through cooperation with insurance in the State have just been taken at the Capitol. The State Insurance board has appointed as its safety engineer R. M. Pennock, who is in charge of safety inspection work in the Department of Labor and Industry, and who will handle the work so that there will be no "lost motion." He has been working on prevention lines for several years. The State Industrial Board has arranged that inspections of boilers and elevators will be accepted by the State if made by inspectors employed by casualty companies who have passed the State examinations. This gives the State an auxiliary inspection service. Farmers Turn Out.—Farmers of Pennsylvania have been attending farmers' institutes at a rate which has surprised State officials because of the manner in which they have turned out and the questions they have asked. The attendance at some institutes is a third larger than in previous years. The mild winter and the fair condition of roads are believed to be contributing causes. The questions asked deal largely with soil and intensive farming. Seven Arrested.—Seven persons have been arrested for the sale of cold storage eggs as fresh, the orders having been issued from the Department of Agriculture following the decision in the Blair county courts. The arrests were made in Chester, Montgomery and Westmoreland counties. Commission to Meet.—The Public Service Commission will meet here next week. The Tenth street grade crossing case will be up on Monday. No Action Taken.—The State Board of Accounts has taken no action as yet in the matter of the constitutional amendment advertising contracts. Will Meet Tuesday.—The State Compensation Board will meet on Tuesday to consider a number of applications for exemption and to consider the suggestions for wage determinations submitted by the conference of compensation officials and insurance men. Hearings Next Month.—The State Industrial Board will meet at Philadelphia on February 1 to discuss the electrical and textile codes, which are to be adopted soon. To Discuss Coal Tax.—Governor Brumbaugh will meet with State officials in Philadelphia to-day to discuss the coal tax situation and the investigation to be undertaken into

BOROUGH AND COMPENSATION

State Board Issues a Letter to Men of Smaller Municipalities

Officials of all boroughs, school boards, townships and other subdivisions of government created by the State are being notified by letter from the bureau of workmen's compensation of the Department of Labor and Industry that such governmental units may carry their own compensation liability insurance upon formal application to the Workmen's Compensation Board either by resolution or by letter. No blank forms for the use of governmental units in applying for self-insurance have been prepared. The letter from the compensation board to the officials of the governmental subdivisions points out that the State insurance fund offers insurance 10 per cent. lower than other mediums and adds that consideration of the subject will probably show that it is more advantageous to be insured than to obtain exemption and run the risk of paying a much greater sum than the premium to an injured employe. It is further pointed out that "Exemption from the necessity of insuring liability under that act does not relieve from the necessity of paying compensation to any employe who may be injured in the performance of his duty." "Exemption from the necessity of insuring simply means that any compensation liability which may arise must be paid out of current funds or the tax rate increased to raise the money necessary to meet the obligation."
