February Furniture Sale

We predict that Furniture and other Home Furnishings will sell for less money this February than for the next five years

Our February Sale Started To-day

Notwithstanding the fact that nearly all lines of furniture have advanced, we are yet maintaining old prices (for a limited time). For this sale we are making an additional heavy reduction. We invite your careful comparison of our goods and prices with those of other stores. We are in the up-town business district where expenses are lower and we can certainly save you money. Goods purchased this month can be stored until spring, if desired.

ZENTMYER HEAD OF COMMISSION

Tyrone Man Chosen as Chairman of the State Water Board

The State Water Supply Commission at its reorganization meeting to-day elected Robert A. Zentmyer, Tyrone, as chairman; O. S. Keelce, Lock Haven, vice-chairman, and Thomas J. Lynch, Bethlehem, secretary. Mr. Zentmyer was appointed to the position last summer and is in charge of a number of important works which the commission has undertaken.

An opinion was to-day given to the State Prison Labor Commission that receipts from sale of articles manufactured by convicts under the new system should be credited to the manufacturing fund of the commission, but could only be drawn through the fiscal officers of the State. The opinion settles a question which had arisen in regard to the disbursements by the commission.

The Public Service Commission has fixed February 1 for the hearing in the complaint of John F. Shannon against the Valley Railways Company's service in Maryland.

Shremanstown was to-day paid its school appropriation of $526.44.

The Edirose Silk Manufacturing Company of Easton, was chartered to-day with $30,000 capital.

Joseph Mandour, proprietor of the Mandour hotel at Shenandoah, following an appeal made at the State Fire Marshal's department yesterday, was given two weeks in which to submit plans for the reconstruction of his hotel building. The fire marshal had ordered the hotel demolished because of its unsafe construction and the appeal followed. The portions in the building are said to have been a paper composition. The hotel contains 42 rooms which are occupied every night.

Mr. Mandour was represented by ex-Judge Shay, of Schuylkill county.

WILSON WARNS OF DARKER RELATIONS

A note that the United States has never been and never will be an aggressor. Restrained as he was in some of his tensest moments, however, he let no doubt in the minds of his hearers that he has determined to carry his program for preparedness through, no matter what the cost to himself. At the conclusion of his speech he said:

Confident of Success
"I have not myself the slightest doubt of the outcome of this fight for preparedness. Not the slightest thing that ought to be done will be left undone. No political party, no group of men can afford to disappoint America."

President made it clear at the outset of his speech that he was going to touch on a wide range of subjects, although preparedness was the dominant note of his address. Pointing to the right of each of the warring countries of Europe party lines have been set aside for the common good, the President said:

Lay Aside Party Lines
"How can America differ from the safety of America? If the people of other countries can lay aside party lines why cannot we do it? Only the other day the leader of the minority in the House of Representatives sounded this note and I take it that he spoke for those behind him as well as for myself. I want to take this occasion to thank each of the warring countries for the obligation I am under to him."

There were cheers all over the dining hall for Representative James R. Mann of Illinois. When they had subsided the President spoke of American provincialism.
"Only yesterday," he said, "we were afraid to match our wits with the wits of the rest of the world. We preferred to be provincial. But we can no longer afford to be provincial. We are not looking for war. We do not want war."

Liberty Before Peace
"Woe to any man who plays marplot or who seeks to make party politics or personal ambition take precedence over honor and unselfish, unpartisan service!" said the President in speaking of his defense plan before the railroad men. He declared that the country expects action; this is a year of accounting, and the accounting must be definite on the part of the parties and on the part of every individual who wishes to enjoy the public peace."
During his speech before at the railway banquet, where he cast aside almost entirely the text of the address that he had previously prepared for delivery to-night, he was frequently interrupted by applause.

The President admitted that in a message to the last Congress he had said the need for preparedness was not pressing. He declared that he had learned something in the meantime. He cited his recent support of a tariff commission as another instance of a change on his part, but declared that previously there was no need for such a commission. The businessmen enthusiastically cheered his support of the commission.

Mr. Wilson spoke of men of high character who were clouding the preparedness issue. He declared they were provincial, and that the United States could no longer cut itself off from the rest of the world.

The President vigorously defended his Mexican policy. He asserted that to invade Mexico would mean the loss of the confidence of the rest of the Western Hemisphere. He cited the freeing of Cuba as an instance of good done by the United States.

"If we are drawn into the maelstrom which now surges in Europe," the President declared, "we shall not be permitted to do the high things we would prefer."

The President defended the continental army plan drawn by Secretary Garrison, and said that he did not care about the details of any plans as long as 500,000 trained men were provided as reserves under the Federal government. He advocated strengthening the National Guard, but said the Constitution itself put the guard under the State. He added that the United States will not turn in the direction of militarism.

Outlining why the United States should prepare, Wilson said we must protect our rights as a nation and the rights of our citizens in America and outside of it as the consensus of civilized peoples has defined them; must insure the unembarrassed realization of our political development within our own borders, and must protect the peace and political autonomy of the Americans.

Industrial preparedness, with the military training of students in industrial schools, was proposed by the President. He left consideration of navy plans for later addresses.

Businessmen who formerly relied on protective measures in their dealings with foreign powers were criticized by Wilson. He said American busi-

Lived in Shack While Daughter Had Luxuries

Special to the Telegraph
Burlingame, Cal., Jan. 28.—A strange story of buried pasts was related here by Mrs. Marie Berglund, 80, who, declaring she is the mother of Mrs. Emilie Marie McGregor, former wife of Gustav J. McGregor, ex-Mayor of Burlingame, says she will contest the will of her daughter.

Mrs. McGregor left her estate, valued at $10,000, to Mrs. Mary Olsen, her former housekeeper, and several others.

The assertion of Mrs. Berglund, who for many years has subsisted in a little shack in San Francisco, while her alleged daughter lived in luxury on the peninsula, came as a startling surprise to McGregor. The former Mayor says he always understood his divorced wife was an orphan, and that she told him she was the sole survivor of a family which had been shipwrecked on a voyage from Sweden.

Bachelors to Go to Jail to Escape All Proposals

Special to the Telegraph
Hurst, Ill., Jan. 28.—Some eligible young men of Hurst plan to occupy the empty jail to escape from designing females during leap year.

Going to jail to preserve one's liberty may be rather paradoxical they admit, but they say there is one thing worse than jail and that is marriage.

The trouble with Hurst is that there are more marriageable girls — or would-be marriageable girls — than there are marriageable men.

As a result the young men have been so much sought after they have been forced to resort to novel means for self-protection. The jail isn't so bad after all. It is situated in the center of the town park and surrounded by a grassy lawn with shady trees.

Also—Hurst being a model town—it has never been used. The men will fit it up with lace curtains and velvet carpets and move in soon.

Doors, they have announced, will be double-locked every night in order to keep out prowling women.

the court had Sabbath services in mind, the boy didn't.

"No, sir, not Sunday, nor Saturday," said he gravely. "We don't have school on those days."

Other Cases

Only one youngster was sent to Glen Mills. He is one of the four boys who were arrested for snatching writ-bags from several shoppers. One of the others was remanded to the house of detention; the other two were released on probation. Sentence was suspended on a 15-year-old boy who was with the group that annoyed Mrs. C. E. Maul on Halloween. His case will be disposed of after his three older companions are sentenced in February.

George Kirkwood, charged with stealing a bicycle, was released on probation. He said he took the bicycle during a fit of "the blues." This was brought on, court officers explained, because the new child labor laws precluded his working.

The only girl on the juvenile trial list was discharged because there was no evidence to hold her.

The girl had been arrested for stealing $30.25 from a boarder in a Steelton boarding house. Counsel for the youngster pointed out that the prosecutor might have brought the charge in order to divert suspicion from himself or his friends. The boarding "boss" was the prosecutor.

Pittsburgh First Stop

The President will deliver the first address of his western trip in Pittsburgh to-morrow. He will speak in Cleveland to-morrow night, in Milwaukee Monday, in Chicago, Monday night; in Des Moines, Tuesday; in Topeka, Wednesday; in Kansas City, Wednesday night; in St. Louis Thursday morning, and will return home Friday afternoon. He will also speak from the platform of his car in many towns through which he will pass.

On the trip west he will be accompanied by Mrs. Wilson, Secretary Tamm, Dr. C. T. Grayson, the White House physician, two stenographers, a telegrapher and an unusually large corps of secret service men. He will attend no banquets or social affairs, but will devote practically the entire trip to speaking and traveling. Dr. Grayson said to-day the President is in good physical condition for the tour.

The High Cost of Living problem can be reduced to a minimum. The Great Street Market ad on page 13 points the way.—Adv.
