every untoward situation. The trou-

every untoward situation. The troubled church and the troubled life can find no clearer path to peace than a reverent, open-nimed and repeated study of these eleven verses from Paul's great letter to the Christians in old Philippi. I quote from the American Standard Revision:—

"If there is therefore any exhoriation in Christ, if any consolation of love, if any fellowship of the Spirit, if any tender mercies and compassions, make full my joy, that ye be of the same mind, having the same love, being of one accord, of one mind; doing nothing through faction or through vainglory, but in lowliness of mind each counting other better than himself; not looking each of you to his own things, but each of you also to the things of others. Have this mind in you, which was also in Christ Jesus; who, existing in the form of God, counted not the being on an equality with God a thing to be grasped, but emptied Himself, taking the form of a servant, being made in the likeness of men; and being found in fashion as a man, he humbled Himself, becoming obedient even unto death, yea, the death of the cross. Wherefore also God highly exalted Him, and gave unto Him the name which is above every name; that in the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things in heaven and things on earth and things under the earth, and that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father."

The Real Preparedness

that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father."

The Real Preparedness

Nobody can doubt that the world war is bringing a new order of civilization. How shall we make ready for this? By a new state of mind, and only so. Thus these old words of Paul become more pertinent and timely than any newspaper editorials or legislative debates. Things can be held together in the ominous to-morrow only by anew and nobler way of thinkins. Military preparedness is, from all standpoints less important than spiritual preparedness. The most practical counsel for the people alive in this year of 1916 is Paul's exhortation, "Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus."

A rare program for a Christian life is compacted by Paul into the few sentences of the lesson. First, he wants church unity, of the kind which comes from likemindedness. Any other kind is vain. A church with one mind—and that the mind of Christ—is free from all danger of schisms and strife. The proposed World Conference on Faith and Order cannot surpass Paul's program for real Christian unity.

In two presmant phrases the Apostle strikes to the root of the new world order that the Gospel is bringing to pass: "Not looking each of you also to the things of others. Have this mind in you, which was also in Christ Jesus." In this Christian unselfishness lies the only hope of human brotherhood. Not by laws imposed from without, but by an inspired spirit within is the made-over social order to come. Once people of human brotherhood. Not by laws imposed from without, but by an inspired spirit within is the made-over social order to come. Once people of humans brotherhood. Not by laws imposed from without, but by an inspired spirit within is the made-over social order to come. Once people of humans brotherhood. Not by laws imposed from without, but by an inspired spirit within is the made-over social order to come. Once people are fired by the mind of Christ, all the ills of society will disappear, for selfishness will have gone to its own place.

iveness and force were even more rampant than to-day. Paul held up the pleture of a Christ whose glory was that he had made himself of no reputation, literally, had emptied himself, and had assumed a slave's task, all for the glory of God. As did the Master, so should the disciple do. It is the eternal mystery of sacrifice, the triumph of which has been demonstrated. As Thomas a' Kempis cried, "When Thou, O my God, wouldst show Thy love for the world Thou gavest it Thy Son. When Thou wouldst show Thy love for Thy Son Thou gavest Him a Cross." Whereupon T. H. Darlow comments, in his wonderful little book "The Print of the Nails," "We can only say, 'Herein is love, —we have no other words to use—'Herein is love, and awful consolation and almighty healing and hone."
