MEADE W. C. T. U. MEETING

A meeting of the Meade W. C. T. U. will be held Monday evening at 7 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. A. F. Ohrem, 112 Hoerner street, with Mrs. H. Thompson presiding.

The subject for discussion is "What will National Prohibition Do?" Mrs. Clayton A. Smucker will conduct a quiz on the national report and Mrs. W. W. Oberdier will tell how to arouse interest in nonattending members. A make Special Pledges of the School faculty, and Miss Morgan, of the Y. W. C. A., will coach the teams. The coaches have decided there will be three teams, so that everyone stands chances of getting on a team. The regular teams will not be arranged until after several practices. Captains for the teams will then be chosen and the various games arranged for.

Make Special Pledges

The Servants of the King of the Market Square Presbyterian Church held their regular monthly meeting in the church parlor last evening. Miss Mabel Findley Wright, the president, presided. The lesson story, "Dwight L. Moody," was remarkably told by Miss Frances Hause and the lesson discussion was well presented by Miss Dorothy Arnold and Miss Mary Hawes. Miss Minerva Van Horn had charge of the devotion and gave a fine talk on the lesson Scripture.

At this meeting special offerings for mission pledges were arranged and great emphasis placed upon the members attending the Sunday morning prayer group. It was also decided that the name of the society be changed from the Servants of the King to Comrades in Service.

The meeting was impressive and interesting, an important one, and unusually well attended.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL NEWS MINERS PREPARE FOR CONVENTION

By Associated Press

Hazleton, Pa., Jan. 15 .- Most of the delegates from the anthracite fields delegates from the anthracite fields will leave to-night for Indianapolis to attend the next international convention of the United Mine Workers of America, which opens on Tuesday. Those from the Schuylkill section will start Sunday afternoon.

The convention will be one of the biggest and most important in the history of the union. Both the anthracite and the bituminous agreements expire March 31 and new scales must be negotiated.

The demands of the anthracite miners have already been framed and only await the official approval of the international body, which is expected to be in session two or three weeks. After its adjournment conferences will be sought by the scale committee with the representatives of the operators.

Demand Increase

with the representatives of the operators.

Demand Increase

The demands of the hard coal men include: Twenty per cent. wage advance, full and complete recognition of the union and a two-year agreement. The present contract was made for four years.

It is not believed that there will be a strike if the call committee and the operators are unable to enter into a new contract before April 1. John P. White, international president of the United Mine Workers, quoted as having declared against strikes except as a last resort. According to interviews with Mr. White he favors a policy of no suspensions pending negotiations even if they extend beyond the limit of the old contract. It is said that President White will urge this plan at Indianapolis and has hopes of its adoption by the convention.

On account of President White's supposed no-strike attitude there has

The Battles in

"Hurrah!" shouted Plumpy's father one morning. "Hurrah, boy, the glad New Year is here. Happy New Year to you!"
"Happy New Year Dad!" answered Plumpy, as the smiles spread all over his face. Why of course it would be a happy New Year. He had all the toys he had wanted for Christmas—and his mother's big boxes still were full of cakes and candy for tea parties and dinners for hungry boys, and the snow was on the ground, and he had a new sled—and—and—oh there were so many things to be happy about. Why he never again would listen to the voices of those "Good morning, Fairies" he said to be the voices of those "Good morning, Fairies" he said to be the voices of those to be happy about. Why he never again would listen to the voices of those horrid Gnomes!

"Good morning, Fairies," he said to himself. "Good morning, happy friends. What can you do for me this morning? I am not even going to look at the Gnomes. I will leave you tell me how to spend the day."

"Why what a shiny boy!" exclaimed the Fairies. "A happy New Year to you. What can we do for you to-day? Why we'll draw up a whole page, of resolutions for you. See here is a clean sheet in your heart tablet. We will fill it with resolutions."

"Good," said Plumpy, "and I will keep them, too, kind Fairy friends."

"Be careful, Plumpy," warned a little voice. "We Fairies do not like boys who brag, for sometimes they are the ones who fall."

"Oh, but I won't, I tell you," said Plumpy. "I will never let those Gnomes tempt me any more. Go ahead and write down your resolutions in my heart tablet.

And then Plumpy could feel a scratching, scratching sound, as the Fairies wrote.

"I will never quarrel with my brother any more."
"I will help mother keep coal in the coal bucket."
"I will help mother keep coal in the coal bucket."
"I will be kind to my nurse."
"I will never tell any more untruths when I do something I should not."
"I will not lease my dog."
"I will never cry when I must go to school."
I will do whatever my mother and father and teacher want me to."
"Dear me," said Plumpy at last. "Stop, Fairles, stop writing, or I am fraid I'll be an angel. But I'll keep ALL of those resolutions. You see if I on't."

But just as he said this he thought he heard a disagreeable little chuckle the left side of his hollow. It was a Gnome, he knew. How he hated the old

I am, and I'm going to tell the folks now just what I am going to do."

So off he trudged and found his father.

"Daddy," said he. "I am going to be good all of next year—every single day."

"Bully for you, my son," said his father, smiling. But as Plumpy walked away, somehow or other he thought his father's chuckle had sounded almost like that of the little Gnome under his jacket, and they all seemed to be saying the same thing: "We'll see! We'll see! We'll see! We'll see! We'll see!
