

CENTRAL TRAINS HARD FOR GAME WITH YORK HIGH TOMORROW NIGHT

NEARLY MILLION PLAY GOLF GAME

Men, Women and Children Figure in This Sport; Future Outlook Good

Special to the Telegraph New York, Feb. 2.—Golf has now reached the point where about 800,000 men, women and children in the United States are clubbing the little balls over links.

The professional end of the sport has been neglected. A pro-golfer in this period was one who competed in perhaps half a dozen tournaments during the season, then spent the rest of his time in some quiet spot of his home club teaching the new generation of players the mysteries of driver, masher, putter and other implements of the game.

Professional competitions were limited to the national championship, which amateurs have won twice since 1913; the Met and Western open, and one or two smaller tournaments. The pros while teaching the game, were practically denied the privilege of showing how golf should be played under competitive conditions.

This year, however, will see a decided change for the better for professionals. A number of the most prominent pros in the country met recently and took the first steps toward organizing a National Professional Golfers' Association, something that's been needed for some time.

At the meeting it was announced that Rodman Wanamaker would offer a silver cup to the winner of a national pro tournament. This quickly acted as an incentive, and a committee of professionals—Gil Nichols, Metropolitan champion; James Maiden, Herbert Strong, Jack Hobens, James Hepburn and Dan Mackie—were appointed to formulate conditions for the new tournament.

It is proposed that every section throughout the country hold a preliminary tournament, the winners meeting in a national event, which will answer the question, Who's the best pro golfer in the United States?

Paris Has Baseball in Spite of War in Europe

Special to the Telegraph New York, Feb. 2.—Despite the war in Europe the people of Paris still find time to support a baseball league.

Ralph Conte, a brother of Peter Conte, the Cuban baseball manager, who recently returned from the firing line, ventured the information yesterday that our national pastime has taken a great hold on the people of Paris and after the war baseball will eventually become one of the Frenchmen's great sports.

TEN GAMES ON TECH'S LIST; PLAN BUSY FOOTBALL SEASON

Drop Pottsville and Allentown; Take on Wilkes-Barre and Reading; Good Material For Next Year's Eleven

Technical High school's football eleven will play a series of ten games next Fall, and practically the same team that were included in last year's schedule. Pottsville High, a team that has opened the season for Tech for several years has been dropped.

The matter of captain for next season's eleven has not been decided as yet, and will not likely be brought up for action until the opening of school next September. Matthews, McKay, Killinger and Beck are the only players lost by graduation, although several promising stars have stopped school indefinitely to accept positions.

No grounds have as yet been selected for the playing of the games, although a division of dates has been made between the two high schools so that there will be no conflict on home dates.

Select Grounds Later No grounds have as yet been selected for the playing of the games, although a division of dates has been made between the two high schools so that there will be no conflict on home dates.

Plenty Football Material Whoever the coach may be, he will have a wealth of experienced material from which to pick his team. From last year's eleven remain J. Todd, Stoll, Franch, Phillipelli, Harris, Lloyd, Cole, M. Miller, Wear, Fitzpatrick, Snyder, Lauster, Gipple and Garman, all of whom participated in games last Fall, and with other promising players.

FRUIT TREES NOT BADLY AFFECTED

Dr. Surface Makes Some Statements Regarding the Effect of Recent Weather

With fruit trees budding from the warm weather of the past week, fruit growers throughout the State are fearing serious injuries to next season's fruit crops in case of colder weather.

Dr. Surface says: "The buds of apple, pear and quince are rarely injured by changes in weather temperature, and the buds of peach, plum, cherry may swell considerably due to warm weather, and still be safe if too severe freezing does not follow.
