Our Library Table A FEW MINUTES WITH THE LATEST BOOKS & MAGAZINES

The Spirit of Man, an Anthology, by Robert Bridges. (Longmans, Green & Co., New York and London, publishers, $1.50.)

Scholars and those who possess a love of the beautiful and are interested in things other than those of the common, work-a-day world are urged to read—no, to bathe, rather—in the waters of literature which literally flow through the pages of this the best anthology in French and English that we have seen. It is taken from the philosophers and poets and connected up without titles into a readable whole by the poet laureate of England, Robert Bridges, who dedicated his work to King George. Its main implication in the sequence of thought which is to a more or less degree followed out is that spirituality is the basis and foundation of human life.

The temperament of the poet is seen throughout all the book, which is assembled in a desire to interpret life in the light of higher things and subject to the rule of the spirit; a hopeful turning away from the scenes of horror and bloodshed to the region of souls "where all is pure."

The anthology is prefaced with a paean of praise for and glory in the honor and nobility of the British soldiery. As befits the poet laureate, it is gotten together in masterly fashion, with the cream of the best thought of this and other ages crystallized into poetical sequence. One is whipped quickly from the utterings of Plato to the dreamy and hypnotic poetry of Rabindranath Tagore. One is sild quietly from the penetrating philosophy of the French of Pascal to the beautifully simple and sublime English translation of the Odyssey. Read and one may safely guarantee with Longfellow that

"The cares that infest the day Shall fold their tents like the Arabs, And as silently steal away."

Heroines of the Modern Stage, by Forrest Izard. (Sturgis & Walton Co., $1.50.)

Herewith is given a book that abounds with biographies of the best known actresses of the English and American stage to-day. Continental actresses who have international reputations are likewise included as being of interest to the English-speaking public, and in the last chapter are grouped those American actresses who have made distinct contributions to our stage, but, in the opinion of the author, insufficient to qualify them for a full chapter devoted exclusively to their biographies.

The book is interesting for reference, but primarily to give the reader a new insight into the lives and characters of these women upon whom the quality of our theaters has depended in the past and is depending for future standards. One instinctively sympa-thizes with them in their efforts and acquires a greater appreciation of the art of acting than ever before.

Complete chapters are devoted to the biographies of Sarah Bernhardt, Ada Rehan, Helen Modjeska, Mary Anderson, Ellen Terry, Mrs. Fiske, Gabrielle Rejane, Julia Marlowe, Eleanor Duse and Maude Adams, with a portrait of each. Honorable mention is given, among others, to the following American actresses: Margaret Anglin, Marie Doro, Billie Burke, Ethel Barrymore, Margaret Illington, Elsie Ferguson and Helen Ware.

PICKED AS ONE OF THE FAVORITE BOOKS

A short time ago a contest was held in Chicago and Boston to obtain lists of the best books for boys. A list of twenty-four was prepared by the chief librarian of the Chicago Public Library, who confessed that he could not pick the twenty-five. Of the hundreds of participants in this contest, "Freckles," by Gene Stratton-Porter, was voted one of the most popular to fill the vacant place along with "Pilgrim's Progress," "Black Beauty," "The Last of the Mohicans," "David Copperfield" and "Silas Marner."

The Martyr's Return, by Percival W. Wells. (Bartlett Publishing Co., $1.00.)

In one word the thought and substance of this volume can be expressed, "Preparedness" is the subject which has the country in debate as no other has had for years, and that is the real message of the book. Not a fiction preparedness wherein the author has had to draw upon his imagination; not a theoretical preparedness wherein he advances many of his views; but a sound, logical preparedness which he discusses with President Lincoln, martyred and returned in the spirit to talk with General Hazard, a veteran of the Civil War. The author has gone back over the centuries and shown how nations victorious have become subjected to their own licentiousness, the aftermath of victory. He traces carefully the history of nations relative to their naval power and brings his lesson home through our national experience in the wars of 1812 and on, through the Spanish-American war. The entire book is written in the form of conversation, the Martyr but briefly responding at intervals. The negro and social questions are touched upon, but give place to the subject which has become dinner table conversation in practically every American home.

"A DRESSCESSIONAL"

Girl of the Future, feared of all, Chasing the far-flung Fashion line, What awful things may yet appal, Hung on your human form divine! Girl of to-day, stay with us yet, Lest we regret! Lest we regret!

The tunic and the peplum dies, The plaiting and the flare depart; Oh, what must we next sacrifice To future of a fearful art? Girl of to-day, stay with us all, Lest worse befall! Lest worse befall!

The blouse and bodice melt away, Forever fades the silhouette; Lo! all the mode of yesterday, In one with puff and pantalette, Girl of to-day, stay with us, do! Lest worse ensue! Lest worse ensue!

If drunk with mad designs we loose Wild styles that hold no art in awe— Such clothing as the Fijis use, Or lesser breeds without the law— Girl of to-day, stay here with us, Lest worse may be! Lest worse may be!

For foolish maid who puts her trust In French tailleur or smart modiste,

In valiant men of men august, Without discernment in the least— For frantic fads of Fashion's whirl, Have mercy on us, Future Girl! —Captain Wells, in Harper's Magazine for March.

This prescription for the removal of freckles was written by a prominent physician and is usually so successful that it is sold by druggists under guarantee to refund the money if it fails. Get an ounce of othine—double strength, and even a few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the smaller freckles even vanishing entirely.

The Early Arrival of New Hats For Our Spring Opening Next Week Gives Us a Notable Showing For Saturday

Easter comes late this year but never has there been such interest manifested in Spring Millinery so early in the season. Naturally this interest has brought out a great array of advance modes and we have ready in preparation for next week's important style event a showing of incomparable fashion scope. Dozens and dozens of hats have been coming in, each bearing its message of some new mode inspired by Paris millinery geniuses.

The new hat fashions are as dainty, gay and varied as the flowers in the field. No one particular place or period can claim these charming styles. The quaint pokes have been borrowed from the days of 1830, the huge hat with soft undulating brims has been inspired by Gainsborough's art, while the perky little turbans and other smart effects cleverly pinched into chic "turns" and "corners" being wholly to present-day origination.

$4.95, $5.95 and $6.50
