WHITE CLAY FOUND NEAR DILLSBURG

Harrisburg and Carlisle Parties Will Remodel Old Brick Plant

Special to the Telegraph
Dillsburg, Pa., March 16.—Harrisburg and Carlisle financiers who have been prospecting for clays in the South Mountain near Dillsburg for some time have discovered large deposits of a pure white clay which in some places is more than seventy-five feet in thickness. The large brick plant erected here some years ago will be remodeled for the purpose of refining the clay, which then will be shipped to manufacturers of tile and other clay products. A short distance from where the clay is found, a black clay, which contains a large percentage of iron, is now being mined.

Snow Crimps Road Work For Heavywork Warriors

New York, March 16.—Roads blocked with snow and a stiff cold wind did not keep Jess Willard and Frank Moran from taking their early start on the road to Harrisburg. Willard is well satisfied with the progress he is making in reducing weight and believes that by to-morrow he will get below 250 pounds. Jess is very cool in all his gymnastic work and particularly careful when he has the gloves on with his sparring partners. All three of these, by the way, snow today and the weather although Willard never cuts loose with a full blow, but his ponderous weight at close quarters has its effect on the trio of fighters who let Jess feel the full strength of any blows they can land on him.
Moran's workouts in the ring are more lively as he mixes matters in not fashion with his sparring men. He is looking forward to an additional opponent for the remainder of the time. Big Dan Daly, of Philadelphia, is expected at the West Chester camp some time to-day and Trainer Lewis says that his presence will enable Moran to work his overhead blows effectively.
In both camps the usual gymnastics, bag punching, boxing and wrestling bouts will be gone through this afternoon.

SPRAYING MUST BE DONE BY ALL

This Is the Opinion of State Officials Who Have Observed Conditions

Compulsory spraying is now being urged through the state because tree owners are met by other less progressive persons on each side who make no effort to keep their trees in condition. In answer to a communication asking whether the Department of Agriculture can compel his neighbor to spray for San Jose scale, Zoologist H. A. Surface says: "The expiration of the nursery inspection law requires that when tree pests are supposed to be present, those persons whose property is threatened by them can make complaint to the Secretary of Agriculture, and it then becomes his duty to send a competent man to inspect the premises of which complaint is made, and see if dangerous or serious pests are found thereon. If so, he must tell the owner what to do to get rid of them, and must prescribe a certain length of time within which the work must be done. At the expiration of that period he must again visit the premises, and if the treatment has not been given in accordance with directions, it is the duty of the Department of Agriculture to do the work, or have it done by men whom it must employ, and have the expense for it charged to the property as a lien in the same manner as taxes."
Every Pennsylvania fruit grower who has not examined his peach, plum and apricot buds should do so at once, as many have been frozen and the season's plans may have to be altered. Sheldon W. Funk, farm adviser expert on fruits, has examined orchards in several of the southeastern counties of the state and declares that he was surprised to find what a great percentage of the buds have been killed. Mr. Funk says: "All of the apricot buds, together with some varieties of plum buds, that I have examined have been destroyed entirely. In one peach orchard the buds were all killed, but in most cases the percentage of frozen buds runs from 25 to 75 per cent, depending upon the varieties, elevation and general vigor of the trees. This is, of course, sufficient for a good crop if no further injury is received."
"In no section that I have examined did the thermometer drop lower than four degrees below zero and I had not expected to find so much damage. There is a possibility that the excessive rainfall, together with heavy cropping last summer, caused the buds to go into the dormant stage in a weakened condition, but I believe that the greatest part of the damage was primarily caused by the extremely warm spells which we had this winter. The warm weather undoubtedly started sap circulation, to a certain extent, which

Coal Mining Outlook

Well informed people fear a coal strike of months' duration. The least that can be expected is a suspension until an agreement is reached.
The mine owners' recent figures show that the 20 per cent increase in wages, demanded by the miners would add 60c per ton to the cost of mining domestic sizes of coal.
There is every evidence that many of the miners' demands will be rejected—the result may be a serious strike; similar to that of 1902.
The miners say that wages in all other lines are being increased and as living expenses are higher they must have a larger income.
It's impossible to say what will happen.
The coal consumer will do well to fortify himself with an ample supply of coal this month. After April 1st the supply may be limited.

Mr. Went-And-Cut-It—Here's Mr. 'Gets-It'

The New Plan Corn Cure That's as Sure as the Rising Sun
"Glad to meet you!" says the razor to the corn. "I'll bleed for you!" says the corn to the razor. Razors and corns love each other. Corns love to be cut, picked, gouged, salved, plastered and jerked out—they grow faster. Mr. and Mrs. Went-and-Cut-It realize it now—they use the "Gets-It" instead—it's the wonderful, simple corn-cure that never fails. Stops pain. You apply it in 2 seconds. It dries at once, the corn is doomed. Nothing to stick to the stocking or press on the corn. It means goodnight to plasters, salves, diggers, razors and toe-bundling. You can wear smaller shoes. Your corns will come right off "clean as a whistle." Never inflames healthy flesh. The world's biggest selling corn cure. "Gets-It" is a possibility that druggists everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent direct by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Look to the Coffee

"In all cases of so-called neurasthenia, the coffee-drinking of the patient should be inquired into. What has been said about coffee also holds good in regard to tea," says a physician of note.

More and more, people are coming to know that the coffee and tea habits are responsible for a large percentage of those nervous disorders classed under the head of "neurasthenia," or nervous prostration.

Both coffee and tea contain the drug, caffeine, a powerful irritant of the nerves. They also contain tannin—an astringent—which acts most unfavorably upon the intestinal walls. Headache, "nerves," insomnia, biliousness—these are some of the signs of caffeine poisoning.

Many coffee and tea drinkers are learning that the way to health is by quitting coffee and tea; and for a pleasant, healthful drink, using
