HOLDS GERMANY UP AS MODEL FOR U. S.

prattle with unctuous self-righteousness about the duty of neutrality, we show that we do not really fear God; on the contrary, we show an odious fear of the devil and a mean readiness to serve him.

The nation should, the Colonel said, be prepared to take its own part. A country that cannot defend itself often is as fertile a source of evil as one which does wrong to others, he said, continuing:

Develop Americanism
"Whatever may be the case in an infinitely remote future, at present no people can render very great service to humanity unless as a people they feel an intense sense of national cohesion and solidarity. The man who loves other nations as much as he does his own country stands on a par with a man who loves other women as much as he does his own wife. The United States can accomplish little for mankind save in so far as within its borders it develops an intense spirit of Americanism. The professors of every form of hyphenated Americanism are as thoroughly the foes of this country as if they dwelled without its borders and made active war against it. Once it was true, as Lincoln said, that this country could not endure half free and half slave. To-day it is true that it cannot endure half American and half foreign. The hyphen is incompatible with patriotism.

"World peace must rest on the will- ingness of nations with courage, cool- foresight and readiness for self-sacrifice to defend the fabric of international law. No nation can help in securing an organized, peaceful and justice-doing world community until it is willing to run risks and make efforts to secure and maintain such a community."

Discussing Germany, Colonel Roosevelt said:

"For the last eighteen months I have borne testimony with all my strength against Germany because of its cynical disregard of the obligations of international humanity, alike in its dealings with Belgium, in the outrages committed on noncombatants of other nationalities and in its assaults on our own people. It has been to our deep discredit as a nation that we have not actively and effectively interfered against the callous brutality. But, exactly as I hold it to be an abhorrent thing to show timidity or weakness in dealing with Germany where Germany is wrong—where she wrongs either ourselves or others—so I hold it an un- speakably foolish thing to refuse to pay heed to the German example where this example should be followed by other nations.

National Efficiency
"Germany offers a striking example of national efficiency on a gigantic scale. Germany has been far in ad- vance of us in securing industrial as- surance, old age pensions and homes, a reasonably fair division of profits be- tween employer and employed, and the like. She has also been far in ad- vance of us in the way she has both controlled and encouraged industry. Above all, she has been far in advance of us in securing national cohesion, in requiring both from the great em- ployer and from the man who toils with his hands the fullest and most complete loyalty to the nation.

"We should at once begin govern- mental encouragement and control of our munition plants. To make war on them is to make war on the United States; and those doing so should be treated accordingly and all who en- courage them should be treated ac- cordingly. The existing plants should be encouraged in every legitimate way and provision made to encourage this continuance after the war. But it is most unfortunate that they are situ- ated so near the seacoast. The es- tablishment of munition plants further inland should be in every way encour- aged and promoted. Pittsburgh is as far east as any plant should by rights be placed. This whole matter of pro- viding and regulating the output of munitions is one in which Germany should especially stand as our model.

"For adequate defense we need a big, efficient navy, a small, efficient army (one of a quarter of a million men, which, relatively to the popu- lation of the nation, is no larger than the police force of New York city is to the population of New York), and finally and most important of all a system of universal military training in times of peace which shall be a basis for whatever service, military or civil, is needed in time of war.

"As regards the army, the important point is to remember that it should be built up now and not ten years hence, and not by a plan that will only find fruition ten years hence.

"But I do not believe in a large regu- lar army. The proposed continental army is an absurdity. If passed, it may for a year or two prove a par- tially successful rival to the National Guard and attract some young men. But serious-minded men who have their way to make in the world cannot and ought not go into any such army, which proposes to penalize patriotism by making the patriotic man incur a heavy loss in time, or in money, or in business training, or in opportunity, or in all four, at the very period of his life when it is most essential that he should not be put at a disadvantage compared to his less patriotic and more selfish competitors and rivals.

"There should be military training as part of a high school education which should include all-round training for citizenship. This training should begin in the schools in serious fashion at about the age of 16. Then between the ages of 18 and 21 there should be four or six months' actual service in the field with the colors.

"The larger Americanism demands that we insist that every immigrant who comes here shall become an American citizen and nothing else; if he shows that he still remains at heart more loyal to another land, let him be promptly returned to that land; and if, on the other hand, he shows that he is in good faith and whole-heartedly an American, let him be treated as on a full equality with the native-born. The larger Americanism demands that we native-born also be whole-hearted in our allegiance to our country and our flag; that we refuse to be sundered from one another along lines of class or creed or sect or national origin; that we judge each American on his merits as a man; that we work for the well being of our bodily selves, but also for the well being of our spiritual selves; that we consider square to all the winds of destiny, high of heart, the masters of our own souls, fit to be the fathers of a race of free- men who shall make and shall keep this land all that it seemed to the prophetic vision of the mighty men who founded it and the mighty men who saved it."

Other speakers at the conference yesterday were Alba B. Johnson, Dr. John Price Jackson, Mrs. Percy V. Pennypacker and Mrs. Marion Clark.
