How to find your sensible cigarette

The cigarette that you'll stick to when you find it must "make good" to you in three different ways. It must delight your taste. It must be cool and friendly to your throat and tongue. It must leave you feeling as fit as a fiddle at the end of a hard-smoking day. On the last two points we match Fatima against any cigarette in the world—it can't be beaten. You can prove that by these two tests. But when it comes to taste, that's up to you.

TWO TESTS FOR ANY CIGARETTE. The taste of the cigarette—according to a leading tobacco journal—is up to the smoker. But there are other qualities that you should look for in your cigarette. Here are a couple of tests that may help you choose between different brands more wisely. The first test is for coolness, which means more comfort to the throat and lungs. A small, ordinary puff is not sufficient to make a second tongue cloud of smoke. Now blow out the end of your cigarette. If the cigarette contains a high grade of mild tobacco leaves, combined in just the right proportion, it will always be COOL and soothing to the throat and to your lungs. On the other hand, if the proportions are not right and if the cigarette contains inferior grades of tobacco or hidden strains of rank, city leaf, you will feel a sharp sting at the tip of your tongue or that "sandpaper" tickle in your throat. Test number two—How do you feel after smoking all day? If the tobacco in the cigarette includes a correct proportion of mild grades—and a correct proportion of mild grades—properly mellowed by age—and if they have been so blended and neutralized as to neutralize any unpleasant qualities in each of the different types of tobaccos, you will be able to smoke through the day without feeling any effect from it. But with another cigarette in which the blend is less skillful—even though the tobacco are of the highest grade, you will find along towards the end of the day that you are likely to have "that feeling" of having "smoked too much."

FATIMA THE TURKISH BLEND A Sensible Cigarette. Fatima was the Only Cigarette Awarded the Grand Prize, the highest award given to any cigarette at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

Will There Be A Coal Strike? "Not for a day," says President White of the mine workers—that is, if all his demands are met. But he is entirely too optimistic. The stake this year is an increase of $20,000,000 a year in wages. Additional demands are that the next contract be for a term of two years; that individual agreements and contracts in the mining of coal be prohibited; that an eight-hour day be instituted; that a "satisfactory" method of adjusting grievances be established. And, last but far from least, full and complete recognition of the Union. The strike of 1902 has cost coal consumers millions of dollars each year owing to advances granted the coal miners at that time. Some compromise will be effected this year—and the public will be expected to pay, as heretofore. Better put in a supply of coal NOW while present prices are in force.
