BEGIN ON SALTS AT FIRST SIGN OF KIDNEY PAIN

We eat too much meat, which clogs Kidneys, then the back hurts.

Says glass of Salts flushes Kidneys and ends Bladder irritation.

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region; you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad. Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness. Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Drugists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

OF INTEREST TO THE WOMEN "THEIR MARRIED LIFE"

Copyright by International News Service

(Copyright, 1916, International News Service.) Helen, much to her surprise, sat next to the girl from the West, who interested her so much. Mr. Coleman sat on Helen's other side, and Warren was across the table next to Babble. It was the merriest party in the world, and they were served the most delicious food, in course after course until Helen was sure that she wouldn't be able to stagger to the train. They all punctuated the meal with frequent journeys to the ballroom, the floor of which had been liberally sprinkled with corn meal, and was accordingly slippery. The fish course was nearly over when the girl on Helen's right turned to her and made some laughing remark. Helen turned immediately and responded and they were soon in the middle of a conversation. "I liked you as soon as I met you," the girl confided laughingly. She laughed a great deal, but not obviously. Helen thought that she seemed rather to laugh with her eyes than with her lips, and her face was full of expression. "And I was sure that we were going to be friends," said Helen in return. "Tell me something about yourself. You are from the West, so they say."

had been suspended. Helen could feel herself reddening furiously, and Warren was looking at her steadily, a puzzled expression on his face. Every one was plainly waiting for her to explain. "I think you must mean Ned Burns," she said as collectedly as possible. "You were in Norfolk, Warren, and the Thurston came in that night. Ned Burns had run in just before they arrived, and was terribly disappointed to hear that you had gone. He had seats for the theater for the three of us." The conversation began again, but Helen still felt hot and uncomfortable. She was thankful that she had been able to turn off the disagreeable incident as easily as she had, but she was uncomfortably aware of the fact that she had not told Warren that Ned had been there and that the Thurstons had been up to play cards. She vaguely wished that she had. It sounded so strange brought to light in a casual conversation. Almost as if she had something to conceal. Warren said nothing, and once more the piano in the next room struck up and Mr. Garnett hurried off to play the drums. Warren came around to ask her to dance with him, and she rose and followed him into the other room. "How is it that you never mentioned the fact that Ned Burns and the Thurstons had been in to play cards?" he asked as they swung into the dance. "Why, dear, I truly never thought of it," Helen returned smiling up into his face. Helen Gets Into a Tangle "You must admit that it sounded strange that I didn't know about it," Warren retorted. "I don't think so, but there was really nothing to conceal. I was furious with Ned for running in that way, though."

BUNNY SLIPPERS PLEASE CHILDREN

Warm and Comfy; Will Keep Jack Frost Away From Little Toes

By MAY MANTON

8895 (With Basting Line and Added Seam Allowance) Bunny Slippers, Small 4 or 6, Medium 8 or 10, Large 12 or 14 years.

What child would fail to welcome bed slippers as quaint and pretty as these? They are interestingly suggestive of the bunny, they are warm and cozy and are altogether satisfactory, at the same time that they are very simple and easy to make. Any fur plush, fuzzy flannel or simple cotton flannel can be used in either gray or white, the white of course making the daintier effect. The ears of the white rabbit properly will be lined with pink and the eyes must have a suggestion of pink, for without these bits of color, the bunny will hardly be complete. A few stitches of embroidery will suggest the mouth and buttons will suggest the eyes, so there is very little labor required, while the results is sure to be satisfactory. The ribbon that is passed through slashes cut near the top of the shoes holds them in place.

For the medium size will be needed, 1/2 yd. of material 27, 36, or 44 in. wide.

The pattern No. 8895 is cut in three sizes for 4 or 6, for 8 or 10, for 12 or 14 years. It will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper, on receipt of ten cents.

Girl Answers Dance Pleas by Stocking Inscriptions

Special to the Telegraph Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 8.—Conversation stockings worn by a young woman at the dance at one of the hotels last night created much amusement and some comment. They were white silk and on the left instep was embroidered the face of a clock with the hands pointing to 12 o'clock. Below the dial were the words "Good Night." On the other instep was the word "Delighted." Between dances the wearer, while seated in one of the front row chairs, frequently crossed one knee over the other and spectators decided that either the left or right ankle displaying the decoration was significant of her attitude toward her dancing partner. Some of the young men considered it an indication of her feelings, for when the "Good Night" ankle peeped under the filmy skirt they hastily disappeared in search of another partner.

Thompson's Fall Due to Dislike of Thomas Lynch

Special to the Telegraph Uniontown, Pa., Feb. 8.—An inmate dislike for Thomas Lynch, former president of the H. C. Frick Coal and Coke Company, turned success for Josiah V. Thompson, his follower, and was indirectly responsible for Thompson being accused in a grand jury presentment of violation of the National Banking laws. Thompson admits that it was his antipathy for Lynch that forced him on one occasion to turn on his heel and walk out of the latter's office. Since that day Thompson has found the traveling on the financial and speculative road very rocky. Lynch was a successful purchaser of coal lands and looked far into the future for the big coking company of which he was the head.

To 520 Residents of Pennsylvania (including yourself)

Within the past nine months there has grown up in Greater New York a business revolutionary in its method, which is destined to be one of the largest and most profitable of its class in the United States.

Arrangements are now being made to extend this business to Pennsylvania and to permit 520 residents of the State to take profits out of it—BIG PROFITS.

Nine months ago the All-Package Grocery Stores Company, a chain-store business, opened its first retail store in the Borough of Brooklyn, Greater New York, and sold at low prices pure food put up in sealed, sanitary packages, plainly marked as to the net weight.

The sales of this store grew from $162 the first week to $735 the twenty-fourth week. The company opened other stores in Greater New York—fifty of them—and still the demand for "All-Package" service increased.

Now this Company is increasing the number of its retail stores to 1,250, extending its business to Pennsylvania, and will share profits with 520 residents of the State.

Perhaps you would like to participate, personally, in the financial success of this business. Profit-sharing—through stock ownership—is becoming a feature of modern business, you know.

At all events the Company would like to mail you, without cost or obligation on your part, their book "Feeding the Millions," which explains the reason for the remarkable success of this business, and how you may take big profits out of it.

If you reside in Pennsylvania, write to the All-Package Grocery Stores Company, 217 Broadway, New York, stating that you would like to be informed regarding this profit-sharing opportunity and you will receive by early mail, full details of their very interesting plan.

C. E. MEET WILL NOT BE IN TENT

Impracticable, Chairman H. W. Keitel Tells General Convention Committee

The general C. E. convention committee held its monthly meeting in headquarters building last evening. A luncheon was served to the committee by the First Baptist Christian Endeavor Society. The Rev. E. E. Curtis, general chairman, presided. The finance committee report was made by Professor J. J. Brehm, chairman of the finance committee. The committee has a representation of all denominations connected with C. E. work. Keitel, chairman of the hall committee, reported that the tent proposition is out of the question for place of meeting and that a hall conveniently located with a church building nearby for overflow meetings will likely be secured in the near future. The music committee, under the chairmanship of J. Frank Palmer, is securing new members for the convention chorus which will render first-class music during the convention week. A number of other various committees reported progress on the convention work.

F. E. Crist, representing the various societies of the hill district, Christ Lutheran, Olivet Presbyterian, Church of the Redeemer, Paxtang Presbyterian, Calvary Presbyterian, Market Street Baptist and Derry Street United Brethren will render special music. The next rally will be held at St. John's Lutheran Church, Steelton, on Thursday evening.
