Helen always remembered the week that followed as one of absolute misery. She ached in every bone and if she raised her head from the pillow a dizziness overwhelmed her.

Afterward she laughed at the different things Warren told her about. Warren was remarkably considerate during the time, and when Helen was hot and feverish and cross, he tried his best to amuse her with funny tales of office experiences.

"That attractive Miss Redding called up to-day," he said suddenly. "Really," said Helen a flash of interest on her weary face.

"Yes, she wanted to know if she might come and see you and hadly asked to ring up the house for fear of bothering you if you were very ill."

Warren gives message. They had thought it safest to send Winifred out to Carrie's. Not that her illness was exactly contagious, as Dr. Marshall put it, but children were susceptible, and there was no need of taking chances.

"Where did the flowers come from?" Helen hesitated for the fraction of an instant and then decided to tell the truth.

"From Ned Burns," she admitted. "From Ned Burns," she admitted. "I thought he had gone West."

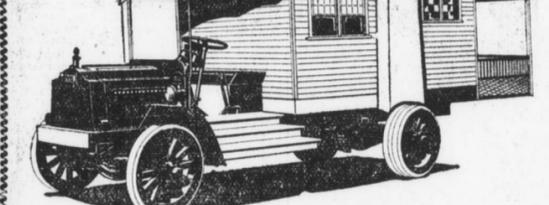

"I really thought so, too; in fact I have never seen him since that night the Thursdays were here."

"And he sends you flowers like this?" "Yes, dear, and I am just as surprised as you are."

"Was there a card?" Helen flushed uncomfortably, and hesitated. The card was a thing she couldn't show to Warren, and yet what would he think if she refused?

Just then the doorbell rang and she sank back on the pillow with a sigh of relief. "That must be Miss Redding and Jack," she said, excitedly. "Bring them in here, dear, and get some chairs, will you?"

(Another incident in this increasingly interesting series will appear here soon.)

SENATE PASSES PHILIPPINE'S BILL

Clarke Amendment For Independence in 1921 Retained in Measure

Special to the Telegraph

Washington, Feb. 5.—Retaining the drastic Clarke amendment providing for the independence of the islands not later than March 4, 1921, the Senate passed the Philippine bill by a vote of 52 to 24.

In the House prompt action on the bill which is said to meet with President Wilson's approval will be urged. Administration leaders apparently are confident that it will have the approval of the House Democratic majority.

To-day is Anniversary. The political spirit of the day was made by Mr. Smith, of Michigan, a conservative Republican, who is a favorite son for the Republican presidential nomination.

"Almost ever since the Treaty of Paris was signed," he said to the Democrats across the aisle, "you have been bombarding the American position in the Philippines. It is fitting that this bill should be brought here by the Senator from Nebraska (Mr. Hitchcock), because from the beginning the cradle of discontent on the islands has been rocked by a Nebraskan (William Jennings Bryan)."

At three national conventions he has tried to overthrow the policies of the beloved McKinley.

To-day is the 17th anniversary of the outbreak of the Philippine insurrection against the United States.

Splendid Marksmanship Records Made in Navy

Special to the Telegraph

Washington, D. C., Feb. 5.—Confidential marksmanship records of the navy were detailed to the House Naval Affairs Committee behind closed doors to-day by Captain C. C. Plunkett, gunnery officer of the department.

Captain Plunkett said approximately 75 per cent. of the enlisted force of the navy from ship's cooks to chief petty officers has qualified as marksmen in rifle practice.

He defined a marksman, the lowest rifle rating, as a man "able to nail anything at 200 yards." About 20 per cent, he said, were sharpshooters or 500-yard range men. The department has asked for $15,000 for rifle trophies.

MANAGING THE CITY of whom received more than 372 first ballots. The more candidates running the less the chance of electing this system there may be any number of candidates.

This difficulty is overcome in two ways. Suppose that one or more candidates receive more than 372 votes, or whatever the quota may be. All the surplus votes of each candidate—those which he does not need to elect him—are not "wasted" so to speak, as under the old system. They are credited as first choices to the man who is marked for second choice on each surplus ballot. These extra votes will probably elect one or more other candidates.

If passing on the surplus results in a second surplus, this in turn is passed on to Choice Number Three.

But even this distribution of surplus first places may not suffice to fill all the offices. In such case, the man who has the fewest number of first choices opposite his name is dropped from the list, and his firsts are given to the man marked for second place on each ballot so treated. If this does not suffice, the next lowest candidate is dropped, and all the firsts he got from the voters or acquired amid the intricacies of the old system are passed around according to the plan

OUTFIT FOR DOLL IS EASILY MADE

Little Girls Can Put These Clothes Together With Little Help

By MAY MANTON

8897 (With Biasing Line and Added Seam Allowance) Doll's Set, 18, 22 and 26 inches high.

Here is an outfit that is just the best in the world for the new dolly. It is really complete for it consists of both underwear and dress and at the same time it is very simple. Any little girl who can sew a straight seam could make all the garments herself and, if she is too young for the work they will mean very little labor for mother.

The little frock is perfectly simple, modeled closely after those that are worn by real children. It is full below the yoke and it can be left free or it can be finished with a belt, as it is on the figure. The princess petticoat is shapely and well fitted. The drawers are simple and at the same time full enough to adjust with ease and satisfaction. Here, the dress is made from fine dotted lawn trimmed with lace insertion, the petticoat and drawers are made from batiste.

For the medium size will be needed, 1 1/4 yards of material 27 inches wide, 3/8 yard 36 or 3/8 yard 44 inches wide, for the dress, 2 yards of insertion and 1/2 yard of beading; for the underwear, 3/4 yard 36 with 3/4 yards of insertion and 5 yards of edging.

The pattern 8897 is cut in sizes for dolls 18, 22 and 26 inches in height. It will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper, on receipt of ten cents.

Simon Lake Patents New Undersea Cargo Vessel

Special to the Telegraph

Bridgeport, Conn., Feb. 5.—An undersea cargo-carrying boat so unique in design that every claim asked by Simon Lake in his original request to the Patent Office has been allowed without change has been patented by the noted submarine designer.

This fact in itself, most unusual, is no less unusual than the boat itself, which is a submarine with two hulls—outside and inside—and capable of carrying grains, foodstuffs or other material beneath a fleet into a blockaded port.

Lake has so arranged a series of tanks and ballast compartments that water ballast may be admitted into the very interior of the vessel's compartments and around the cargo itself without injury to the contents or danger to the crew.

The prompt granting of this patent without change of the original application papers has given rise in submarine circles to the belief that the government may plan the building of such undersea carriers.
